Perjury Case Is Threatened Against Wirt In 'Red' Quiz

6 Witnesses Deny Any 'Revolt' Discussion Was Held.

Bulwinkle Favors Move by Garnett

Gary Educator Stares at Floor as Probe Members Clash.

By Felix Bruner.

Threats of perjury prosecution last night followed testimony of six witnesses before a special House investigating committee that there was no discussion of any move to overthrow the established social order at the dinner party attended last September by Dr. William A. Wirt, Gary (Ind.) educator.

Chairman Alfred L. Bulwinkle (Democrat), North Carolina, said his committee could not prosecute Wirt, "but there is no reason why the United States attorney and the grand jury should not take notice of the case."

Representative Andrew L. Somers (Democrat), New York, said that if the committee did not act he would present a transcript of the evidence to the United States attorney "and suggest the he see if there is any question of perjury involved."

Senator Tom Connally (Democrat), Texas, declared that "when witnesses under oath go before a Senate or a House committee and make false statements to obtain publicity or to sell books they should be charged with perjury."

Garnett Has No Transcript.

Leslie C. Garnett, United States attorney, said he had not seen a transcript of the testimony and that until he had more information he could not say whether he would act.

The witnesses branded as false virtually every word of the testimony given by Wirt.

They agreed that there had been no conversation in the accepted sense but that there had been a four-hour talk by Wirt, some of it about the Gary school system, but most of it about revaluation of the dollar.

Each denied that any member of the party had said that "Roosevelt is the Kerensky of this revolution," or that "we have the President in the midst of a swift stream from which he can not turn back." Wirt had testified that both these statements were made at the dinner.

Wirt testified last week that most of the discussion concerned the economic theories of Dr. Rexford Guy Tugwell, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture. Each of the dinner

Curry Defiant; Revolt Grows

W. P. Kenneally, Chief of Tammany Committee, Joins Rebellion.

New York, April 17 (AP).—Tammany's revolt against the leadership of John F. Curry gained impetus today with the disclosure that William P. Kenneally, chairman of the Wigwam's executive committee, had added his name to a petition calling for Curry's resignation.

Kenneally's defection to their ranks was received with open jubilation by the insurgents because of the prestige his position on the committee carries.

Confirmation that Kenneally had joined the movement came from Edward J. Ahearn, an insurgent leader, just as Curry was seating himself in the Polo Grounds to watch the opening of the baseball season.

Previously he had epitomized his attitude by quoting the remark of Woodrow Wilson that "Powers do not threaten, they act."

The insurgents indicated they would continue to delay action. Curry sent out word that he would be at his desk tomorrow afternoon, thereby giving his foes an opportunity to present their petition.

"I don't believe we'll hand Mr. Curry the petition tomorrow," said Ahearn. "We want to be decent about it and he will first be asked to resign."

From the other side of the camp came the retort of H. Warren Hubbard, Commissioner of Public Works, and a Curry supporter:

Angry Charges Fly at Wirt Hearing

Japan Resents World Powers' Aid to China

Manifesto Asserts Tokyo Will Object If Acts Threaten Peace.

Tokyo, April 17 (AP).—A manifesto setting forth Japan's responsibility to maintain peace in East Asia and objecting to the efforts of other nations, including the United States, to help Chinese air and military forces, was studied today by Foreign Minister Koki Hirota.

A draft of the document, called a "restatement and clarification" of the Japanese policy toward China and designed to outline Chinese relations with other powers so as not to jeopardize peace, was sent to the foreign office for approval.

Subsequently, it will be communicated to the Japanese Minister in Nanking and Japanese Ambassadors in Washington and other capitals to serve as a basis for explanations.

U. S. Effect in Doubt.

The draft was shown to an Associated Press representative by a high official who declared that "history shows that technical or financial aid to China almost inevitably becomes military or political, in which event Japan must object."

He declined to answer a question as to how this would affect sales of American airplane manufacturers to China, Washington's cotton and wheat loan to China, or the activities of Americans in helping establish Chinese air routes and training Chinese aviators.

The document says:

"We regard Japan principally responsible for the maintenance of peace in East Asia and we are determined to fulfill this mission; in order to do so, Japan must share China's responsibility for the maintenance of peace.

"Japan sincerely desires the integrity, unification, and restoration of order in China. History teaches that is only achievable through China's own self-awakening and China's own endeavors.

"Japan, therefore, must break China's anti-Japanese movement and eliminate China's traditional policy of setting one power against another.

"In the situation which has arisen

Earthquakes Rock California Areas

Santa Ana, Calif., April 17 (AP).—An earthquake sent many persons fleeing from their homes and office buildings here today, but did no damage.

The shock was felt at 10:33 a. m. and lasted about two seconds. It was the most severe since the disastrous quake of March 10, 1933.

Anaheim, a few miles north, reported a slight shock. At Long Beach, to the west, and at San Juan Capistrano, to the south, it was not perceptible.

Long Beach, the center of destruction in March, 1933, reported having felt a slight quake at 4:30 a. m. today.

Barbizon, France, April 17 (U.P.).—Leon Trotzky, ferreted out in his suburban retreat here near Paris, packed his trunks tonight preparatory to joining other world exiles in the search for a safe haven from his enemies.

The erstwhile leader of the Red Russian army, discovered living at a villa here with a small retinue, was ordered to get out of the vicinity by tomorrow and to leave France within two weeks.

He let it be known that he might like to find a spot in the United States in which to settle. There was nothing definite about that idea, but the word went out that he had informed members of the government in Paris he had communicated with friends, asking them to determine "the possibility of obtaining refuge in North or South America."

Trotzky's followers were doubtful that their chief could find a further haven in Europe, now that France has almost forcibly ejected him on discovering he was engaged in efforts to foment further world revolutions through his so-called "Fourth Internationale"—a move to supersede the Moscow Third Internationale with bolder Communstic moves.

Broken Pledge Charged.

A government spokesman explained that the government's order expelling Trotzky from France was due to the fact that he "has broken his pledge" not to continue revolutionary plotting while in this country.

Trotzky was quoted as admitting that he was hiding here to carry

Nats Win in 11th, 6-5; A's, Tigers, Indians Triumph

Fair weather, large and enthusiastic crowds and generally close games ushered in the new major league baseball season yesterday. At Boston, 30,000 fans jammed Fenway Park to see the rejuvenated Red Sox bow to the Nats, 6-5, in an 11-inning struggle. Bucky Walters' error on pinch-hitter Dave Harris' grounder enabled Joe Cronin to score the winning run.

Philadelphia's lightly-regarded club trimmed the New York Yankees, 6-5, while Detroit batted out an 8-3 victory over Chicago and Cleveland defeated St. Louis, 5-2.

In the National League, the Giants pounded Philadelphia for a 6-1 decision; Chicago whitewashed Cincinnati's newly-rich Reds, 6-0; Brooklyn eked out an 8-7 win over Boston, and the St. Louis Cardinals trampled Pittsburgh, 7-1.

Voliva Locks Zion's Schools In Answer to Defeat at Polls

Zion, Ill., April 17 (AP).—Wilbur Glenn Voliva sent the children home from school for good and all today and locked the doors of the classrooms where they teach you the world is flat or round, take your choice.

Voliva said last week h'd "crack the town wide open" if his candidates for the school board were not elected. They weren't. For the first time since Zion business and religion became partners under the rule of Overseer Voliva, the townsfolk turned him down as flat as the earth whose rim he once said he circumnavigated.

At 9:30 a. m. he made a visit to the parochial schools and sent teachers and 900 pupils home.

At 10 a. m., his public school board posted a brief notice: "Because of a shortage of funds, the City of Zion can not afford to support the schools further this year."

Well, the schools would have closed for the summer on May 1 anyway, and the youngsters were happy about it, but Zion was "cracked wide open."

The Rev. Paul Goodwin, a preacher independent of the Christian Catholic Apostolic Church in Zion, telegraphed a protest to the State superintendent of schools, who said he could do nothing about it. W. C. Petty, the county superintendent, agreed the Zion board could open or close the schools at its pleasure, especially since the board was quite broke.

Voliva was indignant about Zion's ingratitude.

British Budget Cuts Tax While Ignoring Debt

Dole Restored, Idle Aided; No Provision Made to Repay U. S.

London, April 17 (AP).—A "sunshine" budget granting all classes of Britons—government workers, motorists, income taxpayers, and the unemployed—$145,500,000 in benefits, but not providing for American debt payments, was given Parliament today by Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain.

His approximate 10 per cent reduction in the income tax, 25 per cent slash in the auto horsepower tax, restoration of the "dole," and reinstitution of half the pay cuts of government employes, enabled him to produce another safe and sound statement of national accounts for 1934-1935.

It was a budget without sensations and was carefully framed to maintain the upward trend of Great Britain's prosperity. His premise was that the surplus in the year just ending—aggregating $200,000,000—"must in justice be devoted to relieving those classes who suffered when the crisis was acute."

Other high spots of the anxiously awaited document, which drew cheers from a crowd in the House of Commons, included:

The assurance that Britain has "regained her place as the first exporting country of the world."

An estimated 1934-1935 surplus in operating expenses of $145,500,000.

Lehman Wins On Power Act

N. Y. Legislature Passes Municipal Ownership of Plants Law.

Albany, N. Y., April 17 (U.P.).—The New York Legislature passed a bill tonight authorizing municipal ownership of gas and electric companies—major proposal in a broad power reform program advanced by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman.

The measure, previously passed in the Senate, was approved in the Assembly by a vote of 97 to 49 and sent to the Governor for signature.

Passage of the bill came in the midst of a raging utilities war, outgrowth of letters introduced before the Federal Trade Commission in Washington purporting to link State Senator W. T. Thayer with the Associated Gas & Electric Co.

The Assembly was expected to adopt a resolution tomorrow, resulting from the Thayer incident, providing a broad legislative investigation into the political activities of all utilities and all types of lobbying.

Under the bill passed tonight, any city, town or village would be empowered to establish a municipal electric or gas plant subject to the approval of the voters.

The Assembly earlier approved eight bills of the Governor's 11-point program. They included a bill which would establish a $300,000 revolving fund to finance rate investigations, part of the cost to be assessed against the utilities.

Suicide Shows Them Just How It's Done

Buffalo, April 17 (U.P.).—"Did you ever see anybody commit suicide?" James Rives, 26, asked his girl friend and others attending a party in his apartment. "Well, look here."

Col. Roosevelt Hits New Deal As 'Despotic'

National G. O. P. Club's New Leader Cites Air Mail Action.

New York, April 17 (AP).—President Roosevelt's "New Deal" regime was denounced as "reactionary and un-American" by his distant cousin, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, tonight, in a speech that accused the Administration of violating constitutional liberties "to an extraordinary degree."

Col. Roosevelt assailed the NRA as having adopted an attitude of "militaristic Prussianism."

"It is a bullying, bulldozing frame of mind that is foreign to anything our ancestors would have permitted," he declared.

The new deal, he said, is not new but is "the old deal, older than time, the deal from which we have been rising through years of struggle."

"If it is fixed upon us," he warned, "it predicates for the future an autocrat rather than a President."

Hits Air-Mail Action.

Speaking at his inauguration as president of the National Republican Club, Col. Roosevelt accused the Government of violating the constitutional provision that every man shall have his day in court, by cancelling the air-mail contracts without hearing; he declared an effort had been made to stifle free speech and to throttle the press.

As a "striking example," he said that when Col. Charles A. Lindbergh recently protested against cancellation of the air-mail contracts "a deliberate and concerted attempt was set on foot to discredit him in the eyes of the public by trying to show that he was a publicity seeker and by endeavoring to prove that his motives were base in that he had profited to an undue extent by his connection with the development of the air service."

"Equally important with free speech," he continued, "is a free, uncensored press.

Press Curb Charged.

"Any regulation which vests in the Government the power either to put a newspaper out of existence by circumscribing its rights or by clamping down on it regulations with which it can not comply, potentially violates the freedom of the press. * * *

"The actions of the NRA have come perilously close to creating such a condition, and would have done so had it not been for the courageous attitude of a large proportion of our press in this country. Even now the danger is not past."

Enactment of the proposed "secret document bill" of last spring, he said, would have given the Government, "to all intents and purposes, complete control of the news columns and made possible a rigid censorship."

Names Wallace, Johnson.

To Secretary of Agriculture Wallace he attributed a statement that "if the present schemes in Washington are to work there must be a 'controlled' public opinion."

"Controlled public opinion is censorship, no more, no less," Col. Roosevelt said.

Of NRA Administrator Johnson, he said:

"Time and again he (Johnson) says he will 'crack down' on this

President Hears Old Songs Sung By Girl Cripple

While President Roosevelt kept time by tapping his armchair, Miss Nan Johnson, young crippled girl of Cleveland, yesterday filled the White House with a sweet soprano voice, realizing a long-time ambition.

After three old songs had brought murmurs of admiration, she turned to the President and said she wanted to sing one more—"just for my President." It was "Cast Your Burdens on the Lord."

The scene was laid in the President's upstairs study, with President Vincent, of Haiti, among a score of tea guests.

Chain Company Denied Right to Cut Gas Rate

Topeka, Kans., April 17 (AP).—The State Corporation Commission denied today the application of the Western Distributing Co. to reduce rates sharply at Halstead, Kans., in an effort to meet competition from a recently installed municipal gas plant.

Homer Hoch, commission chairman, said that approval would have amounted "to saying the company might pursue its unyielding course in maintaining high rates, even in the face of local gas supplies until a city, as a last resort, goes into debt to build a plant and then it can put in a cut-throat rate and destroy the city plant."

Four Airlines to Sue Farley for Canceled Awards and Damages

40 Pct. Tobacco Tax Slash Urged in House

Rep. Vinson, Chairman of Group Proposing Cut, Will Press for Early Action; Conference on $480,000,000 Income Bill Starts.

By Robert C. Albright.

A horizontal cut of 40 per cent in all tobacco taxes yesterday was proposed by a special House Ways and Means sub-committee as the Senate's $480,000,000 income tax revision bill was sent to conference with the House.

Curtailment of tobacco levies was recommended too late for inclusion in the general revenue bill. In the opinion of House leaders, it was reported too late for Congressional action this session.

But Representative Fred M. Vinson (Democrat), Kentucky, chairman of the special sub-committee, said he will press for early consideration. He said it would mean a cut in the price of standard brand cigarettes to 10 cents, while the cheaper brands could retail 2 for 15.

Meantime, Chairman Pat Harrison of the Senate Finance Committee, decided against a move for reconsideration of the $480,000,000 general revenue measure, when it became apparent the President would not veto the bill merely because of objectionable levies on coconut and sesame oils.

Harrison said he will try to work out changes in the coconut oil tax acceptable to the President, in conference with House managers. At the same time, he characterized as "unjustified" House attacks on Senate changes in the bill, revising in-

Cannon Plea For Acquittal Turned Down

Defense Begins Halting Effort to Prove That Committees Existed.

By Frank Getty.

"Check kiting," "phoney deficits" and a meeting that "reeked of a partnership in crime," were charged against Bishop James Cannon, jr., and Miss Ada Burroughs yesterday by Assistant United States Attorney John J. Wilson, as the Government successfully opposed a defense motion for a directed verdict of not guilty.

Justice Peyton Gordon overruled the motion, after defense counsel had collaborated in dramatic pleas on behalf of "this old man" and his former secretary.

Quite unmoved by the denunciation of his alleged misappropriation of funds contributed by E. C. Jameson, of New York, to the anti-Smith campaign in 1928, the bishop tugged at his lawyer's coat tail in grinning protest when the "old man" phrase was applied to him. Swinging around in his chair, he smiled broadly at Mrs. Cannon.

Defense Makes Halting Start.

After the directed verdict motion was overruled, the jury, which had spent nearly the entire day away from the courtroom, was recalled and the defense began haltingly to present its case, an attempt to prove that there was a State anti-Smith committee in Virginia in 1928 which spent $48,000 of the "Jameson money."

Two witnesses were heard, Capt. C. C. Berkeley, Newport News attorney, and Louis F. Powell, Richmond lumberman. Neither could testify flatly to knowledge of the existence of such a State committee during the campaign to defeat Al Smith. They told of chairmen of Virginia election districts who later, in 1929, proposed to perpetuate an organization to oppose the influence of the defeated Democratic standard bearer and John J. Raskob in the party.

The State had rested at the start of the day, after E. J. Armbruster, Department of Justice agent, had been cross-examined in an effort to show Miss Burroughs properly reported to Congress the sums she received as treasurer of the "Headquarters Committee, Anti-Smith Democrats." It is for her alleged failure to report part of the Jameson contributions that she and the bishop were indicted on two counts of conspiracy to defeat the Federal corrupt practices act.

With the Government's case complete, the jury was sent out and

D.A.R. Groans Over Moscow Embassy Cost

More Groans Greet News of U. S. Duplicating "Monticello."

By Elisabeth E. Poe.

Groans expressing disapproval rumbled through Constitution Hall yesterday at the National Defense committee meeting of the forty-third Continental Congress of the D. A. R. with Senator Warren Barbour's announcement that an embassy costing $1,250,000 is being built by this country in Moscow.

This meeting was one part of a full day for the 4,000 delegates and members participating in the gathering. After a morning of State meetings and luncheons, and an afternoon pilgrimage by the president general, Mrs. Russell William Magna, to Arlington and Mount Vernon, events were climaxed with a reception at Constitution Hall and a dance at the Mayflower Hotel.

More Groans Heard.

The murmurs which greeted Senator Barbour's first announcement grew when he explained that the upkeep of the embassy in Soviet Russia was to be $400,000 a year. More groans were heard from the delegates, whose guests Monday night were Soviet Ambassador and Mrs. Troyanovsky, when the Senator said the Moscow Embassy was to be a replica of Monticello, Thomas Jefferson's Virginia home.

Cheers greeted Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, when he spoke to the defense meeting on the necessity of an adequate Navy. Delegates applauded when he told of efforts to provide legislation to build the Navy up to treaty strength.

Senator Barbour also pleaded for better defense. He declared the Army at present is smaller than that of Greece, adding that the entire armed force of the United States could be seated at one time in Yankee Stadium.

Urges 218,000 Minimum.

The Senator pointed out that such a small army was entirely out of proportion with the population of the Nation. He urged that an army of 218,000 men instead of the 117,000 at present was the necessary minimum peace-time Army.

"I hope the United States will become more military minded—not militaristic," exclaimed the Senator, "and I hope it will increase its Army by at least 50,000 men. With so many men unemployed it is a good time to bring about this increase." He urged development of the National Guard, the R. O. T.

Garner's Vote Fails to Save Curb on 2-Job Congressmen

(Associated Press.)

Vice President Garner exercised his rare privilege of voting yesterday to favor a bill to prohibit members of Congress from acting as attorneys in cases in which the Government has an interest.

The Vice President cast the deciding vote when the Senate was evenly divided on taking up the bill, but after half an hour's debate in which the measure excited strong opposition, it had to give way to other legislation under the rules, and went back to the calendar.

Garner voted against the majority of his party. Twenty-one Democrats voted with 10 Republicans against consideration of the bill, while 17 Democrats voted with 13 Republicans and one Farmer-Laborite, Shipstead, to consider it.

It was the first time this session the Vice President had the chance to break a tie in the Senate.

The bill not only would prevent members of the House and Senate from receiving compensation for acting as counsel in cases affecting the Government before departments and the courts, but would apply to any Federal official.

It also would prevent Senators and Representatives from representing any person or corporation engaged in interstate commerce. Offenders would be subject to two years in jail or $10,000 fine.

Senator Long (Democrat), Louisiana, led the opposition to the bill during the brief debate. He contended that the Senate was rapidly becoming a place open only to "paupers or rich men" and that salaries of Senators should be doubled.

Notice of Suit Given Postoffice Solicitor by Transport Firm.

Arbitrary, Illegal Action Is Charged

By Franklin Waltman, Jr.

Suits by four aviation companies will be filed today in District of Columbia Supreme Court seeking to enjoin Postmaster General James A. Farley from enforcing his February 9 order canceling their air-mail contracts. The suits also will ask for damages.

Notice of these actions was served on Karl A. Crowley, solicitor of the Postoffice Department, by attorneys for Boeing Air Transport, Inc., National Air Transport, Inc., Pacific Air Transport and Varney Air Lines, companies who will file the suits. The four are subsidiaries of United Airlines.

In a statement explaining the basis for the suits, John McH. Stuart, United Airlines representative, said Farley will be sued as an individual on the theory that as Postmaster General he lacked the power to cancel the contracts and that in doing so "arbitrarily" he deprived the airlines of property without due process of law.

It also will be contended that the companies were entitled to a hearing, but that "at no time has any of them been advised of specific charges against them" and, as far as official advices are concerned, remain today "ignorant of the alleged facts upon which the Postmaster General based his action."

Second Attempt to Sue.

Filing of these suits will mark the second time that the airlines whose contracts were canceled have tried to bring court action. Transcontinental and Western Air brought action against Postmaster General Farley to enjoin him from enforcing the cancellation of its contract which was rejected by the Federal District Court in New York.

Announcement that some of the airlines whose mail contracts were canceled intended to seek redress in the courts came shortly after the Senate voted, 48 to 25, to take up the Black-McKellar bill revising the air-mail laws.

Apparently confused as to what course President Roosevelt wished followed in the air-mail situation, the Senate spent the afternoon apathetically debating the bill. Dur-

3 Reformatory Inmates Escape

Petersburg Fugitives Take Roadster of Justice Department.

Department of Justice agents, Metropolitan police and Virginia troopers are patrolling District and State roads and bridges, on the alert for three prisoners who escaped in a Department of Justice roadster yesterday afternoon from the Federal Reformatory at Petersburg, Va.

Porter Pickle, 24; Bernie Head, 19, and Raymond Henry, 22, were described as the men who broke jail by J. M. Curran, record clerk. A radio lookout sent by Washington police said the trio, wearing uniforms of khaki pants and blue shirts, are automobile thieves. The Department of Justice offered $50 reward for each of the men.

The detention camp is more or less on an honor system, authorities said.

Department of Justice officials said the car was a 1929 Buick, black body and tan top, bearing U. S. D. J. license 601.

District police reported the men might be armed, but the authorities at the camp believed they were not.

Auto Body Plant Strike Is Ended

Nash Production Is Freed; Workers Get Pay Raise.

Milwaukee, April 17 (AP).—Employes of the Seaman Body Corporation today voted 794 to 224 to end the strike, which for seven weeks has tied up production of Nash automobiles.

The vote opens the way for 4,700 workers of three factories to resume production, beginning tomorrow.

Employes of Nash plants at Racine and Kenosha several days ago accepted terms offered by the companies. The Seaman workers first rejected the new compromise. The workers obtained a pay raise of approximately 10 per cent, with a minimum of 50 cents an hour. The scales in the three plants before the strike had ranged from 42 to 48 cents an hour.

Settlement was accomplished by the employers and 16 labor unions after negotiations of the automobile labor board had failed.

Factor Loses Fight to Avoid English Trial

U. S. Court Dismisses Writ to Prevent Extradition; May Pass Insull.

Chicago, April 17 (AP).—Somewhere out over the Atlantic three weeks hence, John Factor and Samuel Insull may pass each other bound for the courts of justice in different lands.

Factor's three-year fight against extradition to England on $7,000,000 stock fraud charges, a battle interrupted by two kidnapings and marked by a dozen spectacular court fights, today reached its finale.

Although Judge Sullivan's order left only the remote possibility of intervention by the State Department, Factor still succeeded in keeping out of jail.

A hurried telephone call to Joseph B. Keenan, Assistant Attorney General, at Washington, brought a decision that Factor might remain in a hotel room under Government guard.

"If Mr. Factor were placed in jail with other prisoners he would be murdered," declared Defense Attorney G. Gale Gilbert. "Criminals have plenty of reason to hate him."

Gilbert referred to Factor's testimony in sending Roger Touhy and three of his gangsters to prison for 99-year terms for kidnaping.

Factor, a native of Hull, England, who immigrated here at the age of 12 and became a broker, is wanted for allegedly receiving $7,000,000 which he knew to be fraudulently obtained in connection with mining stock deals in London during the late twenties.

Officials said Factor's return probably would be started within three weeks.

Historic Trees To Be Planted

Washington and Johnson Kin to Take Part on Saturday.

Descendants of George Washington and Andrew Johnson will join with the D. A. R., Boy Scouts, various State societies and the National Nut Tree Planting Council in the Parade of States, which will feature tree-planting ceremonies in the National Historical Grove, in Anacostia Park, Saturday at 4 p. m.

Mrs. Eleanor Washington Howard, last member of the Washington family born at Mount Vernon; Mrs. Augustine J. Todd, descendant of Samuel Washington, and Miss Margaret Johnson Patterson, of Greenville, Tenn., great-granddaughter of President Johnson, will present Mrs. Russell William Magna, president general of the D. A. R., with trees from ground associated with their illustrious ancestors.

They will participate in the parade, followng their State banners. Later, donors from 24 States will present 50 trees from historic grounds as permanent markers, to the National Historic Grove. Two centuries of American history will be preserved in this manner.

Struck by Street Car, Man Dies in Hospital

William S. Harvey, 45, colored, of the 500 block of N street northwest, died yesterday at Freedmen's Hospital after being struck by a street car Friday.

Corn for Dove of Peace

"Let Us Have Harmony," G. O. P. Watchword as Campaign Nears; So Congressional and National Committees Mute Trumpets of Party Discord.

By Raymond Clapper.

Doves are circling over the divided Republican camp and they are expected to bring harmony between quarreling factions in time to make possible a united front in the Congressional campaign.

Peace negotiations are going on between the Republican National committee and the Joint Congressional committee after a protracted period of strained relations.

The joint committee was set up by House and Senate leaders as a vehicle for conducting the coming campaign after disagreements arose between Senatorial leaders and Everett Sanders, chairman of the Republican National committee.

Feeling grew sharp between Sanders and Senator Daniel O. Hastings, chairman of the Senatorial wing of the joint committee. Hastings, in announcing the formation of the joint committee, issued his statement without consulting Sanders, it is said, and made it clear that he expected no help from the National committee.

However, the Senators have encountered difficulty in raising money to wage their campaign. The also have aroused criticism among party leaders because of the impression of discord which has been given to the rank and file of the party.

After a number of conferences, feelers have been sent out to members of the executiv committe of th Republican National Committee suggesting a special meeting at which a declaration of harmony could be promulgated. Whether sentiment will favor such a meeting or incline toward a less spectacular means of making peace is uncertain as yet. But the peace is to be arranged, in any event.

At the same time, the effort to oust Everett Sanders as National chairman was said among party leaders to have subsided. He is ill at the moment, but the expectation is that as son as he has recovered he will lend a hand to help in the election of Senators and Representatives.

George F. Getz, treasurer of the National committee, a broad-shouldered Chicago coal man, is expected to understake to raise money for the Congressional fight, beginning about July 1. A suggestion from members of the joint committee that Getz go to work immediately on money raising for the Congressional campaign was rejected, it is understood.

It is believed in some quarters that former President Hoover has aided in pacifying the situation. Among politicians here, his recent sightseeing tour through the midwest is viewed as having been a political scouting trip. Reports here are that National committee matters were discussed between him and some committee members whom he met en route. In any event, some of his friends became active immediately in opposing any upset in the Republican National chairmanship.

Theodore in Spotlight.

At the same time, Theodore Roosevelt, bustling son of the redoubtable Teddy, has moved into the spotlight as a potential leader of the younger Republicans. He became president of the National Republican Club last night, and in an address, denounced the Administration of his distant cousin as "reactionary and un-American." Without outlining a prospective platform upon which to revive the Republican party, Mr. Roosevelt declared the party must bring young men and women to the front and develop "liberal policies" to meet economic problems.

Belief is general in Washington that Gov. Roosevelt is looking to the future. His recent interest in the National chairmanship vanished quickly when it was pointed out that such a post might restrict his own opportunities. Some here believe he may appear as a candidate for Governor of New York, and others expect that eventually he will be a factor in the National situation.

40 Pct. Slash In Tobacco Tax Urged in House

come taxes upward, and increasing estate and corporate levies.

His reply to House critics was taken up by Senator George W. Norris (Republican), Nebraska, who praised the Senate version of the bill and denounced House statements on Senate changes as "discourteous."

"Viewed as a whole, the Senate bill has the same purpose as the House bill, namely, to prevent tax avoidance," said Senator Harrison. "Although it is true that a large amount of additional revenue will be obtained, it is obtained mainly from stopping loopholes rather than from increasing rates, and for the most part will be obtained in the fiscal year 1936, rather than in the next fiscal year ending June 30, 1935."

$480,000,000 Expected.

Revised estimates of the first full year returns on the new levies, he said, bring total expected proceeds to $484,000,000, allowing for $18,000,000 in deductions from repeal of nuisance taxes.

If House and Senate conferees fail to work out a satisfactory substitute for the 3 cents a pound coconut and sesame oil tax imposed by the Senate, and the 5 cents a pound tax asked by the House, he intimated a joint resolution may be offered to ease the tax where it hits the Philippine Islands.

Munson Line Named In Bankruptcy Action

New York, April 17 (AP).—An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in Federal court today against the Munson Steamship Line. Three creditors were signatories. Counsel for the company said the petition was a "complete surprise," and added that it would be contested.

"Our company is absolutely solvent," declared Frank C. Munson, president of the line.

Ten o'Clock Club Bills 2 Attractions

Ted Shawn, Austin Conradi to Give Recitals.

For the benefit of the organization's sustaining fund, the directors and officers of the Ten o'Clock Club are presenting two April attractions of interest to music lovers. The first is a piano recital by Austin Conradi, of Baltimore, to be given tomorrow evening in the clubhouse at 1603 K street.

Mr. Conradi will play four major works, the chromatic fantasia and fugue of Bach, Beethoven's "Waldstein" sonata, the gigantic B minor sonata of Liszt and Chopin's sonata in B-flat minor.

The second attraction is a program by the American dancer, Ted Shawn, who will appear with his company of male dancers in the Shubert-Belasco Theater, Sunday evening, April 29.

James Lucien Duffey Dies in Seat Pleasant

James Lucien Duffey, 69, died yesterday in Seat Pleasant, Md., at the home of his brother-in-law, George N. Palmer.

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Sarah Pagett, of Alexandria, and several nephews and nieces. Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m., Friday, from Palmer's residence. Burial will be at Addison Chapel.

on his world revolution plots, fomenting uprising in numerous countries, all directed from his headquarters, with himself as the world's arch-revolutionist.

Plans Exit Today.

An inspector from the secret police talked with Trotzky half an hour tonight, and on leaving said the exiled Communist agitator intended to depart for an unknown destination tomorrow.

"He is not going tonight," the officer said, on leaving the darkened villa, "but probably will leave tomorrow."

The inspector evidently was familiar with the villa, because three wolfhounds guarding the premises allowed him to enter without their customary barking and snapping.

Trotzky's retainers at the villa said he definitely was not returning to Prinkipo, an island off Istanbul, Turkey, where he lived in the first years of his exile after a split with Josef Stalin and other leaders in Moscow.

Lights Out Early.

A horde of newspapermen and cameramen prepared to camp around the villa all night. Movie men pitched spotlights ready to flash on the door and grounds if Trotzky emerges. The village lights were extinguished at 9 p. m., plunging the dense thicket around the villa in complete darkness.

Trotzky easily would be able to elude the watchers if he desired, because the villa's doors open on two streets and there is a path through the garden which traverses the thicket, joining the highway near a cemetery.

Trotzky's big black limousine was prepared for travel earlier in the evening and parked behind the villa, presumably for early departure. He was expected to head south pending fuller arrangements for his next move.

Senate Acts Today On Sugar Control

G. O. P. Leader Objects to Hasty Consideration.

Senate leaders decided yesterday to take up the sugar control bill today after it developed that Republican leader McNary would object to unanimous consent to take it up out of order, according to the Associated Press.

The bill was reported formally to the Senate yesterday. McNary said, while he realized speed was essential to dispose of the bill before the planting season progressed much further, Senators should have time to study it.

He said he would have no objection to consideration today. Senator Costigan (Democrat), Colorado, coauthor of the legislation, read telegrams from sugar-beet growers urging immediate action.

Girl, 20, Borrows Rifle, Kills Herself

Clarksburg, W. Va., April 17 (Spl.).—After borrowing a rifle from a neighbor with the explanation that her father wanted to kill hogs with it, Miss Rose Whitehair, 20, went into a meadow near her home at Flemington today and killed herself with a shot in the forehead.

Magistrate Homer Waller, acting coroner, pronounced her death a suicide and said no inquest would be necessary. No motive is known for the act. The girl was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Whitehair. Besides the parents, six sisters and a brother survive.

Mrs. Siler to Be Buried.

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 17 (Spl.).—Mrs. Joseph Siler, 82, lifelong resident of Berkeley County, who died at her home in Vanclevesville yesterday, will be buried tomorrow.

Trotzky's Admission To U. S. Uncertain

State Department officials yesterday declined to say definitely whether Leon Trotzky would be permitted asylum if he desired to come to the United States.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull said no intimation had been received, officially or otherwise, that Trotzky desired to come here. If the request were made, Hull said, it would be studied as an individual case on its merits.

Hull explained that treaties and agreements with countries regarding granting of asylum to political exiles differed materially. He could not say how a request from Trotzky for asylum here would be handled until the case had been received.

Holstein Group Meets May 16

Maryland Breeders Expect 100 in Frederick.

Frederick, Md., April 17 (Spl.).—The annual meeting and banquet of the Maryland State Holstein Association will be held at the Francis Scott Key Hotel May 16. About 100 owners and breeders of holstein cattle from Maryland and adjacent States are expected.

J. Homer Hemsberg, Middletown, president, will preside.

The executive committee will meet May 2 to make final plans and also discuss plans for the forty-ninth annual National Holstein Association convention in Baltimore June 4 to 7. It will be the first time the National organization has met in Maryland and delegates will attend from 46 States, the District of Columbia and Canada. Trips to Washington and points near Baltimore, the annual banquet and other entertainment will be planned. The executive committee of the Frederick County Holstein Association has selected August 1 for the annual field day for Frederick, Washington, Carroll and Montgomery Counties.

14 Maryland Schools Enter Safety Parade

Hagerstown, Md., April 17 (Spl.).—School safety patrols from 14 schools in Hagerstown and Washington County, having between 200 and 250 members, will participate in the Safety School parade in Washington, April 28. White belts and badges will be worn by patrol members.

School safety patrols were first organized in the schools here several years ago following a series of accidents in which pupils were struck by automobiles. The Police Department and the American Automobile Association cooperated in training the patrolmen. Since the patrols were introduced there have been no fatal accidents.

Staples Hands Down Slot Machine Ruling

Richmond, April 17 (AP).—Abram P. Staples, newly appointed attorney general of Virginia, ruled yesterday that any type of slot machine which delivers a greater quantity of merchandise on any one play that it does on another is a violation of the law and should not be licensed.

The declaration was contained in a reply to George H. Marshall, city attorney of Martinsville, Va., who had asked for clarification of laws concerning slot machines.

M. E. Church Group To Meet in Norfolk

Norfolk, Va., April 17.—The twenty-first annual two-day session of the Portsmouth-Newport News district conference of the M. E. Church South will open at the High Street Methodist Church in Franklin tomorrow at 9 a. m.

Dr. L. S. Flournoy, presiding elder of the district, will preside. The Rev. J. W. Dixon will report on church extension and finance and the Rev. Edgar A. Potts, pastor of Oxford Methodist Church, Suffolk, will report on Christian education.

Rites Set Today For Mrs. Rinker

Middletown Woman Died in Winchester.

Middletown, Va., April 17 (Spl.).—Funeral services will be conducted here tomorrow afternoon for Mrs. Frieda N. Rinker, 51, wife of Roger M. Rinker, of Middletown, who died in Winchester. The rites will be held from Grace Methodist Episcopal Church South, with the Rev. W. P. Saunders officiating.

Mrs. Rinker was a native of Germany, coming to the United States when she was 12 years old. She was an active member of the Southern Methodist Church and prominent in the work of the choir and Woman's Missionary Society.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. Rinker is survived by one son, Charles A. Rinker, and one brother, Oscar Neidhardt, of New York City.

Cannon's Plea For Acquittal Turned Down

there ensued some three hours of debate over the defense request that the court instruct the jurors to find Cannon and his former secretary innocent.

Attorney M. J. Fulton began it, on behalf of Miss Burroughs. At the top of his voice, his massive frame quivering with emotion, the Virginia lawyer cried that the Government had failed to prove conspiracy, had failed to prove his client had any knowledge of any contributions other than those reported to Congress, and finished by declaring that the "wash" transaction in which the defendant traded checks for $18,000 was actually "evidence of honesty."

Wilson, who followed, put a different interpretation on that transaction. He styled it "a common, garden variety of check kite."

"The pair of them didn't have $500 between them," the assistant United States attorney declared, "as far as the accounts on which the checks were drawn are concerned.

"Yet at the time of this incident of February 11, 1929, Congress was about to learn of Jameson's contributions. He had been called upon by an investigating committee for a list of them.

"Got Together on Report."

"So Bishop Cannon and Miss Burroughs got together on a report, and to make it look right they swapped checks. The headquarters committee account had an overdraft when the transaction began, and the bishop's account had one when they finished.

"And this took place at a moment when the pair of them were soliciting contributions for a phoney deficit.

"It is an incident that reeks of a partnership in crime."

The prosecutor brought out that at this time Bishop Cannon actually had thousands of dollars in other banks, but was pleading with Jameson and other large contributors for additional funds.

Robert H. McNeill, chief of the defense counsel, then launched upon a final effort to persuade the court to direct a verdict of not guilty.

There was no evidence, he maintained, that Jameson contributed to the "Headquarters Committee, Anti-Smith Democrats;" none that Miss Burroughs knew of the extent of his contributions or failed to report those of which she was aware.

Bitterness of Fight Cited.

"We forget the bitterness of those times," McNeill said. "Men were taking their political and social lives in their hands when they opposed the standard bearer of their party. It was a real revolution, and for Bishop Cannon to have revealed everything about the contributions made to him would have been to destroy his friends and himself."

He declared, however, that if Cannon had reported the entire Jameson contribution of $65,300, "the wolves wouldn't have been at his heels."

"Because he told the truth, he now is pilloried before the country as a criminal," McNeill shouted.

The transfer of checks against nonexistent balances on February 11, 1929, he described as "a bookkeeping situation."

No one, he said, had been wronged, yet the Cannon case already "has cost $200,000."

"A yellow dog in a dirty alley," McNeill concluded, wouldn't be subjected to the treatment accorded his client.

Perjury May Be Charged to Wirt

6 Witnesses Deny That They Heard 'Revolt' Plot Discussed.

guests denied Tugwell's name had been mentioned.

The six witnesses and outstanding statements in their testimony were:

"Wirt Talked All the Time."

Miss Alice Barrows, of the Office of Education of the Interior Department, and hostess at the dinner:

"Mrs. Wirt came to me the day before the hearing opened and asked me to give her the names of the guests because she said Dr. Wirt could not remember them. The dinner was not a success because Dr. Wirt talked all the time."

Miss Hildegarde Kneeland, head of the economics division of the Bureau of Home Economics of the Agriculture Department:

"Dr. Wirt was distinctly not seeking information. He was giving it. His statements that I discussed Dr. Tugwell's theories are untrue. I have never read anything Dr. Tugwell has written, and I have never talked with him."

Miss Mary Taylor, editor of Consumers' Guide, Agriculture Department publication:

"Nothing was said about Russia. Nothing was said about Kerensky. Nothing was said about overthrowing the social order. Tugwell's name was not mentioned."

Laurence Todd, correspondent for Tass, Soviet news agency:

"It was a most wearying experience. Dr. Wirt was content to do all the talking and he did it. None of the things quoted by him in his testimony was said."

Robert W. Bruere, head of the industrial relations board of the textile industry:

"There was no conversation. There was a monologue occasionally unsuccessfully interrupted. Dr. Wirt's implications constitute slander."

David Cushman Coyle, member of the board of review of the Public Works Administration:

"I stayed awake during the whole evening and I heard none of the statements Dr. Wirt said were made."

The committee will meet in executive session today to determine what further steps, if any, will be taken.

Same Movie Atmosphere.

The hearing did not attract quite so large a crowd as attended the session when Wirt testified. The same atmosphere prevailed, however, with motion pictures cameras, microphones, flashlights, reserved seats giving it a theatrical flavor.

Dr. Wirt arrived early, alone. He took a seat in the fifth row and remained there until his counsel, James A. Reed, former Senator from Missouri, appeared. Then he sat with Reed in the front row. The six witnesses sat at the other end of the same row.

The hearing opened with a squabble between Democratic and Republican members of the committee. Reed asked the committe to put in the record telegrams from Gary citizens declaring that Wirt had not been jailed during the war for pro-German activities.

Chairman Alfred L. Bulwinkle (Democrat), North Carolina, made this charge on the floor of the House last week and retracted it Monday. Bulwinkle told Reed the matter was closed.

Republican members demanded that the telegrams go in the record. They were barred by a roll call vote, three Democrats to two Republicans.

Representative Harold McGugin (Republican), Kansas, a member of the committee, moved that Tugwell, Milburn A. Wilson, head of the Subsistence Homestead Division; Dr. Robert Kohn, head of the Emergency Housing Corporation; Dr. Frederic C. Howe, consumers' counsel for the AAA; Secretary Wallace and Gen. William I. Westervelt, formerly of the AAA, be called as witnesses. All had been mentioned by Wirt in his testimony. The motion was defeated, 3 to 2.

McGugin Again Overruled.

McGugin attempted to read a statement appended to the motion into the record, but was overruled. The statement declared Tugwell should be asked whether he is "carrying out the duties of his office in keeping with his voluminous writings and statements in defending the communistic system of Soviet Russia, which included the statement that our Constitution, Federal and State, and statutes needed modification to the point of destruction and rebeginning."

"I want to know from Frederic Howe," McGugin's statement continued, "if he is following the same policy of public service as he followed when he was commissioner of immigration at Ellis Island and from which position he was forced to resign because he chose to defend anarchists rather than to deport them, as was his sworn duty under the law."

Another McGugin motion, defeated by a vote of 3 to 2, asked that directors of the Tennessee Valley Authority be called as witnesses. Also he wanted Secretary Ickes and Harry L. Hopkins, head of the Emergency Relief Administration, to testify.

He said he believed formation of business corporations by the TVA was unconstitutional and Ickes and Hopkins had violated the law in buying stock in such corporations with Public Works funds.

Spectators applauded McGugin's efforts.

"There will be no demonstration," Bulwinkle said, pounding his gavel.

"There will be over the country," McGugin retorted.

Wirt Denied Voice.

Representative Frederick R. Lehlbach (Republican), New Jersey, moved that Wirt be called to the stand to refute the jail charges. The motion was lost, 3 to 2.

McGugin moved that Reed be permitted to question witnesses, the motion being defeated by the usual 3-to-2 vote.

She was greeted by a score of cameramen's flash bulbs, and the motion picture cameras buzzed.

Speaking confidently, Miss Barrows told the committee she had been in the Office of Education since 1919 and that she had been Wirt's secretary from 1914 to 1917, when the educator was assisting in reorganizing the New York City schools.

"I have always considered Dr. and Mrs. Wirt as among my oldest, most sincere and most devoted freinds," she said. "When Dr. Wirt made his charges last Tuesday, I was stunned by such incredible action on the part of one whom I had always considered a friend."

Miss Barrows said she invited Dr. Wirt to her home and invited the others whom she thought would be interested in hearing his educational theories.

"But the dinner was not a success," she said. "Dr. Wirt talked nearly all the time. Anyone who knows him knows his talking ability. He talked continuously on money until 11 o'clock."

In answer to a question, Miss Barrows said the names of Tugwell, Wallace and President Roosevelt were not mentioned. She said Miss Kneeland "managed to break through" and objected to Wirt's idea that the country should return to conditions existing in 1926.

Says She Saw Mrs. Wirt.

Miss Barrows declared that the day before Wirt testified, her hair dresser telephoned her it was important for her to come to his establishment at 4 o'clock. She said she went to the place and was told that a woman who did not wish to go to her office wished to see her. She said she went upstairs and found Mrs. Wirt.

She said Mrs. Wirt told her: "I wanted to see you because Dr. Wirt is much concerned over the fact that there was a newspaper reference to that party in Virginia. He wants you to know that the papers didn't get it from him. But he will have to give the names of the people there.

"Now he feels that if he tells the committee immediately that he attended the dinner and gives the names of all the people there, then the whole thing will be out of the way in the very beginning and he can go on to the real testimony, but the difficulty is that he can not remember some of the names and he is afraid that if he hesitates over the names or stumbles over them, then you will be called, and he is determined that you shall not appear before the committee. And, so he wants me to get the full list from you."

Miss Barrows said she told Mrs. Wirt that she did not mind being called before the committee. She said she gave Mrs. Wirt the names. She said Mrs. Wirt told her that Dr. Wirt did not intend to give the names of the people he was accusing.

The witness said she went directly to her home and that half an hour later Mrs. Wirt appeared there. She said Mrs. Wirt told her she was not sure she had the names correctly and that she took them again. She said Mrs. Wirt insisted Wirt would not mention Bruere's name. Miss Barrows said that giving Mrs. Wirt the names might seem naive but that she had no idea how Wirt would use them.

Reads Wirt's Letters.

Miss Barrows then read into the record a letter sent her by Wirt April 4, less than a week before the hearing started. The letter told her that the writer was quite sure he would be asked about the dinner. He told her that he wished it understood that his relationship with her concerned purely educational matters. He referred to a request that she invite Coyle to the dinner.

He pointed out that he wished to discuss economic matters with Coyle and recalled that Bruere had constantly interrupted the after-dinner conversation by insisting that school matters be discussed.

During the testimony of Miss Barrows and during the entire four hours of the hearing Wirt sat directly behind the witnesses gazing at the floor.

Miss Barrows said she was present all the time and that she heard no such conversation as that quoted by Wirt.

"We all just sat and listened," she said. "Wirt went into all the monetary theories since the beginning of time and then went into the future. Honestly, I don't know just what he was discussing. I was exhausted before he was through."

Miss Kneeland, the witness said, "got out exactly one sentence and she was unable to say anything more because Dr. Wirt went right on talking." The one sentence, Miss Barrows said, was the one objecting to going back to conditions as they existed in 1926.

Committee members asked Miss Barrows why anyone should object to going back to 1926 conditions.

Uninformed of 1926.

"My recollection is very vague about conditions in 1926," she said.

Lehlbach asked her if there was but little unemployment then.

"I don't have the labor figures," she said.

"Weren't farm prices higher then?"

"Farm prices are not my specialty."

McGugin asked her if she would have invited Bruere if she had known he had defended the I. W. W. and had been a critic of the Department of Justice during the Wilson Administration.

"I would invite Mr. Bruere to any party," she replied positively.

McGugin asked if she knew these things about Bruere.

"I am sorry, I didn't have the past history of all my guests," she replied.

McGugin quoted an interview given by Adolph A. Berle, jr., to the Princetonian, a Princeton University publication, in which he said he had been present when the Kerensky statement was made that Wirt was being "kidded." Miss Barrows said Berle was not present at the dinner.

At this point the committee broke into the most violent of its arguments. It appeared for a moment that McGugin and Representative John J. O'Conner (Democrat), New York, might come to blows.

McGugin referred to the fact that Miss Barrows and other witnesses had conferred with Bulwinkle before testifying.

"False," Cries McGugin.

"Wirt and Reed have been constantly in McGugin's office since last week," O'Conner said.

"That's just as false as some of the statements you make on the floor," McGugin shouted.

Bulwinkle said the committee would attempt to conduct the hearing on the basis of "common decency."

"What we need is some common honesty," McGugin said. "You should confine yourselves to the truth."

The argument was conducted in loud tones. Finally McGugin said Wirt had never been in his office, but Reed had been there.

The crowd applauded as Miss Barrows left the stand.

Miss Kneeland was called next. Small, blonde, wearing a blue tailored suit and a small hat, she smiled as the photographers took dozens of pictures. She said she had been in the Agriculture Department since 1924 and that she had not met Wirt until the night of the dinner.

"It was impossible for me or anyone else present to take any considerable part in the conversation," she said. "Someone asked Dr. Wirt a question about his educational system. From then on the evening was his. I made several attempts to bring others into the talk, but at no time did I engage in what could be called a conversation."

Miss Kneeland said she had never met Tugwell until February 16, and then she was introduced to him in Wallace's office.

It was Miss Kneeland, according to Wirt's testimony, who expounded at length the Tugwell theories and quoted copiously from his writings.

Miss Kneeland said she had not met Wallace, nor read anything he had written up to the time of the dinner. She said she did object to Wirt's statement that the country should return to 1926 conditions.

Russia Not Discussed.

"I do not remember Soviet Russia having been discussed during the evening," she said. "There was no discussion about overthrowing the Government or the established American social order. Dr. Wirt was distinctly not seeking information. He was giving it."

Miss Kneeland said no one made the "middle of the stream" statement quoted by Wirt and that the name of Kerensky was not mentioned.

She gave an affirmative answer to a question of whether she believed the Government should take over business and agriculture if this action would bring about greater prosperity.

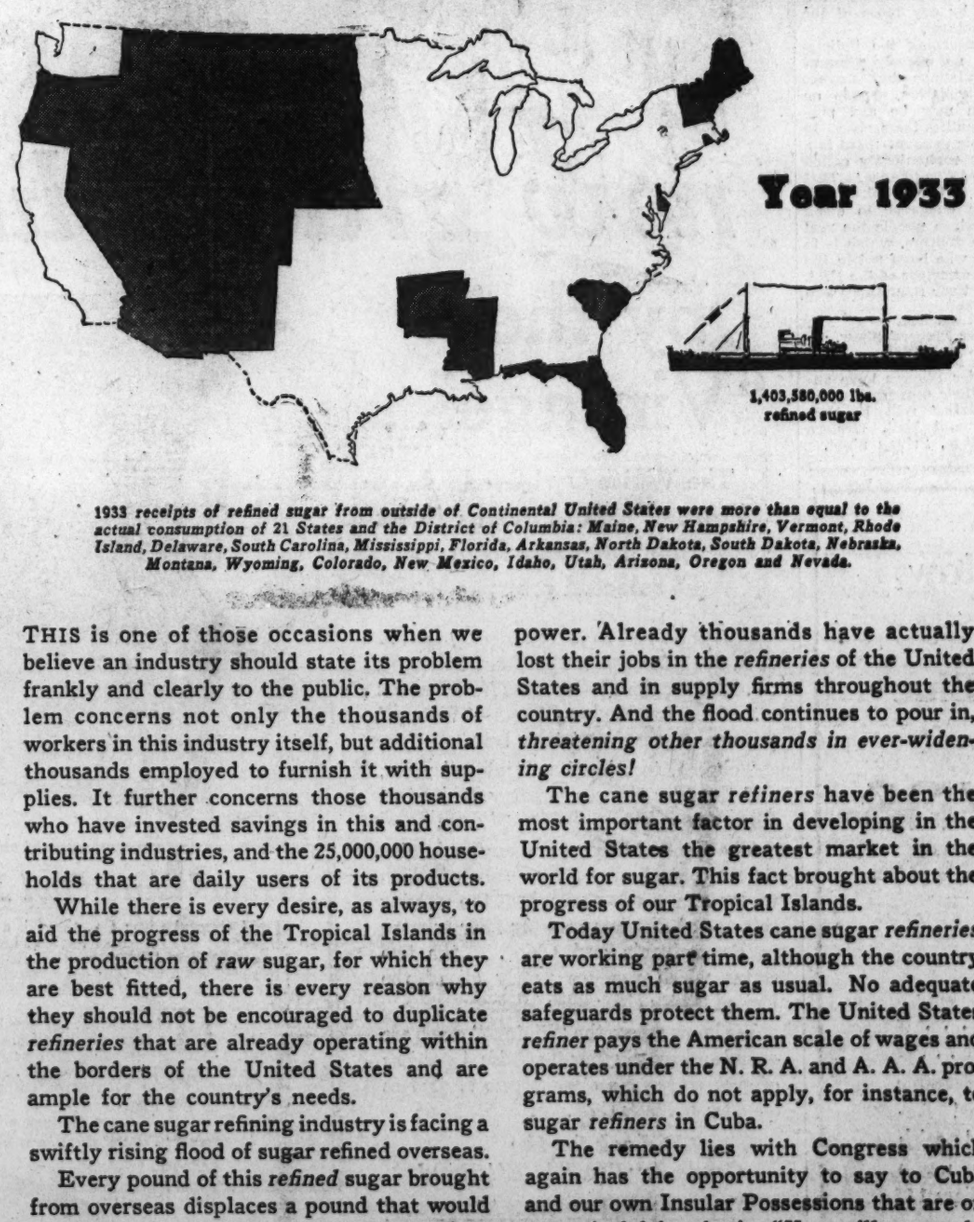
Factories in Tropics Throw Men Here Out of Jobs!



1933 receipts of refined sugar from outside of Continental United States were more than equal to the actual consumption of 21 States and the District of Columbia: Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, Delaware, South Carolina, Mississippi, Florida, Arkansas, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico, Idaho, Utah, Arizona, Oregon and Nevada.

THIS is one of those occasions when we believe an industry should state its problem frankly and clearly to the public. The problem concerns not only the thousands of workers in this industry itself, but additional thousands employed to furnish it with supplies. It further concerns those thousands who have invested savings in this and contributing industries, and the 25,000,000 households that are daily users of its products.

While there is every desire, as always, to aid the progress of the Tropical Islands in the production of raw sugar, for which they are best fitted, there is every reason why they should not be encouraged to duplicate refineries that are already operating within the borders of the United States and are ample for the country's needs.

The cane sugar refining industry is facing a swiftly rising flood of sugar refined overseas.

Every pound of this refined sugar brought from overseas displaces a pound that would otherwise have been refined in the United States. Every pound admitted reduces American payrolls and American purchasing power. Already thousands have actually lost their jobs in the refineries of the United States and in supply firms throughout the country. And the flood continues to pour in, threatening other thousands in ever-widening circles!

The cane sugar refiners have been the most important factor in developing in the United States the greatest market in the world for sugar. This fact brought about the progress of our Tropical Islands.

Today United States cane sugar refineries are working part time, although the country eats as much sugar as usual. No adequate safeguards protect them. The United States refiner pays the American scale of wages and operates under the N. R. A. and A. A. A. programs, which do not apply, for instance, to sugar refiners in Cuba.

The remedy lies with Congress which again has the opportunity to say to Cuba and our own Insular Possessions that are on a tropical labor basis, "You will grow the sugar, but our workmen in the United States will refine it."

"Men are never so likely to settle a question rightly as when they discuss it freely."

Cummings Key To "Freedom" Is Cooperation

Real Liberty Gained by Aiding Social Order, Is Theory.

Charlottesville, Va., April 17 (AP).—Man's most abundant liberty is found not in self-assertion, but in cooperation with the social organization, Homer S. Cummings, Attorney General of the United States, told the school of law of the University of Virginia tonight.

Delivering the second speech in a series of three which will be concluded tomorrow night, the Attorney General said "we should regard liberty as a correlative of justice, and justice as both an instinct and an institution. In any era of change the instinct for justice is a more important factor in determining the relation of law to liberty than is the formal substance of any legal system."

His subject was "Liberty Under Law."

"Surely, now that life has become much more cooperative in character," he said, "it is logically sound to think of liberty in both its collective and individual aspects and to recognize new social rights and the necessities that call for fresh definitions. The increasingly relational character of society is compelling us, if we would attain a true measure of social or individual justice and liberty, to attach a public interest to activities which heretofore we regarded as purely individual and private.

"Unquestionably, in the wide field of social, political and economic readjustments, the law must play its part in the protection of liberty; and it does so with far greater success than its critics realize. Nevertheless it need not be the only part. Despite certain current doubts as to the value of the outcome of 'planned economy,' 'economic statesmanship,' 'self-government in business,' 'association,' 'consociation,' 'voluntary covenants,' 'codes,' or 'Blue Eagle liberties,' they, as well as law, can be means of achieving and protecting liberty."

Norfolk Man Held By Federal Agents In Fake Coin Plot

Norfolk, Va., April 17 (AP).—Federal and city officers raided the home of Wilbur Green here today and arrested Green on a charge of possessing, manufacturing and selling counterfeit quarters.

Search failed to reveal molds for making the spurious coins.

At a hearing before U. S. Commissioner Harry A. Brinkley, Green was ordered held under $6,000 bond after Robert E. Morrison and William J. Crow, previously arrested on the charge of passing counterfeit quarters, had testified they had bought 20 of the coins from Green for $2.

4½ Years Given In Shooting Case

Leesburg, Va., April 17 (Spl.).—Robert Longerbeam, 26, of Philomont, changing his former plea of not guilty in a charge of shooting and fatally wounding Henry Mercer, 32, to guilty of manslaughter, was sentenced to four and a half years in the State Penitentiary by Judge J. R. H. Alexander, in Loudoun County Circuit Court today.

The shooting occurred on December 23, 1933, in front of Longerbeam's house. Mercer died the following morning.

Col. Roosevelt Hits New Deal As Step Toward Despotism

man or that concern. He sounds when he talks like a German drill-sergeant addressing a group of recruits."

Asserting the National Republican Club intends to "fight to the uttermost" any movement toward autocracy, he said:

"The great Federal organizations that have been set on foot, such as the NRA, the AAA, &c., sweep aside State lines and extend their tentacles down into the community, prescribing the details of existence in city and in country.

Sees Regimentation.

"Liberties and privileges that were jealously guarded by our forefathers are forfeit * * * Responsibilities are being lifted from the shoulders of the people. The doors of opportunity are being closed to initiative and self-reliance. With these will go the manhood, independence and character of the people."

Asserting the "New Deal" is "confessedly an attempt to reduce the American people to a 'regimented' group," he said.

"It spells autocracy and a sheeplike people dependent on the state and subject to the will of the autocrat."

F. Trubee Davison, inaugurated as second vice president, declared that "never in our history has such colossal bureaucracy in the Nation's Capital been erected as exists today—one that is waxing fat by feeding on the taxpayer and growing in size and arrogance month by month."

Says New Deal Not Liberal.

In his address to the National Republican Club, Theodore Roosevelt said that the vital question now is the effect of New Deal policies upon constitutional rights and liberties.

"The so-called New Deal is not liberal and is not new," he said. "It is not liberal because it is confessedly an attempt to reduce the American people to a "regimented" group, submissive to the dictates of a small group or a single individual at the head of a vast bureaucracy. It would make of our citizens in every strata of society a series of cogs and wheels in a vast machine, subject to the hand that might be on the lever. It is not new, but old as history, because practically without exception its policies have been tried in the past by other nations from the days of Rome and found wanting. It is reactionary and un-American because it carries as its logical conclusion some type of autocratic government. If it is fixed upon us it predicates for the future an autocrat rather than a President.

"Foreigners see this clearly and many, some of them high in the administration of their countries, have spoken of it to me abroad and here during the last six months. I have had them say to me, 'I see that you in the United States have abandoned the parliamentary system and are about to dispense with representative government.' I have had them say to me, 'We are interested to see that you are patterning yourself on us and creating an autocratic state.'

Defends Criticism.

"Liberty of the people includes their right to criticize their own government. Any attempt to control or prohibit this criticism is a step on the road to autocracy.

"No more striking example of the violation of this principle could be given than what was attempted in the case of Col. Lindbergh. He is one of our foremost civilian aviation experts. His life has been bound up in the development of that service. He has indicated beyond the shadow of a doubt by his past actions that he dislikes publicity and that the making of money for himself personally is a secondary consideration. In spite of this, when he protested and criticized the action of the Administration in canceling the air-mail contracts a deliberate and concerted attempt was set on foot to discredit him in the eyes of the public by trying to show that he was a publicity seeker and by endeavoring to prove that his motives were base in that he had profited to an undue extent by his connection with the development of the air service.

"Equally important with free speech is a free, uncensored press.

"Resolute attempts of the press to have a guarantee of its freedom asserted in the NRA code were denied. It was stated by the President at the time 'that the recitation of the freedom of the press clause has no more place here than would be the recitation of the whole Constitution or the Ten Commandments.'

Cites Importance of Press.

"It is never unnecessary to restate a principle as important as this.

"The attitude of the press in this matter is rendered all the more pertinent because of the statements of some of those in high authority in Washington. A prominent member of the Administration, no less than the Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. Wallace, stated publicly that if the present schemes in Washington are to work there must be a 'controlled' public opinion. Controlled public opinion is censorship, no more, no less. It violates the principles of free speech and vitiates the first amendment to the Constitution.

"I have spoken of the cramping effects of Federal permits and regulations upon organizations that have great publicity value. An example is the radio. There has been for years past an increasing Federal control of this service. There is real danger that the radio may become a virtual monopoly of the party in power. The reason, of course, is self-evident. The radio companies, as they depend for their existence on permits and regulations under the control of the Administrtaion, may be fearful of the effects of permitting criticism.

"We consider as one of the basic principles of liberalism that which is provided by these amendments; namely, that every man should be given his day in court and that no one should be prejudged or denied a hearing.

Violation Charged.

"This principle was violated by the National Administration in the air-mail contracts. Suddenly and arbitrarily all contracts were canceled on allegations of fraud and collusion. There may have been those who were guilty. There certainly were those who were innocent—yet innocent suffered with the guilty through this purely arbitrary and illiberal act.

"A great development in which we ranked first among the nations was crippled and the lives of young Army aviators sacrificed in a task which they had neither the equipment nor the training to perform.

"If Government executives are to be permitted to arbitrarily condemn without a hearing, we will have gone back to the Dark Ages and feudalism.

"Executive bodies such as the NRA are now passing regulations that have the binding effect of law, but which, nevertheless, have never seen the floor of a legislative body. These regulations touch every one of us in the community, and we have to abide by them. The great Governmental organizations are usurping day by day more of the legislative functions.

"They are usurping the judicial also, for they not merely promulgate the regulations but impose penalties for violation, decide on what violation may be and pronounce the penalties themselves. In the NRA at this moment there is a branch that is euphoniously called the 'Division of Compliance.' That word compliance is a sophistry. It is used in an endeavor to cloak from the American people the real purpose of the division, which is to penalize those who have not in the opinion of the directors of the NRA complied with their regulations and theories."

since the Manchuria and Shanghai incidents, if other powers attempt to cooperate in assistance to China, whether under the guise of financial or technical assistance, ultimately such efforts almost inevitably produce political results.

"The outcome for China may be calamitous, endangering her integrity and producing a division of spheres of influence.

"Japan does not object to other powers individually negotiating with China for assistance in the fields of economics and commerce, provided such do not disturb peace and maintenance of order in East Asia.

"But if such efforts lead to a disturbance of the peace * * * Japan must object."

ing most of the time less than a dozen Senators were present.

Senator McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, said he would offer amendments to the bill to limit the contracts which may be awarded under it to a life of one year, and to provide for the appointment of a commission to study the entire aviation problem and recommend legislation to the next Congress. He would leave in the measure, however, provisions which would force a sweeping reorganization of the aviation industry.

President Roosevelt on Monday proposed the creation of a commission to study "a broad policy covering all phases of aviation and the relation of Government thereto." This plan was hailed as "a constructive movement" by Thomas A. Morgan, president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, in a telegram to Mr. Roosevelt.

Army Inquiry Is Opened.

Morgan, whose organization embraces in its membership 93 per cent of the aviation industry, told the President "it affords me genuine satisfaction to assure you of complete and cordial support."

Meanwhile at the War Department a special civilian and military board, headed by Newton A. Baker, former Secretary of War, opened its inquiry into the efficiency of the Army Air Corps. An outgrowth of Army fatilities in carrying air mail, the investigation will be restricted to "Natonal defense functions of the War Department," Secretary of War George H. Dern told the board.

"Your mission is to be a technical one, and not a political one," Secreary Dern asserted, explaining the country should be reassured if the Army Air Corps is efficient or, if it is not, steps should be taken to bring it up to a satisfactory standard.

In responding, Mr. Baker said "none of us has any preconceived opinions or prejudices" and that the effort of the group would be "to be helpful to you in the administration of this vital arm and to avoid creating embarrassments which might be prejudicial to the service."

Earlier in the day the Black Investigating Committee completed its questioning of William I. Denning, Washington lawyer, who was summoned on the initiative of Senator Warren Austin (Republican), Vermont. The latter undertook to prove through Mr. Denning that independent air lines without mail contracts had entered a conspiracy to bring about cancellation of the then existing air-mail contracts.

Requa Silent, Plans To Visit Here Today

New York, April 17 (U.P.).—Mark L. Requa, California Republican National committeeman, tonight declined to comment on Washington dispatches mentioning his name in connection with efforts of Century Airlines to obtain an air-mail contract.

"I am going to Washington on other business tomorrow and expect I shall have an opportunity to place the true facts before the Senate Air Mail Committee," Requa said.

Dr. Soule Burial Rites Today at Athens, Ga.

Athens, Ga., April 17 (AP).—The body of Dr. Andrew M. Soule, nationally known educator, was brought here today for funeral services tomorrow in the town where he served 26 years as president of the Georgia State College of Agriculture.

Dr. Soule died in Atlanta last night in his sixty-second year, a victim of pneumonia following a major operation. After the service here the funeral party will proceed to Baltimore, for burial Thursday in Druid Ridge Cemetery.

Man Gets 6 Months On Weapon Charge

Companion Also Sentenced at Charles Town.

Charles Town, W. Va., April 17 (Spl.).—William H. Cook was sentenced to six months in the county jail and was fined $50 for carrying a weapon by Justice of the Peace L. D. Walker yesterday.

Raymond Jenkins, arrested with Cook, received a $100 fine and a 30-day jail sentence for illegal possession of liquor. The men were arrested Sunday by Constable Merle E. Alger after creating a disturbance.

W. E. Uterback paid a $10 fine and a $25 enforcement fee after conviction on a charge of drunkenness. Howard Hardy and George Caniford, held on similar charges, were jailed in default of payment.

Mrs. William Gore, 65, Of Alexandria, Buried

Front Royal, Va., April 17 (Spl.). Funeral services for Mrs. William Frederick Gore, 65, of Alexandria, were held today in Nineveh Presbyterian Church, near here.

Mrs. Gore, who died Sunday in Alexandria Hospital, is survived by her husband and one son, Lawrence Gore, of Alexandria; a sister, Mrs. J. C. Gore, of Cedarville, Warren County, and a brother, Trone Hannum, of Strasburg.

Mrs. Baxter Addresses Norfolk Catholic Group

Norfolk, Va., April 17 (Spl.). members of the recently organized Norfolk court of the Catholic Daughters of America last night heard an address by Mrs. Anna M. Baxter, national director.

Mrs. Baxter told of the general work of the organization of which 100 courts own and operate their club houses. Mrs. Mary Oliver Schraudt, representing the official staff of the Charlottesville unit, was present.

Would You Pay $2.00 to Lose 50 Pounds of Fat?

Mrs. J. A. May, of Pittsboro, N. C., writes: "I took Kruschen for reducing for 3 mos. and lost 50 lbs. It's the easiest and healthiest way. I weighed 180 and now weigh only 130. I feel better—look better than ever before."

Don't let burdensome fat make you inactive, pepless and unattractive—you, too, could be a lovely, slender, animated creature if you'd only take off that excess fat with a half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts first thing every morning in a glass of hot water.

Kruschen is SAFE—that's why so many physicians prescribe it—it's actually a health treatment which establishes proper and normal body functioning thus getting rid of ugly fat without leaving skin sagging or wrinkled—it brings new energy, clearer skin and freedom from fatigue. A jar lasts 4 weeks and costs but little at any drugstore the world over. You must be satisfied with results or money back.—Advt.

Cigar Tobaccos now graded like Wines—
by their "Vintage"..
The White Owl Grade A "Vintage" Band means finest filler tobaccos from selected crops

ALL fine wines have "Vintage" years . . . 1911 for the Hocks from Rheingau . . . 1921 for the Champagnes from Rheims . . . 1924 for Medoc Clarets—"Vintage" years when they're at their best.

Tobacco, too, has its "Vintage" years, and the filler tobacco in every White Owl Cigar comes from a "Vintage" crop.

The General Cigar Company maintains a vast control system by means of which we keep a record—throughout the growing season—of districts growing filler tobacco in Pennsylvania and Ohio . . . the two states which produce nearly all of the United States cigar filler tobaccos.

We know where the "Vintage" crops are—and we buy only from the Grade A portions of such crops. No other tobacco is used in the filler of White Owls.

Look for the Grade A "VINTAGE" Band

That's why we can put a Grade A "Vintage" Band on White Owls in Washington. Now you can know for the first time what you're getting in a 5¢ cigar. A milder—full-flavored cigar—White Owl.

How White Owl Smokers are Protected

THE General Cigar Co., through a 10-year-old Crop Control System, knows the condition of tobacco-growing districts in Pennsylvania and Ohio—the two states which produce nearly all United States cigar filler tobaccos.

The amount of rainfall . . . of sunshine . . . the condition of the soil—all are recorded. From these records, it is possible to forecast every "Vintage" crop . . . and only tobaccos from such crops are purchased for White Owls.

But "Vintage" Crops alone are not enough. Under the control system—all filler tobaccos are classified into seven grades. Only the top three grades pass White Owl's strict requirements. That's why we can truthfully say—White Owls are made only from Grade A "Vintage" filler tobaccos.

At the present moment, there is enough Grade A "Vintage" filler tobacco aging in our warehouses to make over 1 billion White Owls—more than a three-year supply. That is why White Owl never has to use non-vintage filler tobaccos.

Grade A "Vintage" filler tobacco is aged from 2 to 4 years—an average of 3 years.

Today we are using in the filler of White Owls two famous Vintage crops . . . the 1931 Pennsylvania and the 1930 Ohio. Look for the Grade A "Vintage" Band.

Hobson Tells Women's Clubs Peril of Drugs

Judge Bentley Speaker at Convention Today in Baltimore.

Baltimore, April 17 (Spl.).—Addressing the thirty-fourth annual convention of the Maryland State Federation of Women's Clubs at the Lord Baltimore Hotel here today, Capt. Richmond P. Hobson, Spanish-American War hero, declared that most of the 75,000 girls who disappear from their homes in the United States each year become the slaves of narcotics.

He demanded tightening of laws regulating the sale and use of drugs, and called upon the State Federation to support the campaign to eliminate dope from the Nation.

Capt. Hobson is president of the World Narcotic Defense Association. His address marked the opening session of the State Federation. About 300 club women are in attendance.

The delegates were welcomed by Mrs. Harry O. Schloss, president of the Baltimore District Clubs, and official hostess. Mrs. Rudolph Allen, president of the federation, responded and then introduced other officers and heads of committees, who presented reports.

At noon the annual president's luncheon was held with Mrs. Allen as hostess. In the afternoon round table discussions were held under direction of Mrs. H. Mathew Gault, chairman of the federation's club institute committee.

Among speakers at the round table discussion were Judge Thomas J. S. Waxter, of the Juvenile Court of Baltimore; John Collier, United States Commissioner of Indian Affairs, and Dr. Dean Lewis, surgeon in chief at the Johns Hopkins Medical School, who spoke on "The Nature of Cancer."

Tonight a Maryland Tercentenary dinner was held at the Lord Baltimore, with Gov. Ritchie and Mayor Jackson among the speakers. A musical program was presented by members of the federation.

The principal speaker tomorrow will be Judge Fay R. Bentley, of the District of Columbia Juvenile Court.

Former Frostburg Pastor's Rites Set

Dr. W. A. Shipman Funeral to Be Held Tomorrow.

Frostburg, Md., April 17 (Spl.).—The Rev. Dr. William Alfred Shipman, 83, former pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church here, died early yesterday at his home at Johnstown, Pa., less than six days after the death of his wife, Annie Bridenbaugh Shipman.

Rites for Dr. Shipman will be held at the First Lutheran Church, Johnstown, which he built, tomorrow, at 3 p. m. The body will lay in state in the church for three hours.

Rain Delays Farm Work in Maryland

Corn Planting Time Finds Land Unprepared.

Hagerstown, Md., April 17 (Spl.). Spring plowing has been further delayed by heavy rains the last week and farm work has been set back at least a week in western Maryland.

With corn planting time approaching few farmers have their land prepared.

Nevertheless farmers are anticipating good crops. Heavy freezes and thaws have broken up the soil and parasites have been destroyed.

Uniontown, Pa., April 17 (Spl.).—H. L. Woodmansee, of Pittsburgh, was re-elected president of the Tri-State Typographical Conference at its annual meeting here.

James Orr, of Cumberland, Md., and Jay Henderson, of Wheeling, W. Va., were among the vice presidents chosen. Clyde S. Slick, Johnstown, Pa., was named secretary-treasurer.

Lewis W. Douglas Will Crown Queen of Apple Blossom Fete

Mrs. John Hay Whitney Will Reign at Shenandoah Festival in May.

By C. B. Carr.

Winchester, Va., April 17.—Lewis W. Douglas, director of the Federal Budget, will crown Mrs. John Hay Whitney, of "Llangollen," near Upperville, as Queen Shenandoah XI of the Apple Blossom Festival here early in May.

J. Pinckney Arthur, director general of the fete, made the announcement today after returning from Mrs. Whitney's home, where he, Mrs. B. B. Dutton, chairman of the committee on coronation, and Jack T. Engle, parade director, conferred on plans for the festival.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas, originally of Bisbee, Ariz., are friends of the Whitneys and have visited frequently at the Whitney estate.

Mrs. Whitney will be crowned with the same jewel-studded crown which was used to elevate Miss Patricia Dacre Morton, of Winchester, Eng., and Miss Francois May, daughter of the Belgian Ambassador to the United States, to similar royal titles. The coronation will take place the first day of the festival.

Stefansson Visions Asia-America Flight

Durham, N. C., April 17 (AP). Vilhjalmur Stefansson, noted Arctic explorer, predicts "commonplace" flying between Asia and North America in 15 years via the Arctic.

At Duke University today he described the polar area as a potential center of numerous air routes linking the three great continents north of the Equator, and said the Asia-North America flying should be an ordinary occurance "if peace and prosperity prevail."

Schools of Virginia Get $797,017 Loan

FERA Cash Is Awarded With No Strings.

Richmond, April 17 (AP).—Superintendent of Public Instruction Sidney B. Hall today announced the Federal Emergency Relief Administration had approved a maximum grant of $797,017 to Virginia public schools to assure normal terms this session.

The announcement was made after a conference with FERA officials in Washington. The money will come to Virginia as a direct grant with no payment strings attached.

Seventy-two counties will benefit. Dr. Hall emphasized that the money will not be sent to the counties in lump sums, but added that remittances will begin to go out late this week.

Indian Hospitalization Measure Is Signed

President Roosevelt yesterday signed a bill authorizing the Secretary of Interior to arrange with States for the education and social welfare of Indians, according to the Associated Press.

Indian office officials explained the legislation would permit an Indian to receive treatment at a local hospital rather than be requested to go to an Indian hospital, sometimes hundreds of miles distant.

Cotton Limit Bill Is Sent To President

First Law to Control Farm Production Is Waiting Signing.

(Associated Press.)

Only the signature of President Roosevelt is needed to put on the statute books the Nation's first Federal compulsory production control act—the Bankhead cotton bill.

The House yesterday adopted the Senate approved conference report, 235 to 105, and sent to the White House the measure to force farmers to keep cotton production in the coming crop year at 10,000,000 bales.

In the brief debate it was charged by opponents led by Representative Busby (Democrat), Mississippi, that it meant an "irretrievable surrender" of the rights of farmers to control their own production.

Chairman Jones (Democrat), Texas, of the Agriculture Committee, replied that "planless agriculture condemns our South and our farmers elsewhere to eternal poverty." Industry, he said, planned production to meet consumption needs and agriculture should do likewise.

With few exceptions the bill went to the President as the House originally passed it, the Senate having receded on its controversial proposal to exempt the first six bales from the 50 per cent tax imposed on production in excess of quotas.

Post Staff Photo.

Mrs. Henry Zoller, jr., State regent of the Maryland Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and candidate from Maryland for vice president general, is shown with the Book of Remembrance which she presented yesterday on behalf of her State chapter to Constitution Hall. The book, which commemorates the Maryland tercentenary, is bound with clasps of silver and gold donated by Maryland Daughters, and is inscribed with the names of hundreds of patriotic Maryland descendents of the Calverts.

350 Carroll Farmers Apply in Hog Program

Westminster, Md., April 17 (Spl.). L. C. Burns, Carroll agricultural agent, announced that 350 Carroll hog producers have applied for participation in the Federal corn-hog reduction program.

Final applications were received last night, with Carroll County leading the State in the number of farmers participating. The 350 applicants represent more than 90 per cent of the eligible producers.

Arm Is Amputated After Auth Crash

Westminster, Md., April 17 (Spl). Kenneth Miller, 22, of Lineboro, Carroll County, is recovering at Hanover (Pa.) Hospital from injuries received when his car collided with another operated by George L. Bupp, of York, Pa., Sunday, near Jefferson.

Miller's left arm was so badly crushed amputation was necessary. Occupants of the other machine escaped injury.

Seed Loan Applications Total $1,000 in Carroll

Westminster, Md., April 17 (Spl.). Applications for seed loans totaling more than $1,000 were received at the Carroll County emergency crop loan office, which opened here yesterday.

According to Donald E. Clark, loan supervisor, Garrett County is leading the applications for the Western Shore, while in southern Maryland Calvert County has entered the largest number of applications.

Camps and Citizens' Training Camps.

"We should realize that the rest of the world is not in love with the United States," continued the Senator, "and I am not afraid of having this country more nationally minded. Nor am I afraid of this country failing to play its part in world affairs. I want to see this country made safe for Americans."

Favors More Generals.

Senator Barbour advocated the creation of four more full generals for the Army. He said if they were authorized the pay would be that of a major general and the rank would not be permanent.

Dean Healy Speaks.

Dr. Thomas Healy, assistant dean of the Georgetown University Foreign Service School, said that under the present restricted immigration quota plans the influx of aliens was being held down to a low level, 23,000 aliens being admitted last year, while 80,000 aliens left it for their home lands.

Questions came from the audience about the standing of certain aliens. Dr. Healy stated that Einstein was not so rabidly pacifistic as he was formerly.

Mrs. F. S. Day, of Hartford, Conn., upon Dr. Healy's statement that there were 7,000,000 aliens in this country, suggested that the entire number be deported. Dr. Healy gave additional statistics showing 35,000,000 imigrants have been admitted to this country and that there are 40,000,000 persons here, either foreign born or born of one or both foreign parents.

Dr. Healy advocated new immigration laws based on the laws for naturalization, which would admit to this country only those capable of eventualy becoming citizens.

A cordial reception was given to the last two speakers, Walter Donnelly, president of the Students Council of the Georgetown Foreign Service School, and William H. Sardo of the same school. They told of student conferences held at the school on the questions of peace and war in which not a single vote was registered against adequate preparedness.

Young Donnelly expressed the opinion that the work of pacifists to enroll college students in their ranks was being successfully withstood and Mr. Sardo advocated a college league of some kind to combat these subversive movements.

$21,000 Pledged Hall.

More than $21,000 was pledged to pay off the debt on Constitution Hall in an exciting "gift hour" featured by good-natured contests between States to make the largest contribution.

Mrs. Magna, as chairman of the finance committee for Constitution Hall, pleaded with the delegates to pay off the indebtedness, about $350,000, by next March.

Mrs. Grace Lincoln Hall Brosseau, chairman of the Constitution Hall Memory Book, reported the campaign for gifts of old gold had been successful.

"Everything in the way of old gold has been received," said Mrs. Brosseau, "from fine family jewelry down to parts of spectacle rims and fillings from back teeth. Some of our dear older members have sent me their wedding rings or bits from their mothers' jewel boxes, with the message that for no other purpose would they relinquish their cherished pieces."

President Thanked.

President Roosevelt was thanked for his letter regretting his inability to address the delegates, and the United States Congress was commended for passing the Vinson-Trammell naval bill in resolutions adopted unanimously yesterday morning. The Congress also went on record unanimously as urging the appropriation of funds necessary for carrying out the purpose of the Vinson-Trammell bill.

Unanimous adoption of another resolution urging legislation to provide "an efficient Army in accord with the National defense act of 1920 and with a complete program of modernization kept the D. A. R. in its customary support of National defense.

The afternoon session was set aside for delegates to attend State meetings and other gatherings and attend the ceremonies at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington and at the tomb of George and Martha Washington at Mount Vernon.

British Budget Cuts Tax While Ignoring Debt

there is a new spirit of hope and confidence."

The estimate that the total ordinary expenditure of the government in 1933-1934 was $3,490,000,000.

The decrease in unemployment reduced payments to the idle by about $75,000,000.

The chancellor said he proposed to make no provision for the payments of war debts to the United States or the receipts of war debts from Great Britain's debtors.

He was applauded when he said, in explanation:

"Neither last year nor the year before did I make any provision for the payment of the war debt to America nor for the receipt of war debts or reparations by ourselves.

"In the absence of any further development, I propose to follow precisely the same line this year."

Estimates for Year.

He gave these estimates for the ensuing fiscal year: Total inland revenue, $1,965,000,000; total ordinary revenue, $3,636,000,000; ordinary expenditure, $3,496,500,000, and budget surplus, $145,500,000.

"This," the chancellor maintained, "is the largest surplus in ten years and enables me to begin the long-awaited process of relief from heavy burdens."

The income tax rate cut was estimated as costing the government $102,500,000 annually, but Chamberlain declared:

"I have no hesitation in saying that the relief which would confer the most direct benefit to the country and have the greatest psychological effect and impart the most immediate stimulus to trade and employment would be a reduction in the standard rate of the income tax."

British Budget Fails To Upset U. S. Figure

Great Britain's failure to include debt payment to the United States in her new budget brought no comment yesterday from the State and Treasury Departments, the Associated Press reported.

London's decision does not upset Treasury estimates on the Government's income. President Roosevelt's budget for the fiscal year of 1935 included no figure for foreign debt payments.

At the time the budget was submitted, the Treasury said that total amounts owing the United States by foreign governmens aggregated $328,000,000 in the current fiscal year which ends July 1, and $335,000,000 in the next fiscal year.

"To the extent that receipts from foreign governments exceed amounts included in the estimates will be a corresponding increase in total receipts," the Treasury said.

Great Britain paid $7,500,000 on her December 15 installment and $10,000,000 on the installment of last June 15. Her next payment is due next June 15.

Of a total foreign indebtedness of $12,710,000,000, Great Britain owes $4,636,000,000 and is $176,120,000 behind in her payments. France, the next largest debtor, owes $3,960,000,000 and is $82,308,000 behind.

Presbyterial Opens Today At Waynesboro

Delegates of 72 Churches Gather for Annual Conference.

Waynesboro, Va., April 17 (Spl.). Delegates were arriving tonight from 72 churches in Virginia and West Virginia to attend the annual session of the Lexington Presbyterial, which opens at the First Presbyterian Church here tomorrow and extends through Friday. The Lexington Presbyterial, said to be the largest in the South, is expected to attract 500 women to its conference.

Speakers include Dr. L. Wilson Jarman, president of Mary Baldwin College; Mrs. A. M. Maitland, synodical president, Richmond; Mrs. E. L. Russell, Memphis, Tenn., and Mrs. S. C. Farrier, Ching Kiang Ku, China.

The opening devotional will be conducted tomorrow afternoon by the Rev. R. W. Cousar, of the host church, to be followed by greetings from Miss Marion Arbuckle and response by Mrs. J. D. S. Brown, Staunton.

Missionary Reports Slated.

Anniversary messages will be brought from three representatives of the Woman's Missionry Union, Miss Hope Stuart, Mrs. E. A. McNully and Mrs. E. G. Wade. Mrs. C. M Hanna, Raphine, will report on "Religious Education;" Mrs. H. B. Wood, Moterey, on "Christian Endeavor and Ministerial Relief;" Miss Agnes Irvin, Lexington, on "Christian Social Service," and Mrs. C. K. Morrison, Staunton, on "Literature."

Speakers for the service tomorrow evening include Dr. H. S. Turner, Middlebrook; the Rev. C. M. Hanna, Raphine, and Dr. L. Wilson Jarman, Staunton. Observance of communion is also scheduled.

Thursday's program calls for morning, afternoon and evening sessions. Morning devotional will be conducted by Mrs. W. J. Buchanan, Waynesboro, to be followed by reports from Miss Virginia Parkins, Staunton; Mrs. C. H. Phipps, Waynesboro; Mrs. J. W. Bolen, Harrisonburg; Mrs. L. H. Paul, Lexington, and Mrs. H. McK. Smith, Staunton. Principal addresses will be made by Mrs. A. M. Maitland and Mrs. S. C. Farrior.

Dr. Blakely to Speak.

Mesages will be given in the afternoon by district chairmen, including Mrs. W. H. East, Staunton; Miss Grace Brunk, Harrisonburg; Mrs. J. W. Weathers, Lexington, and Mrs. R. W. Heavener, Hightown. Other speakers will be Mrs. Richard Hogshead, Middlebrook; Mrs. C. D. Hawpe, Lexington, and Mrs. E. L. Russell, Memphis, Tenn.

Features of the Thursday evening program will include an address on "Home Missions," by Dr. H. B. Blakely, Staunton, musical selections by Mrs. Guy Branaman, Waynesboro, and a religious pageant directed by Mrs. W. R. Davies, Waynesboro.

Reports of officers and committees will be made at the closing session Friday morning. Officers are Mrs. W. W. Sproul, Middlebrook, president; Mrs. C. S. Roller, Fort Defiance, vice president; Mrs. Frank Moore, Lexington, second vice president; Mrs. T. F. Clemmer, Middlebrook, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Glenn Yount, Harrisonburg, recording secretary, and Mrs. H. D. Deane, Fort Defiance, treasurer.

CWA Aids Virginia In School Sanitation

Richmond, April 17 (AP).—School sanitation has been improved in virtually every county in the State during the last four months, a State Department of Education report today showed.

The work was done with the aid of the Civil Works Administration.

Work to Replace Dole in Danville

City Tasks Will Be Given Jobless Seeking Food.

Danville, Va., April 17 (Spl.).—The Danville Welfare Association today announced it will end dole for jobless who apply for food and that all applicants will have to work a given number of hours in some city department.

This virtually means the city will organize its own projects until the Federal Emergency Relief program starts and enables the building up of new relief pay rolls.

City council committee chairmen today met welfare officials and were concerned over the drain on city resources since CWA projects stopped and the idle were thrown back on the city pending operation of the FERA. The conference revealed numerous instances in which men applied for cash relief without first seeking jobs. The new policy will not interfere with families whose heads are unable to work and have no means of support.

Skyline Drive Opening Delayed

Winter Bars Earlier Date Than Labor Day.

Richmond, April 17 (Spl.).—The Skyline drive between Panorama and Swifty Run Gap will not be open before Labor Day, and possibly not then, it was indicated today, because of the delays in heavy construction owing to the severe winter and abnormally deep snows.

Simultaneously, it was announced that the time limit on the work, which consists of laying heavy stone ballast on the 40 miles of scenic roadway atop the Blue Ridge Mountains has been changed to October 1 by Secretary Ickes.

Five-School Merger Proposed in Virginia

Luray, Va., April 17 (Spl.).—Proposed consolidation of five small rural schools was discussed today by the Page County School Board. The plan will be acted upon May 12.

Funeral Services Held For John F. Stevens

Fredericksburg, Va., April 17 (Spl.).—Funeral services for John F. Stevens, 64, who died Sunday at Staunton, were conducted today at 2 p. m. by the Rev. R. V. Lancaster, rector of the Fredericksburg Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Stevens is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Lizzie Burke, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Tina Clemmons, of Washington; two brothers, Charles S. Stevens, of Alexandria, and Templeton Stevens, of King George County, and a nephew, Louis Stevens, of Fredericksburg.

Docket Lacks Felonies As Virginia Court Sits

Covington, Va., April 17 (Spl.).—Without a grand jury for the first time in its history, the Alleghany County Circuit Court was convened here yesterday by Judge Benjamin Haden. No felony has been committed since the January term.

To offset this record, the civil docket is unusually heavy. According to Olin Payne, clerk, only a few of the 100 civil cases will be tried before adjournment on April 28.

Police Seek Clews In Mystery Deaths

Couple Believed Robbed, Slain and Burned.

St. Charles, Va., April 17 (AP).—With reports of a coroner's autopsy pointing toward murder, officers today were attempting to throw light on the deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Vickers in their home near Delvale, nine miles from here.

The couple died late Saturday night and their bodies were found burned inside their fire - swept home.

Investigators said they had apparently been killed, then tied inside the house and the dwelling fired. Seventeen hundred dollars, savings of the couple, are missing. Mrs. Vickers' body was found inside the house. Her husband was found dead on the doorstep, having apparently fallen through the burned entrance.

Funeral Is Set Today For Mrs. Drumheller

Covington, Va., April 17 (Spl.).—Funeral services will be held in the Baptist Church here tomorrow afternoon for Mrs. Elizabeth Drumheller, 81, who died here suddenly Sunday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. J. Robinson. She was a native of Albemarle County.

She is survived by her husband, Charles S. Drumheller; three sons, Albert Drumheller, of Cincinnati, Ohio; N. S. Drumheller, of Craigsville, Va., and Leonard Drumheller, of Washington, and two daughters, Mrs. A. J. Robinson, of Covington, and Mrs. E. N. Hiner, of Washington.

Rites Scheduled For A. G. Orndorff

Native of Virginia Died in Martinsburg.

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 17 (Spl.).—Funeral services will be conducted here tomorrow afternoon for Angelo Grandstaff Orndorff, 57, Martinsburg business man, who died unexpectedly Sunday at his home.

He was born at Star Tannery, Frederick County, Va., and moved to Martinsburg 23 years ago.

He leaves his wife, formerly Miss Fannie Keller, also of Virginia; two children by a first marriage, Mrs. Martha Kerns and Burman Orndorff, this city, two daughters by his second marriage, Misses Anna and Elsie Orndorff; two brothers, Omar Orndorff, Star Tannery, and Maynard, of Alexandria, Va., and two sisters, Mrs. Levi Fischel and Mrs. Mimie Orndorff, of Star Tannery.

Chesapeake Beach Watches 'Fire Bug'

Mystery Blazes Arouse Waterfront Residents.

Norfolk, Va., April 17 (Spl.).—Residents of Chesapeake Beach were on the alert for possible visits from firebugs tonight as a result of mysterious fires last night and Sunday night, which swept the residence of W. L. Morris and the amusement park at the beach.

Mr. Morris, who lives at the beach, was in Norfolk when notified that his bungalow had been destroyed. The fire was discovered about 8:30 p. m. by Louis Causey.

Like the casino blaze, the fire enveloped the bungalow quickly. Morris' loss, estimated at about $2,500, was partly covered by insurance.

Automatic GAS Heating Plants

$155.00 CASH INSTALLED

Every homeowner who has looked forward to heaving a sigh of relief from furnace tending for the season, can now do away with heating worries forever by taking advantage of this unusual offer! Only $155.00 installs an efficient gas heating unit in the average hot water boiler which makes it a truly Automatic Gas Heating System.

Greatly increased public interest in automatic gas heating during the last cold spell makes this offer possible, but it is limited to the month of April only.

Think what it means to you! First, the lowest price in the history of Washington. Second, the countless advantages of the only truly automatic method of heating, which means no more furnace tending, no more fuel ordering, no more fuel storing, no more ash carrying or shovel wielding.

And last but not least, when you clean house for Spring, you can clean up your basement for the last time. With no more fuel to store, no dirt to be generated by the heating plant, you can just use your basement this summer as a club room, a tap room or den.

If you wish to buy on terms the offer is just as advantageous, as explained to the left. But call DIstrict 8500 and let us give you more information NOW!

SPECIAL TERMS
$5 down no further payments until next September

Five Dollars down is all the cash you need to take advantage of this offer. Easy monthly payments which average less than 25c a day (including small additional charge for financing) can be deferred, if you wish, until the beginning of the next heating season. An accurate estimate of the cost of heating with gas is furnished in advance without obligation to you. Gas heating unit can be quickly and easily installed in less than a day.

Back To Normalcy.

Among the more disagreeable manifestations of humanity at its worst are baby movie stars, children under 12 who sing boop-a-doop songs on the radio and young men with long hair who are graduated from Harvard at the age of 15. Every so often they are propelled into the news by proud parents and there seems to be no legal way of exterminating them.

Just now Chicago has a child prodigy who, at the age of 9, is already on her way through high school. Apparently because it is unusual for a Chicago child to show intellectual prowess at an early age, a group of educators (accompanied by a battery of camera men and reporters) took her to the University of Chicago Laboratory School to study her. About all they found out from their quiz—except that she could do algebra better than reporters—was that she believed the "Vision of Sir Launfall" was "artificial" and that she thought it more fun to go roller skating than to read the incredible and impossible adventures of "Alice in Wonderland." "Things like that," she said, "don't happen." None of which strikes us as particularly prodigious, even for a 9-year-old, even in Chicago.

We are rather glad, though, that this child showed up when she did. She does not seem to be like most "prodigies." She appears, in fact, to be a normal sort of child. She has her likes and dislikes, and if she is a little quicker mentally than most children of her own age, that surely is nothing against her. In fact, we refuse to take her as a prodigy at all. She seems to have proved her normality quite readily.

For what child of 9, if really honest on the subject, is more than mildly amused by "Alice in Wonderland?" What child of that age is really deeply affected by the Arthurian legend? Not many, it is a pretty safe bet. The real prodigy would see the utter maturity in Lewis Carroll and chuckle at his deft whimsicalities, just like a grown-up. The normal child would be bewildered or bored, turning with some relief to the straightforward simplicity of elementary algebra.

Scylla And Charybdis.

The presence of the Ambassador from Soviet Russia at a convention of the Daughters of the American Revolution must have been as much of a surprise to many of the delegates as it was to an incredulous public. But the invitation to Mr. and Mrs. Troyanovsky, even though routine, was pleasantly in keeping with the liberalized attitude of the society as expressed by its president general at the opening session. The D. A. R., now holding its forty-third annual "continental congress" here, has grown to be an organization of considerable importance in our national life. The forward-looking address delivered by Mrs. Russell William Magna should do much to help it maintain that position.

Whether or not consciously directed toward modification of certain past attitudes of this society, her speech should win it many new friends without alienating old supporters. Mrs. Magna was perhaps especially constructive in saying that it was her intention to "steer a clear course on the one hand to avoid the Scylla of visionary enthusiasts who believe all that is necessary to insure peace is to disarm," while on the other hand taking care to "steer clear of that Charybdis of militarists who, inspired by motives of self-interest, on every possible occasion beat the tom-toms and call to arms."

Choice of this mid-channel course is welcome news. Other patriotic societies, too often prone to steer dangerously close to Charybdis, might, together with pacifist organizations, take heed of this sensible declaration. The presence of the Soviet Ambassador on the convention platform was equally effective testimony to the broadening scope and influence of the D. A. R. It is an organization from which the liberal attitude is naturally and instinctively expected. Apparently such expectations will henceforth not be disappointed.

More Local Power.

A number of bills designed to extend the powers of the District Commissioners are before Congress. Their purpose is to relieve that body of the interminable details involved in the administration of a modern city, and to relieve the District of the inevitable delay resulting from the present procedure. Measures which promise to be so mutually beneficial deserve careful attention.

Congress has absolute control over the National Capital. It is supposed to be governed and developed in the interests of the entire country. Not many students of government who have considered the question from all angles would deprive Congress of this prerogative, even though residents of the Capital are denied some of the advantages of local self-government. It seems desirable that the will of Congress shall be supreme in the city where the seat of Federal Government is located.

This does not mean, however, that Congress should pass through its ponderous legislative machinery every ordinance necessary for the conduct of municipal affairs. Routine questions of policy as well as administrative details might well be left in the hands of the Board of Commissioners. In urging Congress to adopt the House bill intended to extend the powers of the Commissioners "more nearly up to the standard of powers commonly exercised by municipalities throughout the country," Corporation Counsel Prettyman voices a widespread and logical desire.

Aside from the convenience of leaving routine municipal affairs to the Commissioners, this policy would accentuate the influence of local citizens in the District government. The Commissioners are always more alert to community needs than is Congress. They have a better opportunity to learn what the people of Washington desire in the line of municipal service. As a rule they realize the implications of the fact that the District is a municipality of half a million American citizens in addition to being the seat of Federal Government.

Missing The Central Issue.

By asking Congress to set up a commission to work out "a broad policy covering all phases of aviation," President Roosevelt evidently seeks to extricate this industry from the confusion into which it was plunged by cancellation of the air-mail contracts.

A major controversy has grown out of Postmaster General Farley's bungling decisions. No satisfactory adjustment of the air-mail system appears possible without a reversal of the policy adopted by the Postoffice Department. But such a course has no appeal for the Administration on the eve of the congressional elections. The President and his advisers would like to lay the issue aside until Congress reassembles next year.

In some respects this proposal might afford the most practical way out of the muddle in which the air mail has been involved. At present Congress seems disposed to punish the former carriers without making any provision to establish their guilt or innocence of the charges Mr. Farley has made against them. The whole problem of working out a permanent air-mail policy is enveloped in politics. Certainly it would be well to let partisan ardor and wild recriminations simmer down before attempting to formulate a comprehensive new program. And a commission of experts might be helpful in pointing out the general direction which development of the aviation industry should take. But in the meantime the air mail must be transported.

It has been generally agreed that this service should be taken out of the hands of the Army Air Corps as soon as possible. But the Administration has not made provision for the awarding of contracts to private operators on a sound and equitable basis. Mr. Farley is going ahead with his attempt to reward those small and inexperienced companies which have escaped condemnation through his edicts. The President merely suggests that "contracts could well be let on competitive bidding for one year or until such time as a broad policy relating to aviation as a whole is adopted."

Obviously, the Administration can not sidestep the most vital question growing out of the air-mail controversy by merely appointing a commission and postponing the development of a permanent aviation policy. A substantial group of American companies is being punished without having had a trial. Postmaster General Farley is accused of having violated the law by depriving them of their contracts almost without notice. Enactment of a law to make their punishment perpetual, with no attempt to adjudicate their cases, would probably be unconstitutional. So long as the Administration remains silent on this point, its attempt to smooth over the air-mail squabble will prove futile.

The move to create a commission of experts to work out a permanent air-mail policy is utterly inconsistent with the continued refusal to submit the charges against former carriers to adjudication. The first step in any "broad policy" on the subject must be even-handed justice to those individuals who built up the system to its former status. Every move which ignores this focal point of controversy tends only to magnify the confusion and postpone the resumption of air-mail service on a satisfactory basis.

The Booksellers' Code.

That delightful cynic, Albert Jay Nock, in his recently published diary quotes Senkowsky, a Russian critic, as saying about his own country, "We do not have a literature; we have nothing but a book trade."

Whether this Nation yet possesses a literature we do not venture to say, but it has a book trade, and a very active one. In order to have any kind of literature there must be some way of getting it before the public. This necessitates the publishing industry, which is very big and sometimes prosperous. But it also necessitates book sellers. And booksellers are the most romantic-minded of all business men. For years they have suffered from a Roger Mifflin complex and have loved books much more than shekels, which of course is admirable though of little avail when the rent is due.

Ever since O. H. Cheney investigated the book business and published, at the industry's expense, his voluminous "Economic Survey of the Book Trade," booksellers of all classes have become far more cash-register conscious. What really awakened them to their fate was the growth of cut-rate book counters in cigar and department stores. Against this competition they had a justifiable complaint. Books, published at a presumably fair price of $2.50, could be had around the corner at less than half the price. Confronted with this situation, one by one small and pleasant bookshops began to drop out of the picture.

Now comes the NRA code which prescribes that, for six months after date of publication, no book may be sold below the publisher's fixed price. It seems an eminently fair provision, for the consumer is penalized only if he must have current volumes on his table while they are still under review. And it is a hopeful sign, in these days of concentration of power, to see the Government stepping in to save the most individualistic business there is. Finally it may be noted that by helping the book industry help itself, the Government indirectly helps the practice of writing and the spread of culture. That is, unless you think a drug store just as good a place to invest in literature as are the Haunted Bookshops of the Roger Mifflins. If so, most book lovers will disagree with you.

Neither Plot Nor Policy.

Miss Alice Barrows, hostess at the dinner party which has become almost as famous as that of Belshazzer, has certainly evened her score with Dr. Wirt. Her description of his three-hour monologue on monetary policy will severely discourage others who may have been minded to play unsuspecting host to the Gary educator, aside from the seeming danger of misquotation from this garrulous guest.

But while Dr. Wirt has helped neither himself nor the Committee For the Nation by the testimony elicited by the Bulwinkle committee, the fact that the episode has been salutary remains. The naivete of the wordy doctor is in his favor. If he had been seeking to spy out seditious utterances he would not be the conversational monopolist his erstwhile friends adjudge him. If he were a mere scaremonger he would not himself be so immersed in half-baked monetary theories which are probably quite as dangerous to national welfare as any of the "subversive forces" said to be stalking abroad.

The moral of the Wirt episode remains as we have earlier defined it. A painfully humorless but obviously honest citizen is sufficiently interested in national policy to want to know what it is all about. He has some rather irrational theories of his own, which should entitle him to the fraternity rather than the contumely of the brain trust. He has more than a suspicion that the policy of the Administration means more than it says, in which belief he is by no means isolated. The hearings on his hearsay "charges" have been superficially ludicrous because there is no "plot" to expose. They have been fundamentally serious because they have helped to emphasize that while there is no plot there is also no clear and consistent policy of economic reconstruction. This is the fact which gave the original Kerensky comparison significance, whether it was ever made in Dr. Wirt's hearing or not.

Those who wish to understand why Dr. Wirt has been good copy from coast to coast will find a sufficient explanation on page 140 of Mr. Roosevelt's new book. Public bewilderment is scarcely surprising, is certainly not laughable, when the President tells us that:

". . . it is necessary that we bear in mind only that the program as a whole is still in the process of expansion, that it is experimental in the sense that if one method does not succeed another method will be tried, and that there are still many measures to be put forward before we can arrive at a worth-while estimate of the completed whole."

Sniping The P. U. C.

As debate on the District appropriations bill gets under way in the House, the motives behind certain of the cuts made by the sub-committee become more apparent. Some of the representatives who were assigned to the important task of drafting Washington's budget seem to have allowed personal animosities and other extraneous matters to influence their judgment. Broad civic problems have been considered in an atmosphere tense with petty politics.

It would be well for the House to inquire what motive prompted the slashing of the allowance for the Public Utilities Commission from $86,323 to $51,000. When Representative Blanton was asked to explain this severe cut he replied evasively that it was intended to keep the commission from wasting the people's money. "They're not doing anything," he added. "Every rate reduction they got was by agreement."

Logic is noticeable for its absence from this explanation. Quite a number of District agencies are dormant, but the chief reason is that Congress does not allow them sufficient funds to carry on their proper functions. Witness the helplessness of the Health Department in the face of the tuberculosis menace! There is abundant proof, however, that the Public Utilities Commission is not in this category. And certainly rate reductions secured by agreement is no proof of inactivity—rather the reverse.

Utility rates in Washington are among the lowest in any large American city. A recent study sponsored by Trenton shows that the average cost of electric current for residential purposes in Washington ranged from $1.95 to $3.09 in April, 1932, compared with a range of $3.25 to $4.37 for 190 cities throughout the country. Since this survey was made rates in the District have been reduced. Local consumers of gas have similar advantages. Without attempting to bait the local utility corporations, the commission has been both persistent and successful in its efforts to reduce charges the consumer must pay.

The commission has a staff of only 31 persons, and most of its appropriation goes into salaries. If its allowance should be drastically cut utility rate adjustments now in prospect might not materialize. Citizens would be penalized because of the whims or political malice of a few Congressmen. It is impossible to believe that the allowance for the Public Utilities Commission was cut from any genuine desire to promote the welfare of the District and its residents. Unless the majority members of the subcommittee can muster sound reasons for their action when the issue reaches the floor of the House, this item should be immediately restored.

The Post's Sunday Hikes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Just a word in appreciation of the Wander Birds Hiking Club sponsored by The Post. I attended last Sunday and spent a wonderful day following Mr. Robert Shosteck around the country-side. As I am new in Washington, these "natural" points of interest have a great attraction for me. I expect to turn out regularly. GEORGE MIALE.

Washington, April 13.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

I have noticed with the greatest pleasure Robert Shosteck's hiking articles in the Friday Post and have enjoyed taking part in one of his hikes. As an old hiker who has tramped the region surrounding Washington for 30 years or more, I have looked with dismay on the waning of the hiking spirit among our Washington people in the last few years and welcome anything tending to promote its revival.

I attribute my perfect health and unimpaired working ability at a rather advanced age to my active exercise in the country almost every Sunday, summer and winter, rain or shine. During all that period I have known neither doctor nor illness. Quite aside from the interest in getting in touch with nature and in learning about one's surroundings I believe the increased joy in life due to perfect health would remunerate anybody for taking up hiking. One leaves one's troubles behind and, if in a party, one is sure to meet some who know more than himself about the plants and small animals of the woods, fields and streams. In England hiking has taken such a foothold within the past few years, especially among the young, that 180 cheap inns have been established for their accommodation, while the hiking clubs number a membership of about 30,000 (Manchester Guardian Weekly, March 30). It is time we were moving in the same direction.

I am looking to The Post to give Mr. Shosteck every encouragement in his splendid aim to arouse Washingtonians to a wider outdoor life. I understand that it is his aim to develop a variety of hikes adapted to persons of different tastes and leg power—hikes for those who wish to loiter along and examine the wild flowers, for those who care more for birds, and for those whose chief aim is to keep moving. I have offered him what little cooperation my limited time allows, and my somewhat extensive acquaintance with the woods and trails around Washington, to give those taking part a thoroughly good time in the going and a good appetite and sound sleep to follow.

H. N. STOKES.

Is This Mocking?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

I read with interest and sympathy your editorial on the return of nudism to the news. But are you sure that you have quoted correctly the old ditty that you attempted to quote? You print the poet's question as:

"Why the stocking
Is more shocking
Than the leg?"

My recollection is that the lyricist wants to be told where the reformers' reasoning will stop and that he inquires

"Has the progress any blocking?
If the clocking
In the stocking
Is more shocking
Than a 'run' . . ."

And there, like the Japanese Ambassador, I stop. I have forgotten the rest. Perhaps what you remember is really another part of the verses. And perhaps some Post reader can supply the whole!

Is Not a Y Official.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

In quoting my address to the Women's National Committee for Political Action April 10, you said that I am an Y. W. C. A. official. This is very flattering, but an error.

I know the Y girl well, but not as an official of the organization. The Y was my home for about two years before I was married, and since then I have retained active membership. The Y first taught me to swim, and it was there that I studied and passed the American Red Cross Life Saving Test in swimming.

When I am not at the Y, and not at home cooking meat and potatoes for the family, I am out teaching Y ideals—Sobriety, Decency, Americanism.

Rumblings From the Far East.

Japan's Point of View.

WARNINGS have been made by William C. Bullit, American Ambassador at Moscow; M. Herriot, former Premier of France; Signor Mussolini, Premier of Italy, and many other prominent persons and influential papers, regarding an approaching or at least a possible Soviet-Japanese war. These warnings, however, are either the products of insufficient knowledge of the real situation or propaganda intended for some malicious purposes.

According to the speeches of the Soviet leaders, Japan has not only refused to negotiate with the Soviets a nonaggression pact, but she is preparing for war against them. Japan has never declined to discuss the conclusion of a nonaggression pact. She simply replied to Moscow to the effect that it would not be timely to talk over such a pact at that time, as there remained many questions unsolved, and she thought it more urgent first to solve such pending questions as the sale of the North Manchuria Railway and the ever-repeated troubles arising from the execution of the Japanese fishery rights in the Soviet waters.

As to the Japanese preparation for war against the Soviets, we can say with firm conviction that no Japanese wishes war either with the Soviets or any other nation. To avoid clashes with Soviet troops, our troops are kept far from the Manchukuo-Soviets frontier.

War between Japan and America or between Japan and the Soviets might or might not be welcomed by certain third parties. Japan, however, is not blind to the consequences of the Great War. Moreover, any one who knows well the Japanese people will find that they are peace-loving from the depths of their hearts and that they really abhor warfare. Unless they are threatened with aggression from without they will not stand up and take up arms. Our rights in China, especially those in Manchuria, were in jeopardy when face to face with the Chang Hsueh-liang regime of violent transgressions. That no League of Nations and no declarations of anti-Japanese official or generals in China could remedy the situation was apparent to any one who knew anything about Chinese conditions. It was under such circumstances and only in self-defense against Chinese violence that our people stood up with arms as one man. Unless similar violations of our national rights occur, our people will never think of resorting to warlike measures. If, therefore, there is no intention on the part of the Soviet Union to threaten the existence of Japan or of Manchukuo, there is absolutely no fear of war in this part of the world.

(International Gleanings From Japan.)

China's Point of View.

WHILE many are getting anxious as to what is likely to happen in 1936, Mr. Chen Kung-Po, minister of industry, is more concerned about what is going to happen to China in 1934. Others may get some satisfaction from speculating upon the possibility of a great war in the Pacific two years hence, but Mr. Chen is of opinion that things may happen in this present year which will make developments in 1936 of very secondary interest so far as the Republic of China is concerned.

When Russia and Japan went to war nearly 30 years ago, the Chinese territory of Manchuria was the main battlefield, Great Britain had the most powerful fleet in the Far East, and the United States stood aloof, but in the event of another Russo-Japanese clash it is not likely that the Anglo-American nations will neglect to take what they consider to be appropriate measures to defend their interests in the Orient, even if they remain neutral. With two foreign powers at war in her territory and two others in a state of very efficient preparedness at her doors, the position of China would be anything but pleasant.

Even if there is no war between Russia and Japan, Mr. Chen Kung-Po fears that these two powers will continue with their "defensive preparations" and "precautionary measures," and among other possibilities in this direction he sees the establishment of a ring of "puppet states" around China by the creation of more "independent" administrations similar to that recently brought into being in Manchuria with the assistance of Japanese bayonets. There is the possibility, too, of a "White Russian" state being established with Japan's assistance—a development which would almost certainly follow Japanese success in the event of a war being fought.

On the other hand, assuming that Russia should prove victorious, the relentless pressure upon China would be the same, and there would be an extension of Soviet influence along China's distant frontiers which would result in the loss of further territory. No matter what the result of the conflict might be, China's predicament would be the same. She is too weak at present to stand up for her rights, and is not in a position to do anything more than look on helplessly at the tragic development of events. It may be that another world-war is developing as the result of the constant nibbling which is going on at her outlying territories, but whether this should unfortunately come about or not, the minister fears that the present year is going to be much more difficult for China even than the disastrous years of 1931-1933. Nevertheless, the facts must be faced courageously by the government and people of the republic, since their very existence will be at stake.

The Post Impressionist

"Hanged By the Neck."

Postoffice, Wednesday.

"Murders have been performed
Too terrible for the ear"—

And the increase of kidnaping adds to the demand for increase of the death-penalty. That on the one hand.

On the other, headed by Clarence Darrow—a great radical and therefore a major sentimentalist—the National League to Abolish Capital Punishment "has been conducting active campaigns in many States," and these attacks "have had front-page news-value."

The opponents of the death-penalty plead that it is cruel, barbarous, debasing to the public, no deterrent to prospective assassins, and that it makes final many a miscarriage of justice. The opponents' religious argument runs that human life is always sacred and that a criminal unfit for ordinary life here is certainly unready to enter the life hereafter.

Advocates of the death-penalty answer that it is kind because it ends a cruel existence, civilized because it checks barbarity; that, because it protects the public and deters prospective assassins, it is anything but debasing, and that the substitution of prison-terms increases crime. The advocates' religious argument draws a sharp distinction between individual revenge and legal execution—quotes one text from the Old Testament, one from the New: "Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed." . . . "They that take up the sword shall perish with the sword." . . .

We were a young reporter. For a week we had sat, in the grimy court, close to the accused, who had undoubtedly perpetrated a gruesome murder. He was in his earliest twenties, "the only son of his mother, and she a widow" desperately poor. The State had unlimited funds for alienists; it allowed a mere pittance to the defense. . . .

* * *

"Guilty."

Sentence was pronounced at once. . . .

A very few week later, we were assigned to cover the hanging.

Six o'clock of a November morning raw and gray. In the lower hall stood an empty coffin with a plate that bore the name of the still living boy—and that day's date.

Perhaps the barnlike third-floor apartment at one end of the jail was heated, but all the dozen men present complained of the cold. Otherwise, few spoke.

Over there, opposite the spot where we were standing and the door to the free world by which we had come in, was the narrow door through which he would come. It led here from the cells.

Pretty soon that narrow door would open—

This was an enormous room, where we waited. He would have to walk so far before he reached those steep wooden stairs that mounted, there in the center, to that platform.

The scaffold was high, but you could see the closed trap in it. The gallows rose high, too. A new rope hung from it, a noose at the end.

Minutes dragged by. They took so long.

Surely they were late!

But they weren't. Last night, the sheriff had told us six-thirty. Our watch told us now that it was only six twenty-five.

Somebody coughed. The cough rang like a shout.

They took so long.

Then there was a noise outside the narrow door—the shuffling of heavy feet. There was a voice mumbling monotone. What did it say? . . .

There he was! Men before and behind him. A man beside him, the mumbling man.

There he was! Coatless. Not a shadow on a motion-picture screen. Not an actor in a stage-play. A boy with whom we had talked, beside whom we had sat throughout his last gamble for life. Now on his white lips was fixed that same silly smile which was there when the jury returned its verdict. . . .

It wasn't far to the scaffold, after all. They moved with a frightful slowness, yet they were there in a couple of seconds. They were climbing the steep steps. The steps creaked.

But now, too, we could hear what the mumbling man was saying. "I am the Resurrection and the Life, saith the Lord; he that believeth in me and—"

No cannon is more deafening than the falling of a hangman's trap. And, after that, the body begins to spin. As much as you can see of it spins gently to one side, gently to the other. The body has no head: only a ridiculously small cone, which lolls . . .

* * *

Attendance at the old public hangings was almost fashionable. Nowadays, if the opponents of capital punishment could force popular attendance, capital punishment would be abolished within a year.

Along the Potomac

With Carlisle Bargeron

OF all the 125,000,000 people in this country, or rather who were in this country until the Hoover administration went in for its deportations, I doubt that any one more welcomed Mr. Roosevelt's election than Representative John J. O'Connor, of New York. He was about as elated as Mr. Roosevelt himself. Insofar as he was concerned hardly anything greater could have happened. It was a new deal in the full meaning of the term, it was a new deal for him.

John's brother, Basil, had been Mr. Roosevelt's law partner. He had been and presumably still is, one of his closest friends. Under all of the rules of the game what a set-up this seemed to make for John!

BARGERON.

* * * *

And although in the many years that John had been around here theretofore we had noted no undue aggressiveness on his part, he now suddenly became very aggressive, indeed. It might be said on this point, in fact, that all the elements into which Mr. Roosevelt's election put life, the American Federation of Labor and the unemployed, for example, John was among the very first to become infused. Hardly had the votes been counted before John was up and stirring. He was like a hardy flower come suddeny to bloom with the first sun after the spring rains.

For no reason that the rest of us could discern he up and announced his candidacy for the House leadership. What on earth could have prompted John to think he was of leadership caliber or had a chance for the job, I can't understand, unless it was that he was the brother of Basil. And, of course, under the rules of the game as it had always been played, this relationship was something, indeed.

* * * *

About that time Mr. Roosevelt passed through here on his way to Warm Springs to rest up from the campaign. The Press Club arranged a dinner for him and his party. Inasmuch as our auditorium can not house all the people of Washington at one time it was decided to confine the dinner strictly to members of the club. Under no circumstances were exceptions to be made. It is my recollection that the Roosevelt managers, too, wanted it so confined.

But notwithstanding the rigid precautions that were taken against gate crashers John could not be excluded. He took the attitude that whatever it took he simply had to be present at that dinner. Just why this was his attitude I do not know. Nothing was said or done in secrecy. None of the other members of Congress, not even those who, like John, were running for the leadership, let the matter worry them. And while all of us who attended had a delightful time, I am sure that no one of us thought that our presence, in itself, meant that we were intimates of the President-elect.

John attached importance to being present, though. When the members of the club showed up there he was, the only nonmember, so far as I know, to get in.

* * * *

Strangely enough, however, his aggressiveness seems to have availed him little. The Wirt hearing—he is a member of the investigating committee—has given him his first prominence.

What occurs to me is that John and a lot of the other New Deal devotees overlooked the change in the rules of the game that the New Deal brought. A great wave of unselfishness has swept over the country, you know, a great all-consuming desire to serve for service's sake. Our merchants have to be forced to take profits by the NRA, our brain trusters compelled to take their salaries.

Naturally with such a philosophy as this, aggressiveness and ambition no longer count. It is the day of the shrinking violet, the retiring, unassuming professors working quietly among their books, having no thought of compensation save the satisfaction of helping one's fellow man. The old tricks by which we used to get ahead in the world are, as the flappers would say, passe. We are all just bubbling over now with the desire to serve.

Carroll County Citizens Pick Election Slates

Few Issues Mark Races in Three Western Maryland Towns.

Mount Airy, Md., April 17 (Spl.). Practically devoid of campaign issues, naming of officials for municipalities in Carroll County got under way tonight when a citizens' meeting was held at Hampstead. Similar meetings to nominate a ticket for approaching elections will be held at Taneytown Friday and at Westminster and Mount Airy Monday.

Union Bridge several weeks ago reelected John D. Grabill, mayor, and L. H. Perry, Harry Gernand, Grover Devilbiss, George C. Eichelberger and W. S. Gladhill, councilmen.

Attracting the most interest is the approaching election at Taneytown, where the nominating meeting has been called by Norville P. Shoemaker, a member of he city council and now acting mayor, to meet Friday. Bitterness marked the last election there. A petition objecting to Mayor-elect Maurice C. Duttera, filed after the election, charged he paid town taxes on an assesment of only $575, whereas the law placed the minimum at $600.

Dr. C. M. Benner, councilman, countered with the reply that the mayor-elect had already qualified legally. Mayor Duttera denied the allegations.

Incumbent Westminster officials include Mayor George E. Matthews and Councilmen Frank T. Shaeffer, Walter H. Davis, Joseph L. Mathias, Jesse Royer and Edwin H. Gehr. Taneytown incumbents include Mayor Maurice C. Duttera and Councilmen Norville P. Shoemaker, W. D. Ohler, Dr. C. M. Benner, Merle S. Baumgardner and David H. Hahn.

The Mount Airy election will be held Monday, May 7. Incumbents are Mayor Charles A. Ogle and Councilmen Harry L. Bushey, Henry G. Hood, Ira D. Watkins, Bradley L. Leatherwood and Robert E. Burdette.

Firemen to Appeal Rule Against Union

Norfolk Group Will Go Before Supreme Court.

Norfolk, Va., April 17 (AP).—Repulsed yesterday when Judge A. P. Hanckel in Circuit Court sustained the action of Director of Public Safety C. B. Borland ordering the recently-organized Norfolk Firemen's Union disbanded under pain of suspension or dismissal of its members, the firefighters plan to carry their fight for the right to organize to the Virginia Supreme Court.

Announcement of appeal was made today by former Judge O. L. Shackleford, counsel for the union, who stated he will appear before Judge Hanckel to request a stay of execution until the higher court has ruled on the issue.

City officials today intimated that they plan no drastic action and it is understood no opposition will be made to the stay of execution.

Presbytery Elects Rev. Allen Jones

Winchester Group Meets in West Virginia.

Romney, W. Va., April 17 (Spl.). The Rev. Allen Jones, of Stephens City, Va., was elected moderator of Winchester Presbytery at the opening of the spring session here last night.

He succeeds the Rev. Dr. S. R. Diehl, Martinsburg, pastor, who, as retiring moderator, preached the opening sermon. The Rev. Jonathan Edwards, of Woodstock, Va., was named reading clerk. The State clerk is the Rev. Dr. J. A. McMurray, of Hedgesville, W. Va.

The meeting will conclude tomorrow.

Tonight the Presbytery heard a description of the Massanetta (Va.) Springs program by Dr. W. E. Hudson, director. Business sessions occupied the Presbytery today. Fifty elders and minsters are in at-

Funeral Services Held For William E. Owens

Leonardtown, Md., April 17 (Spl.). Funeral services were held yesterday for William E. Owens, 67, farmer of Medley's Neck, who died at his home Sunday.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Adra Downs Owens; two daughters, Miss Mary and Miss May Owens; four sons, B. F., W. E., T. F. and J. R. Owens.

Reckord Urged As Head of 29th

Maryland Officer Lauded by Gen. Gardner.

Richmond, April 17 (Spl.).—If Virginia National Guardemen in the Twenty-ninth Division have their way, Brig. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, adjutant general of Maryland and commander of the Fifty-seventh Brigade, will succeed the late Maj. Gen. Anton A. Stephan as commander of the division.

Such is the opinion of Brig. Gen. Samuel Gardner, of the Ninety-fourth Brigade, and adjutant general of Virginia, who said:

"Gen. Reckord commanded the 115th Infantry of the Fifty-eighth Brigade in the Twenty-ninth during the World War and was considered one of the outstanding National Guard colonels of the A. E. F. He also commanded the Firty-fourth Infantry Brigade overseas for a time.

"I believe that Gen. Reckord is qualified to maintain the Twenty-ninth at a state of efficiency to enable it to take the field at any time under its own officers."

Rockingham Grand Jurors Indict 29

Harrisonburg, Va., April 17 (Spl.). The Rockingham Circuit Court grand jury completed its two-day session today, returning 22 indictments against 29 persons. Housebreaking and larceny predominated.

Harry McInturff, Carl Shifflett and Robert Rush were indicted on four counts of automobile theft and housebreaking.

They were arrested at Claredndon a month ago and already are under 18-month sentences at Luray for a car theft. The cases are set for April 27. McInturff and Rush pleaded guilty.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips.

THE GARBLE SISTERS.

"Yeah. Well, after making all those charges, with no more foundation than a little loose talk at a dinner party, it serves him right."

"What charges?"

"Those charges that Bulwinkle was just the Loch Ness of the New Deal and that in time he would be supplanted by Dillinger."

* * * *

"By the way, haven't they caught Dillinger yet?"

"He's still raiding jails in Greece and Turkey, and they don't seem able to grab him. When he's caught it will go hard with him."

"Well, any guy that would sell the public all those stocks and then escape from the United States by using a wooden gun deserves no sympathy."

* * * *

"I understand Dillinger's defense is that he has heart trouble."

"He's not in such bad shape that he couldn't come in and be examined by the Senate as to whether what he said about the Brain Trust was fact or fiction, is he?"

* * * *

"What else do you hear?"

"Nothing, except that the Dardanelles have given Sam Wirt back to the United States in return for a tax on coconut oil and part of Cuba."

"I feel kind of sorry for Wirt. After all, he did a lot for Chicago."

"I know; but why did he have to flee the country and hide in Athens in the midst of the investigation by Judge Seabury?"

* * * *

"He married Betty Compton over there, didn't he?"

"No. You're thinking of Georgie Jessel."

"I thought the woman Jessel was going to marry was named Norma something. What was her name, anyhow?"

"Let me think."

"I got it."

"What was it?"

"Nourmahal."

"I knew it was Norma something."

HOLC Offices Are Enlarged

Martinsburg Staff Boosted to 17 Under New Decentralization.

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 17 (Spl.).—District offices here for the Home Owner's Loan Corporation were enlarged today with a staff of 17 in place of the six previously stationed here as a step in the decentralization of the HOLC, formerly concentrated at Charleston.

The lower floor of a building is being fitted up for the increased force and the remainder of the second floor of the building also will be occupied. John S. Alfriend, jr., is district manager.

Five employes have arrived from the Charleston offices. The other are new appointees, except for the six already here.

Under the new organization, the office here will do all preliminary work, until the loan goes to the Charleston office for final approval. Previously each step had to be sent to the Charleston office for approval.

The new decentralized program will allow applications to be completed within three weeks, Alfriend believes. His district covers the 21 eastern counties of the State. A sub-station will be established at Elkins, under direction of Lewis Dinkle, jr., of Romney, with Miss Laura Marshall, of Elkins, as assistant.

Cumberland Jury Clears Government

Finds Irregularities Have Been Corrected.

Cumberland, Md., April 17 (Spl.). The grand jury for the April term of the Allegany County Circuit Court adjourned today after examining 144 witnesses and returning 40 indictments.

Much time was spent in the investigation of the Cumberland city government, especially the police department, and the grand jury in its report said:

"We have investigated all complaints pertaining to irregularities in the government of the city of Cumberland and believe the officials have taken what we consider proper action to correct them." The report recommended that all gaming devices which have been confiscated be destroyed after the cases are disposed of. The reports said no complaints were made against persons operating under licenses issued by the court for sale of liquor.

Method Used in Killing Cat Doesn't Make It Less Dead

By Robert Quillen

Newly invented machines usually are complicated and burdened with useless parts. Experience makes them more simple and more efficient.

The opposite is true in the making of laws.

As first written, a law usually is comprehensive and simple. But thereafter it is amended, modified, emasculated and trimmed with vague words until any good lawyer can find a dozen loopholes for his guilty client's escape.

When America was young, each new frontier was an isolated civilization that made laws to suit its needs.

To the simple pioneer, taking another's property was a crime, whether done by stealth or trickery or force, and the guilty man was properly hanged. It was the wrong that mattered, not the method.

Now there are literally thousands of statutes that define wrongful methods of obtaining property, and the more they multiply the harder it becomes to convict a rogue.

A thief, by making oral promise of great rewards, can steal everything you possess and yet escape punishment if he hasn't broken a written contract or violated the exact letter of the law.

Observe how many men in every town, having no income from investments, still contrive to live well without work. They live by their wits—which means by fraud.

If one man takes another's property without fair return, what does it matter how the offense is defined or whether it is defined at all?

"Thou shalt not steal" is enough.

We need a new body of law, made by sensible laymen—as all laws were in the beginning.

Definitions of theft have become too intricate and too numerous.

If Jones possessed a horse and Smith somehow obtained it without giving fair value in return, that is all the jury needs to know.

Quenstedt Raps Pair in Hot Race For Governor

Mayor of Annapolis, Also Candidate, Says Bickering Is Hurting G. O. P.

Annapolis, Md., April 17 (Spl.).—An impartial attack upon both avowed candidates for the Republican nomination for Governor of Maryland was made today by Mayor Walter E. Quenstedt, of Annapolis, who demanded that the candidates either end "this inexcusable mudslinging and bickering," or withdraw from the race.

Mayor Quenstedt, also mentioned for the G. O. P. nomination for Governor, said he acted today to "save the party's chances in the November election."

His attack was directed at Harry W. Nice, Baltimore lawyer, and H. Webster Smith, also an attorney, who have been conducting active campaigns throughout the State for the nomination.

Growing enmity between the rival camps is creating a feeling of deep resentment that will reduce the party's strength in the November election, Mayor Quenstedt declared.

"This condition, if continued, will send our party crashing into a stone wall just at the time when its prospects are the brightest in years," the mayor said. "Our leaders should take steps at once to draw the curtain on these deplorable activities."

Mr. Quenstedt declared he also is in the fight for the G. O. P. nomination for Governor, and called upon county voters to get behind him for the office. He termed himself a conservative, but added that he is a fighter, "and the time to fight has arrived."

Coblentz Trial In Bank Case Begins Monday

State Senator to Face Baltimore Court on Central Trust Charge.

Baltimore, April 17 (Spl.).—Trial of State Senator Emory L. Coblentz, of Frederick, on four charges involving the failure of the Central Trust Co., the leading banking chain of western Maryland, is scheduled to begin Monday in criminal court here.

Judge George A. Solter will hear the case, and the prosecution will be in charge of State's Attorney Herbert R. O'Connor, of Baltimore City, and State's Attorney James Clark, of Howard County.

Specific charges against Coblentz are that he accepted deposits for the Ellicott City branch of the banking chain when he knew the bank to be insolvent. He also is accused on two counts of false pretenses.

Several of his business ventures proved unfortunate, and the onset of the depression accelerated the collapse of the Coblentz fortune. The Central Trust Co. failed, carrying with it the chain of country banks affiliated with it, and investors throughout western Maryland lost heavily.

Coblentz was indicted in Allegany County on charges of accepting money from depositors knowing the banking chain to be insolvent and was found guilty and was sentenced by the circuit court at Cumberland to 18 months in the Maryland House of Correction.

His attorneys took an appeal, and the court of appeals ruled that the indictments were faulty and ordered the sentence set aside.

After several months, new indictments were prepared by the Howard County grand jury. The trial, scheduled at Ellicott City, the county seat, was transferred to Baltimore last fall on a plea for a change of venue, asked by Leo Weinberg, of Frederick, attorney for Mr. Coblentz.

As aids in the trial here Monday, Mr. Weinberg will have Attorneys Donald Robb, of Cumberland, and George M. Brady and William Curran, of Baltimore.

The Fickle Charm of April.

Perhaps the best poem ever written on this subject is by Sir William Watson, who has the misfortune to be the least appreciated of all distinguished living poets:

April, April,
Laugh thy girlish laughter;
Then, the moment after,
Weep thy girlish tears!
April, that mine ears
Like a lover greetest,
If I tell thee, sweetest,
All my hopes and fears,
April, April,
Laugh thy golden laughter,
But, the moment after,
Weep thy golden tears!

In "Two Gentlemen of Verona," Shakespeare says:

The uncertain glory of an April day,
Which now shows all the beauty of the sun,
And by and by a cloud takes all away!

And, in Sonnet 98, he says:

When proud-pied April, dressed in all his trim,
Hath put a spirit of youth in everything.

One of the most famous of all poetic tributes to April is in Browning's poem "Home Thoughts From Abroad:"

Oh, to be in England,
Now that April's there!

Those who remember Ethel Barrymore, acting in the play "Declassee," will remember how often she quoted these two lines.

The third word in Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales" is April. And the first dozen lines make as beautiful a tribute to April as can be found anywhere.

Many old English proverbs deal with April.

A cold April
The barn will fill.

A dry April
Not the farmer's will.

April wet
Is what we would get.

When April blows his horn (thunder)
It's good for hay and corn.

April showers
Bring May flowers.

Tomorrow—The Nineteenth of April.

Mission Group Will Convene Here Saturday

Young Lutheran Women to Hold Congress at Memorial Church.

The sixth annual Young Women's Congress of the Women's Missionary Society of the Lutheran Synod of Maryland will convene here Saturday at 9:30 a. m. in Luther Place Memorial Church. The Rev. Carl C. Rasmussen is pastor. About 300 delegates and visitors are expected.

The following young women will conduct the devotionals: Miss Edna Green, Baltimore; Miss Gaynell Brewer, Hagerstown, Md.; Miss Blanche Lathrum, Cumberland, Md., and Miss Katherine Traver, Frederick, Md.

Dr. Nellie Cassell Heisley, until recently in charge of the Kugler Hospital, Guntur, India, will be the missionary speaker. Miss Nona M. Diehl, secretary for young women of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Lutheran Church, will direct a forum on "Light for Today's Shadows," and address the congress on "In Focus."

Miss Frances Dysinger, student secretary for the Maryland synodical, will conduct a discussion on student work. A sextet from the Young Women's Society of St. Mary's Church, Silver Run, will sing in the morning, and Dr. and Mrs. Charles Whitten, of Washington, will direct a period of "music in worship" in the afternoon.

At the close of the afternoon session, the delegates will be taken on a motor trip to the National Lutheran Home and a candle-light installation service, prepared by Sister Catherine Neuhardt, of Hagerstown, will be held in the chapel. At 5:30 p. m., the delegates will return to the Luther Place Church parlors, where dinner will be served. Dr. Mary E. Markley, secretary for women students of the board of education of the United Lutheran Church, will be the dinner speaker.

Officers of the congress are: President, Mrs. Virgil W. Doub, Middletown; vice president, Miss Kathleen V. Kennedy, Baltimore; secretary, Miss Katherine E. Kolb, Cumberland; treasurer, Mrs. J. Elmer Harp, Middletown, Md.

Virginia to Delay Results of Probe

West Virginia Inquiry of Power Firm Starts.

Richmond, April 17 (AP).—With the launching of an investigation of the Appalachian Electric & Power Co. by the West Virginia Public Service Commission, the Virginia Corporation Commission today announced it would delay publication of the results of its investigation of the company.

West Virginia operations of the Appalachian are reported to be considerably more extensive than its Virginia operations.

The Virginia Commission, through the Allen J. Saville organization, has completed its inventory and valuation of the Virginia properties of the company, and Mr. Saville has been to Charleston.

No End of Books

By Theodore Hall

THERE will be a trifling flurry on the Wilson shelf while the thick-packed volumes crowd over to make room for one more biography.

Then a deep peace will descend; the newcomer is quite harmless.

I really do not see why Edith Gittings Reid, whose biography of Sir William Osler was well received, should have written "Woodrow Wilson: The Caricature, the Myth, and the Man" (Oxford University Press, $3.50). The new material she adds to the picture is scanty and, by no means startling. For the rest of the book she transcribes the best-recognized authorities with a minus quantity of improvement. Readers who have never met Baker, Dodd, House, Page, Sullivan and so on will enter her book with the excitement and "wild surmise" of Keats' Cortez discovering the Pacific. Ardent admirers of the War President will rejoice in the sweet idolatries of the legendary "lady biographer" here made actual for once. But those who seek new insight or time-endowed perspective may pass quietly on.

THEO. HALL.

* * * *

Mrs. Reid was a friend of Wilson's. She had known him since his undergraduate days at Princeton, when he visited Baltimore as a friend of the family. It was later while he attended Johns Hopkins that Mrs. Reid "first appraisingly saw Woodrow Wilson." He had come to an evening reception, "a tall young man with a formal, oversensitive manner . . . (he) came smilingly toward us: 'It's so delightful to see a few people whom I know. One feels so lonely in a function like this, so very much a stranger. I wonder why we have such functions—but that is ungracious.'"

A few minutes later young Wilson spoke whimsically of his appearance—"'Now, no man would, on account of my Scotch physiognomy, ever familiarly slap me on the back in a hail-fellow-well-met way.'"

Our biographer suggested that, with all his love for America, he should have been born in England. "Would you pigeon-hole a man as an alien," Wilson replied, "because he imports some of his fuel from outside?"

There is some more small talk in Baltimore. Then in 1888 Wilson came into Mrs. Reid's drawing-room, "his face aglow," to tell her that he was giving up his teaching post at Bryn Mawr—the dean and "the new woman" en masse were a little too much for him. He had chosen to go to Wesleyan College. "My salary will be much larger," he said joyously, "and moreover I shall teach men."

In 1912 Mrs. Reid had a letter from him while he was running for the Presidency—of course she had many other letters and notes from him, but she could get permission to use only a few which had already appeared in Ray S. Baker's biography.

In 1913 she sat in the inaugural reviewing stand and watched Wilson's face.

In 1915 she was asked to come to the White House for lunch on a Thursday. There is no further mention of the event. But Wilson helped her to get an English boy released from a German prison.

In 1917 Wilson ran up the steps of Mrs. Reid's house and flung himself into a chair in the library. The bottom promptly gave way. "Is this an omen," he asked, "that all the things I have to tell you are going to ground?" There was an interplay of words, and then "he drew up another chair and talked eagerly of all that was in his mind." But our curiosity is left to make what it can of the bare statement.

* * * *

I have, by these desultory remarks, very nearly covered every contribution which Mrs. Reid makes to the Wilson record. One or two items may be added to show the brief bow she grants to the first terms of her subtitle.

"He was a product of the Middle West; nevertheless the myth (of his being a Virginian) persists."

"The so-called 'curious illnesses' to which he was subject from time to time, were of a most unheroic character—nothing more or less than acute indigestion" caused by Southern cooking and little exercise.

"Contrary to the usual impression, he had few intimate friends among women; nearly all his intimate friends were men."

As a whole, Mrs. Reid's book is well printed, orderly in arrangement, lovingly written, and something less than invaluable.

Government and Economics.

"America Must Choose," by Henry A. Wallace. (Foreign Policy Association and World Peace Foundation, New York, $.50). The Secretary of Agriculture comes briefly and pungently to the point that America must find a middle course between isolation and internationalism.

* * * *

"America Must Lose," by Dr. William A. Wirt. (Committee for the Nation, New York, $.25). The nine-days' wonder statement of the gentleman from Gary, which purports to answer the above pamphlet and flings out at everything else but. The conservatives owe it to themselves to find a better spokesman.

* * * *

"Tomorrow's Money," by Frank A. Vanderlip. (Reynal & Hitchcock, $2). Talks on finance by one of the most pursuasive and live-minded of the authorities. Mr. Vanderlip wouldn't like me to choose this as a representative item, but it's interesting, shows his range, and proves a point—if Averardo de Medici, 600 years ago, had invested $100,000 at a secure and compounded 5 per cent yield, it would now amount to 46,000,000 times the existing monetary gold stock of the world. Perfect security of investment "would wreck the capitalistic system."

* * * *

"Recovery and Common Sense," by O. M. W. Sprague. (Houghton-Mifflin, $1). The way to sound economics, according to the former expert for the Bank of England and the Treasury Department.

* * * *

"Election Administration in the United States," by Joseph P. Harris. (Brookings Institution, $4). One of the sound and scholarly studies in administration fostered by the institute in Government research. It treats of everything from model ballots to election frauds. The average cost to the Government of a single ballot cast in an election is over $1; this could easily be reduced to 25 cents. On every other topic the author is equally forthright.

4,220 Seeking Virginia Liquor Board Places

By Paul W. Ferris.

Richmond, April 17.—Virginia's alcohol bevarage control board paused today in its study of 4,220 applications for jobs long enough to accept its first application for a permit to manufacture gin.

The application was made by a local proprietory medicine firm.

The board stated that out of the thousands seeking positions not more than 500 possibly could be put to work this year.

Of the 4,220 job seekers 3,723 are men and 497 women. They range in age from 17 to 75, and the majority are available for any position from gauger to board member. One college applicant wanted a job as "official taster."

Most applicants are persons living in the Third district, which includes the State capital. In fact, of the 497 women, 363 live in Richmond or its suburbs, but 30 brave souls who do not live in the State also have asked for positions.

While many of the applications from men and women include jobs ranging from publicity directors to truck drivers, 1,074 prefer jobs as dispensary clerks or managers, 484 will take a job as clerk, and 580 aspire to managerial posts.

Only three out of the 497 desire jobs in the stores. The fair sex shows a preference for stenography, 145 applying for positions of that type.

Regulations for the State's wine business were issued by the alcoholic beverage control board yesterday, which detail the plan announced several days ago.

Wine salesmen may call on merchants, solicit orders which are accepted subject to the board's control and ship merchandise to the board's warehouses for inspection.

Wheeling to Greet Nine Conventions

Wheeling, W. Va., April 18 (Spl.). Thousands of delegates and visitors will come to Wheeling during the next several months, when nine State and district conventions will convene.

The first of those scheduled will be the State meeting of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, May 24 to 26. The National Association of Firemen's Clubs will meet June 15 to 16.

Other meetings: The State Lions Clubs, June 22 and 23; the West Virginia Rural Carriers Association, July 6 and 7; the State convention of funeral directors, in July; the Central States section of the American Water Works Association, August 23 and 24; the State Dairymen's Association in September; the Ohio and West Virginia Tent and Awning Association in October, and the district convention of Civitan Clubs in the fall, at a date to be designated later.

Bill for Overtime Pay Is Introduced

$332,342 Sought in Old Wage Claims.

Payment of awards for extra service in Government navy yards and arsenals amounting to $332,342.74, of which $81,000 is due District residents, is provided for in a bill favorably reported to the Senate yesterday by Senator Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts, chairman of the committee on education and labor and author of the measure.

The total is divided among nine States and the District, with Maryland claims totaling $50 and those in Virginia amounting to $14,000.

Some of the claims date back to 1878, Senator Walsh said.

Waynesboro Man Held For Carrying Revolver

Waynesboro, Pa., April 17 (Spl.). Charged with carrying a revolver without a license, S. D. Stine, jr., Waynesboro, was under arrest today.

A revolver with the mark of the United States Government was found in his possession. He said he had purchased it from a Waynesboro youth, who police said admitted he had stolen the gun from Camp Albert C. Ritchie at Cascade, Md., in 1932.

Mahomet Goes to the Mountain: Item: Court Is Held in Bank

Baltimore, April 17 (Spl.).—For the first time in the memory of the oldest attaches, a session of Circuit Court No. 2 was held in a bank.

Judge Eugene O'Dunne and his staff moved from their customary quarters in the courthouse to the offices of the Union Trust Co., at Baltimore and St. Paul streets, and heard testimony in the petition of Mrs. Nan J. Houck, of Frederick, asking a receiver for the Surety Mortgage Co. and naming the Union Trust as trustee for the mortgage firm.

The move to the banking house was made, Judge O'Dunne said, so that witnesses and attorneys might refer more easily to company records at the bank.

So voluminous are the records that to move them to the courthouse would have meant the transfer of virtually the entire trust department of the bank.

Mrs. Houck is represented as holding $10,000 worth of mortgage bonds of the Surety Mortgage Co.

Medical School Aid Kills Self

L. B. Taylor, Jr., 23, Takes Life With Gas at University.

Charlottesville, Va., April 17 (Spl.).—Leonidas Braxton Taylor, jr., 23, a technician in the pathology laboratories of the University of Virginia Medical School here, was found dead today in a research chamber at University Hospital.

The room was filled with gas, and Albemarle County authorities pronounced his death a suicide.

He was known as an expert technician in the preparation of microscopic slides. He studied two years at the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research in New York. He was graduated from Lane High School here.

Funeral services will be held here Thursday. Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Taylor; three brothers, Stuart A. Taylor, architectural student at the university; Oswald H. Taylor and G. Kenneth Taylor, high school students here; three sisters, Miss Ione Taylor, of Greenwood; Miss Thelma Taylor a school teacher at Steubenville, Ohio, and Mrs. James F. Johnson, Lynchburg.

Glee Clubs Give Concert in Valley

Teachers' College, W. & L. Singers Combine.

Harrisonburg, Va., April 17 (Spl.). The Harrisonburg State Teachers' College Glee Club joined with the club from Washington and Lee University in a concert in Woodrow Wilson Hall here tonight.

Miss Edna Shaeffer, head of the department of music at the State Teachers' College, and John Graham, of Washington and Lee, directed the program.

The concert was one of a series of joint programs given by the two schools. Last fall the Harrisonburg club went to Lexington to present a joint recital in Lee Memorial Chapel. Following the program tonight, members of the visiting club were entertained at a reception.

Three Indicted For Gambling

Racing Pool Operation Is Charged to Two at Charles Town.

Charles Town, W. Va., April 17 (Spl.)—Three men were indicted on charges of gambling operations by the Circuit Court grand jury today. True bills were found against C. Neill Smith and Victor Myers for operation of an illegal horse-racing pool and possession of three slot machines.

Lester Morgan, colored, was indicted on misdemeanor charges for conducting a gambling house. Morgan appealed his case to the Circuit Court after being found guilty last month by Mayor J. R. Russell.

A resolution demanding stricter patrol of Charles Town streets by city police was passed by the jury. Judge D. H. Rogers will set cases for trial tomorrow.

Parkersburg Plant Workers Vote Strike

Parkersburg, W. Va., April 17 (Spl.).—A strike of 4,000 workers employed at the Viscose Company textile plant here will be called "in a few days," unless an agreement is meantime reached on lunch periods at the company's plant at Lewiston, Pa., B. S. Bennett, vice president of the Parkersburg branch of the United Textile Workers of America, said today.

Bennett said the members of the local union had voted to strike in sympathy with the Lewiston workers.

Charles Town Power Project Is Voted Down

Council Plans to Grant 30-Year Franchise to Private Firm.

Charles Town, W. Va., April 17 (Spl.).—Willingness to grant a 30-year franchise to the North Virginia Power Co., when the present franchise expires in 1935 was voiced by the town council last night by a 4-3 vote.

The action terminated consideration of a proposed municipal power project whereby the town would either operate its own electric plant or purchase power in wholesale quantities and subsequently retail it to residents.

The franchise can not be finally signed until four weeks after publication of the council's intention to grant it, according to the town charter. Councilmen anticipate some public discussion as to the length of the franchise.

Election of a mayor and four councilmen were ordered for May 24 by the council. Commissioners named last night to supervise balloting were Mrs. Lizzie Darlington, first ward; Clara Leslie, second ward; Lyman Linson, third ward, and Miss Kate Dooley, fourth ward. Mrs. Mary McGill Shirley was chosen election clerk.

Repairing and rewiring of the Charles Washington town hall to comply with requirements issued by Fred B. Watkins, State fire marshal, was referred to the housing committee.

Rites Are Conducted For Louis A. Perrow

Lynchburg, Va., April 17 (Spl.). Funeral services for Louis A. Perrow, 51, formerly a lumber broker here, were held today from the residence.

Mr. Perrow is survived by a son, L. A. Perrow, jr., of Detroit, and a daughter, Mrs. C. B. Rhoads, of Covington, and three sisters, Mrs. Daisy Harvey, of Chaise City; Mrs. Fannie Robertson, Lynchburg, and Mrs. Sallie P. Fore, of Baltimore.

Courthouse Repair Bids Due Friday

Carroll Commissioners to Let Project.

Westminster, Md., April 17 (Spl.). Bids for completion of repairs to the Carroll County courthouse, started under the CWA, will be opened by the county commissioners Friday. The $11,000 project was two-thirds completed when CWA operations were suspended.

Unfinished work includes floors, construction of fireproof stairways, painting, rewiring and installation of a new heating system. An additional project approved by the CWA providing for construction of two wings to the courthouse, at an estimated cost of $14,000, will not be completed at present.

Maryland Fire Companies Set Session Date

Event Will Be Held at Cambridge on June 20, 21 and 22.

Baltimore, April 17 (Spl.).—Maryland volunteer firemen will hold their annual convention at Cambridge, on the Eastern Shore, June 20, 21 and 22. Dates for the session were set at a meeting of the executive board and trustees of the State Firemen's Association here last night.

The officials of the firefighters heard Mayor Howard W. Jackson of Baltimore, Howard Travers, chief engineer of the Baltimore Fire Department; Edward Warr, chief of the Baltimore Salvage Corps; A. N. Johnson, dean of the University of Maryland School of Engineering, and Walter Quick, assistant State forester of Maryland.

Formation of a fire chiefs' club, to be composed of heads of all the volunteer fire companies in the State, was indorsed.

The Cambridge convention will be attended by several thousand firemen from all parts of the State. Many companies will send apparatus and there will be a parade with prizes offered. There also will be hose-coupling contests, with prizes for the most efficient companies.

Sessions of the convention will be held in the new firehouse and municipal building at Cambridge.

Summer Courses Set At West Virginia U.

Morgantown, W. Va., April 17 (Spl.).—Dr. J. A. Dadisman, director of the summer school of West Virginia University, announces two terms for this summer. The first will begin June 18 and continue until July 27. The second will open July 27 and continue until September 1.

Credits will be given toward bachelor, master and doctor degrees. There will be a wide range of graduate and undergraduate work. There will be special field courses in botany and zoology.

Mlle. Claudel To Be Bride Of Mr. Paris

Fiance Served as Third Secretary in Claudel Embassy Here.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

Capital society, particularly the younger diplomatic set, will be interested in the news lately received from Brussels of the engagement of Mlle. Reine Claudel, daughter of the French Ambassador to Belgium and Mme. Claudel, to Mr. Jacques Paris, former Third Secretary of the French Embassy in Washington.

The blonde and attractive Mlle. Claudel, so frequently said to look like a young Jeanne d'Arc, came to Washington in 1927 when her father, Mr. Paul Claudel, poet-diplomat of France, was appointed Ambassador to this country. She and her sister, the former Mlle. Marie Claudel, now Mme. Roger Mequillet, of Paris, were among the most popular members of the younger smart set, and entertained at frequent and most enjoyable parties.

Among the outstanding balls of the past few years was the Second Empire ball which the Ambassador and Mme. Claudel gave for their daughters in 1928. It was really the debut of Mlle. Reine, who until that time had confined her activities to sports at which she is very adept.

Son Wed in America.

The following summer the Claudels returned to France to spend several months at their chateau, Morestel, near Paris, where the wedding of Mlle. Marie to M. Mequillet, young vice president of the Mills of Paris, took place.

When word was received that Mr. Claudel had been transferred to Brussels, he had been dean of the Diplomatic Corps in Washington for a short time, and it was with great regret that Capital society said farewell to this popular family.

Mr. Paris Here Two Years.

The wedding was one of the most brilliant of the New York season, and many guests from Washington attended.

Young Mr. Claudel spent only brief visits in the Capital while his parents were here, as he was preparing for the foreign service, and is now following in the footsteps of his father in building a diplomatic career.

Mr. Paris was attached to the Embassy for the last two years of the Claudel regime, and left Washington last spring shortly after the Ambassador and his family sailed. He is now at the Quai d'Orsay, French foreign office in Paris. No information has been received as to the date and place of the wedding, but the marriage probably will take place in the spring, either at the French Embassy in Brussels or later in the summer at the home of the Claudels near Paris.

Frances Brady Becomes Bride

Wed to Mr. Michael Ring of Minneapolis at St. Gabriel's.

Miss Frances Elinor Brady, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Frederick Brady, and Mr. Michael Ring, son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Ring, of Minneapolis, were married at 9 o'clock Saturday morning at St. Gabriel's Church.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of bridal satin made on princess lines with a double cowl neckline and dolman sleeves fitted into points over her wrists. Tiny satin buttons extended down the center of the back, ending at the waistline. The gown had a fan-shaped train. The long three-cornered veil of tulle was covered with a cap of Belgian lace that has been in the family for generations. The lace fell into a cape across the shoulders. She carried an arm bouquet of bride's roses and lillies of the valley. Her only ornament was a diamond pin worn by her mother at her own wedding.

Miss Marietta Dawson, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor and the only attendant. Her gown was of peach lace with a cowl neckline and long sleeves puffed at the elbows. She wore a draped turban of fluted crepe with a narrow mesh veil and carried bronze snapdragons and lavender larkspur.

Mr. Robert Frederick Brady, brother of the bride, was best man. Mr. James E. Dunne 3d, of Providence, R. I., and Mr. Louis T. Armelin, of Washington and Hartford, Conn., were ushers. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Joseph M. Nelligan.

The ceremony was followed by a breakfast and reception at the Brady residence for the families and a few intimate friends.

Finland's Minister Mourns for Sister

Miss Emma Astrom Dies at Helsingfors.

The Minister of Finland, Mr. L. Astrom, has canceled all social engagements because of the death of his sister, Miss Emma Astrom, yesterday in Helsingfors, Finland.

Miss Astrom had devoted her life to promoting good care of the sick. She succeeded Baroness Mannerheim, the pioneer of modern nursing in Finland, as president of the Finnish Nurses Association.

In 1929, Miss Astrom headed the Finnish delegation to the International Congress of Nurses in Montreal, Canada, and afterward traveled in the United States, stopping in Washington for the summer as the guest of her brother at the legation. Miss Astrom was active in municipal affairs in Helsingfors.

Tea Tomorrow For California D. A. R. Group

State Society Officers to Arrange Party for Delegation.

Mrs. Dorothy Harper, vice president of the California State Society, and Mrs. Gertrude Jay Scott, secretary, assisted by Miss Ethel Barker and Miss Mildred Martin, have arranged a tea to be given at the Raleigh Hotel tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock in honor of California delegates attending the D. A. R. congress.

Mrs. F. F. Gundrum, of Sacramento, retiring State regent, and a candidate for the vice presidency of the D. A. R., will be guest of honor.

Mrs. Annie Mason Hall, for many years active in D. A. R. affairs in San Francisco, will present the guests to the reception committee, to be headed by Mrs William H. Standley, whose husband, Admiral Standley, is president of the California society. Assisting Mrs. Standley will be Mrs. Hiram Johnson, wife of the senior Senator from California; Representative Florence P. Kahn, from the San Francisco district, and Miss Margaret Buck, of Sacramento, daughter of Representative Buck.

Mrs. George Burnham, of San Diego, wife of Representative Burnham, will act as hostess to the wives of the California Congressional delegation.

Tea will be poured by Mrs. Walter C. Burke, chairman of the membership committee. Mrs. Burke, for many years prominently identified with club work in Los Angeles, will have as her assistants the following members or wives of members of the society's board of governors: Mrs. Horace Jones, Mrs. Henry Fischer, Mrs. Walter Measday, Mrs. Robert W. Miller, Mrs. E. E. Odom, Dr. Anna Peck, Mrs. Jessie Eliot Perez and Mrs. Frank Brauskett.

Party Today Honors Miss Mary Birdsall.

Miss Mary Stuart Birdsall, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Gregg C. Birdsall, whose engagement to Mr. Elbert Jerome Howell has been announced, will be the guest of honor at a cocktail party to be given by Miss Eleanor Pierce this afternoon in the Mayflower lounge.

The guests will include Miss Elizabeth Rhea Dewey, of Goldsboro, N. C.; Miss Lucille Elliott, Miss Janet Shares, Miss Eulalie Mehlhop, Miss Jeanne Richards, Miss Sidney Thompson, Mrs. Harold Gillespie, Miss Elizabeth Ulman and Mrs. Anthony Hyde.

Spring Figures Aren't Overly Mae West-ish

These Foundations Will Curb Tendencies of This Sort.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

THE WELL-GROOMED woman will shun over-emphasized curves. She prefers a controlled naturalness, a feminine form in no way boyish, but at the same time several paces this side of the much talked of Mae West silhouette.

With a certain make brassiere it is possible to obtain just that molding restraint essential to a trim foundation. This garment, fragile and lacy in appearance, gives an upward pressure, and a gentle side restraint that coaxes the form to resemble the brassiere, not the brassiere the form. The result—a contour of grace and utter femininity. And without the discomfort frequently associated with form control.

Although beautifully tailored it neither binds nor slips up in a bulky fashion to betray its presence beneath a sheer molded frock or bathing suit.

There are several styles, suited to different types of figures and occasions. "Accentuated," designed especially for the high, firm breast, is charming under evening gowns. "Regular," for the more rounded bust, is ideally suited to all-round wear. The matronly figure may find corrective support with comfortable wide shoulder straps in "Full-breasted."

* * * *

Summery Pongee.

What is cooler for summer than pongee? And what should be more cool and comfortable than pajamas? A downtown store is selling one and two piece pongee pajamas—sizes 16 and 17—for $1.

Pongee also has the advantage of washing beautifully, and easily.

* * * *

And Some Slips.

And all that may be said for the pajamas may likewise be said for the pongee slips—sizes 34 to 52—also $1.

They wear beautifully, and are perfectly at home in the wash tub. They may be scrubbed, put through the wringer, and treated in the harshest manner without being hurt in the slightest.

Many business women who haven't time nor money to pamper their apparel with special laundry service will find these durable ready-to-wears a solid comfort.

* * * *

Bar Shenanigans.

An amusing novelty in a local shop is a much-bemirrored tray. An artist with a real sense of humor has painted over the shiny background a bar with a group of listless customers leaning up against it.

* * * *

Dollar Down—Something Free.

Discriminating shoppers usually are not interested in the "with every dollar purchase so and so free" offer unless they know that the goods and the manufacturing concern are reliable.

But when they know this, they can not fail to recognize the real value of such an offer. When it occurs at a good store, under the proper conditions, it is usually done as a kind of advertising project—to introduce newcomers to an old product, and to promote the good will of long-time customers.

There is such an offer on now. With every dollar purchase of a certain make of cream—and the name is widely known—a jar of eye cream or tissue cream is given free.

The eye cream is the same mentioned some time ago in this column. Judging by the number of inquiries about it then, and the number of sales which resulted, it was very well received, indeed. It bears a guarantee to alleviate the wrinkles around the eyes.

* * * *

Indian Camp Fire.

Generally speaking there is seldom a new story in lamps. But in this instance, there is one so unusual it deserves mention.

A small boy would love it. It's a parchment tepee with a small light inside giving out a glow like a campfire. Seated there is the figure of an Indian squaw, while outside stands a stoic brave.

* * * *

Pinafore, Ahoy.

Playtime pinafores in smart and unusual styles are a specialty at a Connecticut avenue shop. But the shop itself is so tucked away that one must needs inquire how to reach it.

The lady who runs it has a flair for children's clothes. With summer coming on she has turned her attention to some of these playtime pinafores that may be worn by themselves, or over a frock.

Brightly Colored Hats Go With Sports Things

By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, April 17.—Color goes to the head of the class in spring sportswear. And not only just to the head, but onto it as well—in some of the brightest, gayest hats you've seen in many a spring day.

Bright Irish green, light Chinese red, royal blue, rust and orange . . . they make grand accents with dark or neutral color sports tweeds, such as brown, oxford gray, beige and navy. And the smart thing to do is to add a second touch of your gay hat color in a scarf or some other accessory.

For more conservative wear, brown is the fashion-first color. And that's because so many of the sports tweeds and knits are in brown, beige mixtures and green, all of which take brown accessories so smartly.

Narrow-to-Wide Brims.

The classic, narrow brim cloche (the type shown in the top sketch) is a good one to choose in a bright color. The brim may droop all around or be rolled up at the back, side-back or side.

Then there are hats with medium width brims which are adjustable—planned to be rolled almost any way you like and in different ways at different times. Up at the back or side, straight back off the face, or turned up all around in Breton fashion.

The cloche illustrated is a hat you can make for yourself of—of all things—crepe paper in easy crochet stitch. (A simple waterproofing process makes it safe in showers.)

Directions will be sent you on receipt of the coupon and requested inclosures.

Amos Parrish,
Washington Post New York Fashion Bureau, 500 Fifth avenue, New York.

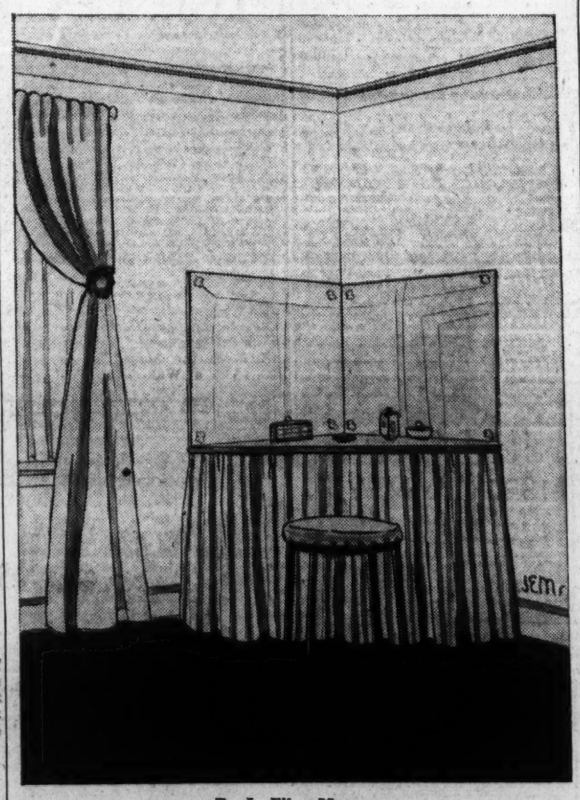
A Dressing Table Nicely Fills That Vacant Bedroom Corner



By Jo Ellen Maxson.

DRAPED DRESSING TABLES from the simple, tailored variety to those with frills and furbelows have taken a definite place in bedroom decoration.

They are so easily designed and give such smart effects that it is a challenge to any woman's imagination to bring ingenuity into her bedroom in this way.

Corners have always been a problem when arranging the furniture in a room. Now the corner dressing table has solved it. A triangular shelf is held to the walls by brackets, and a mirror is screwed to the walls on either side. In a smart green, brown and white bedroom the corner dressing table was draped in sandy striped chintz in these three colors with bindings of green. The lamps on either side of the dressing table had bases of white milk glass and shades of white parchment dotted in green.

In another bedroom there was simply no place for a dressing table . . . it was one of those rooms with many windows and very little wall space. A narrow panel of wall between two windows was mirrored from the top of the windows to the dressing table which extended out to the center of each window.

In a smart modern bedroom, a small alcove formed by a dormer window provided means for effective dressing-table treatment. The dressing table had a mirrored top, and was draped in vermillion glazed chintz with a wide pleated ruffle at the bottom. The ruffle was bound in white. The white bench in front of the dressing table was upholstered in white washable chintz with buttons and bindings of vermillion. Across the arched opening of this recessed alcove was a drapery of vermillion chintz with a pleated ruffle.

Miss Maxson gives individual help in home decoration problems. Write her in care of the Washington Post, or phone NA 4205 for appointment.

D.A.R. doings

Today's Highlights.

ALTHOUGH yesterday was devoted primarily to the conferences of the various State groups over luncheon tables or in committee rooms of Washington's leading hotels, today will be a very different matter.

What with speeches on subjects as varied as thrift, manuals for immigrants and National defense, much music of considerable charm in selections chosen and State regent reports, the dramatic possibilities of the congress will be built up steadily to the point of nominations.

* * * *

Highlights of the calendar today include:

9:30 A. M.

Reports of other committees: Better films, Mrs. Mildred Lewis Russel; Caroline E. Holt Scholarship Fund, Mrs. Harold S. Dickerson; conservation and thrift, Mrs. Roy A. Mayse; correct use of the Flag, Mrs. Arthur D. Wall; Daughters of the American Revolution Magazine, Mrs. Jean J. Labat.

Address by editor of the magazine, the famous writer of detective stories, Natalie Sumner Lincoln; "Manual for Immigrants," Mrs. Arthur W. Arnold; "Memorial Caroline Scott Harrison Liaison," Mrs. Walter L. Tobey; "Filing and Lending Historical Papers," Mrs. Flora Myers Gillentine; "Genealogical Records," Mrs. Harold K. Moore; "Girl Home Makers," Miss Eleanor M. Sweeney.

2 P. M.

Ellis Island, Mrs. J. Warren Perkins; "America and the Foreign Born" (address), Honorable Edward F. Corsi; "National Defense Through Patriotic Education," Mrs. William A. Becker; "The Outlook for National Defense" (address), Thomas H. Healy, assistant dean of the School of Foreign Service, Georgetown University.

7 P. M.

Detailed reports of the State regents in groups of 20 States in first group; 20 in second group; remainder of States in last group, along with reports from Hawaii, Philippine Islands, Cuba, Canal Zone, Alaska, China, France, England, Italy and Puerto Rico.

Today's Music.

INTERSPERSED between these State reports will be various musical selections. Music always plays an important part in all D. A. R. congresses. Those contributing to this part of today's programs will be:

Morning—William T. Cameron, harpist of the U. S. Navy Band.

Afternoon—Alexander Lutkiewitz, flutist; Elmer Wilkinson, French horn player, and Harry Wagner, pianist—all members of the U. S. Army Band, in one selection, "Serenade;" and Charles D. Hershey, marimbist, in a solo on that instrument, with Mr. Wagner accompanying. Mr. Hershey also is with the Army Band.

Evening—Musician Bernard Rosenthal, accompanied by the U. S. Navy Band Orchestra, will play a violin solo, "Gypsy Airs" and several patriotic anthems will be sung during the course of the session.

Nominations in Order.

PROBABLY the most potent of all the events today will come in the latter part of the evening program when, after the State regents' reports, nominations will be held to fill the unexpired term for reporter general to the Smithsonian Institution and for the offices of vice presidents general of the organization.

Mrs. Ralph Wisner and Mrs. L. J. Flint will entertain members of the Louisa St. Clair Chapter of the D. A. R. at a buffet supper Thursday evening at the Occidental Hotel.

Delegates from Maine are reminded that there will be a meeting in the Maine room of the Ambassador Hotel at 8:30 a. m. today.

Brass Rail Given.

THE Maryland State Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, will present this afternoon a brass rail in the lobby of Constitution Hall to the National society, in honor of Mrs. Henry Zoller, jr., retiring State regent, who is also a candidate for vice president general. One thousand dollars, the cost of the rail, is a special gift of the Maryland Daughters toward the debt on Constitution Hall.

Indiana Breakfast.

REPRESENTATIVE VIRGINIA JENCKES, of Indiana, will entertain all Indianan members of the D. A. R. Congress this morning at breakfast in the House restaurant. About 100 guests are expected.

Woman Judge To Come Here

Judge Florence E. Allen, of Cleveland, first woman to be appointed to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, will be the guest of honor at a luncheon given by Province 2 of Kappa Beta Pi, her legal sorority, April 28, at the Mayflower.

Among the speakers will be Homer S. Cummings, Attorney General; Melvin C. Hazen, president of the Board of Commissioners of the District, and the Hon. Genevieve Cline, associate justice of the United States Court of Customs Appeals at New York.

Following the luncheon Province 2 will hold its annual convention. Mrs. Helena Doocy Reed, trust officer of Lincoln National Bank, will preside; Miss Edith Cooper, of the Adjutant General's office, will act as secretary.

The committee on arrangements for the luncheon will meet at 5:15 o'clock this afternoon. Miss Beatrice Clephane is chairman. Other members are Miss Julia Banks, Miss Harriett Buckingham, Miss Mary Connelly, Miss Addie Hughes and Miss Grace Kanode.

BACHELOR—of ARTS

By JOHN ERSKINE

The Story So Far.

When Alec Hamilton returned to Columbia for his sophomore year, he felt himself a much wiser man. Most of his wisdom had been gleaned from women. Gladys, the college widow, had taught him that even a gold digger can be shaken off—when there is no more gold to dig. Betty Whistle, of Binghamton, had revealed the dangers of hammock sitting, even when one is at heart faithful to another. But red-haired Mimi, with whom he had fallen in love at first sight, had given him a purpose in life and a reason for growing up. Mimi was a straight shooter. Almost as soon as she had entered college her father had lost his money. Instead of going home to St. Louis, she had got a job as cashier in a drug store. Alec wanted to marry her immediately, but had to abandon the plan for lack of funds. Another obstacle was Woolsey, the bachelor professor, who was also in love with Mimi, and already had an education and a job.

Mimi wanted Alec to be a great man. It had occurred to him that perhaps getting on the football team would be a good start. So he cut short his summer vacation and rushed back to college to try for the scrub. He made it somehow, only to conclude that being in training meant a kind of a slavery-hard work, study, whether you felt like it or not, and no glory worth the mention, while Woolsey and the other fellows were left free to court Mimi. The football season ends and Alec goes in for singing.

A False Start.

"More or less," he admitted. "It was a false start, before I knew about the voice. I suppose I could rent the coat."

"You can buy it," she suggested sweetly. "You have your mother's fifty."

He stared at her. "That would be a rotten trick!"

She stared back. "Would it?" Can't you treat her the way you've treated me? You bought a car."

He wasn't angry, he was patient. "I've made a mess of things, but I haven't wanted to be shabby. That money is for my singing lessons."

His gentleness for a moment made her forget to be severe. "Perhaps you can save enough for the coat before you have to give a concert. When do you begin—after New Year's?"

His old joy in life returned. "Next week, girl—a tryout at Hackensack. How's that for success? A month ago I didn't even know I had a voice, and now the club is just leaning on me! We've only four first tenors, what you'd call tenors, and one of them went diving in the tank and his sinuses couldn't stand the chloride, so while he's home snuffling I get the center of the stage—one-third of it, anyway. Next Thursday evening."

He leaned very close. "I say, Mimi, will you come hear me sing?"

She answered with surprising speed. "Yes, I'm coming."

"Gosh, that's great! I'll call for you at six-thirty."

She waited a second to let her reply gather up its power. "Oh, but I'm going with Wally Blake!"

He continued to lean on the desk, but not because he had more to whisper. He was too weak to stand up.

"I forgot you knew Wally."

"I know quite a number of people."

"He's busy most nights with his band," reflected Alec hopefully, "he can't see you often."

"To me," said Mimi, smiling, "it hasn't seemed often. He doesn't need our sympathy. He's good deal of a man."

Alec moved toward the door as though walking in his sleep. "Wally's all right," he said, without looking at her. "I'm glad you—glad you." She did not try to detain him.

That night, after dinner at the fraternity house, Alec arranged to borrow the tailcoat of Mitchell, the freshman. It was a new coat and Mitchell had not yet had occasion to wear it, but he was still in the docile stage of brotherhood, and appeals could be made to his house spirit. Besides, it was known that he would spend that Thursday evening at a basket ball game, where tails were not needed. His new coat dropped like ripe fruit into Alec's hands.

At peace then so far as that problem was concerned, Alec took his way at a late hour to his room in the dormitory, and in the corridor he found himself shoulder to shoulder with Wally Blake, both stooping down and squinting into the mail boxes. Alec recognized the saxaphone player first, and straightened up. Wally didn't have his instrument along with him. This had been one of his social evenings! The tailcoat ceased to give any satisfaction.

"I say, Wally"—

"Hello! Didn't see who it was."

"No dance tonight?"

"Nope. Fussing."

Alec tried to keep an even and manly tone. "Coming to the concert Thursday?"

Promised to Take Girl.

"Mimi?"

"How d'you know?"

"No. Why?"

Alec nodded once or twice before springing his portentious disclosure. "She told me she was going with you—in the drug store—this afternoon!"

Wally declined to be shocked. "Then she knew it first, that's all. It frequently happens. When they're fond of you they lead you by the nose."

At that he went up the elevator to his innocent night's rest, leaving Alec as stationary as Lot's wife in front of the mail boxes. When they are fond of you!

From that moment until the Hackensack night he felt his way through a fog of jealousy and sentiment. He tracked Wally with shameless persistence, trying to estimate the duration and the intensity of moments possibly spent with Mimi. Shocked into unnatural tenderness by this cruel amputation of his romance, he wrote home pages of philosophical and otherwise enigmatical reflections to his sisters and his mother, and he sent his father one entire letter with no mention in it of money.

He managed not to mention his jealousy to Mimi. He was, in fact, growing up. He could almost grasp the tragic fact that his courtship hitherto had lacked a practical vein. This musical career, now that he had got into it, seemed nebulous. The prospect of chapel choir and of funerals began to fade. He came to a magnanimous decision—he would postpone his singing lessons till after the concert, and then, unless his voice justified itself by some unmistakable triumph, he would return his mother's fifty untouched.

Allowance Dwindles.

On the night of the concert he got into his white waistcoat and tie, accessories which could not gracefully be rented or borrowed, and which therefore had shrunk the remains of his December allowance to $1.17. The dollar he carried in his billfold, the change he dropped into his right trouser pocket. Thank heaven, there would be no expenses! The club went and came in a bus, chartered by the manager, and the refreshments would be furnished by the musical aristocrats of Hackensack, who would also complete the evening with a dance.

Handling his small wealth, Alec recalled gloomily that he would be going home to Trenton for the holidays, and the family would expect Christmas gifts. One mother, one father, two sisters and a ticket to Trenton, all out of $1.17! Well, he had other things to worry about. Perhaps there would be a windfall.

He got into Mitchell's coat, not a perfect fit, but near enough if he could keep it together in front. It had a tendency to deploy, leaving the waistcoat uncovered. He must remember to hold in his elbows as he sang.

Over the tails he wore his summer coat, because it was black. His white muffler, he hoped, would protect his chest. The other fellows had opera hats, but now that he was trying to be a man of affairs he did not consider the expense justified. To his newly acquired moral courage his old soft thing looked adequate.

Riding out on the bus, he found himself welcome, even popular. Albert was proud of the house, to produce a needed tenor at such short notice, and the other musical veterans were in a genial mood, the Hackensack audience being proverbially lenient.

When they were waiting to go on the stage, humming lightly to tune up, Alec peeped through a tear in the curtain to find Mimi. There were hundreds of people. Perhaps, after all, she couldn't come. Wally might be tooting away at some dance. He was glad he didn't have to see her—with Wally.

Leader Claps Hands.

The leader clapped his hands for silence. "Pay attention, now, fellows! We're going on in a minute. That marching song first, you know! Say, are you all fit to appear in public? Everybody got his tie on straight and his clothes buttoned? Now, remember, tenors, when you come in at that high place—you know, 'Strong men of yore,' on the fourth page where you have the A flat—well, for God's sake, don't come in too soon! It isn't a solo. Wait for the other parts! Or you might watch me, for a change. You can't miss it if you watch; I'll give you a good beat. Everybody on, now! Step on it!"

Once out in their place, the glee club formed in a graceful half-moon with the leader, a lone star, well in front, midway between the tips—Alec being one of the tips. He felt much exposed. Mitchell's coat, in this crisis, insisted on bulging. Alec grasped the sides firmly and held himself together.

The stage seemed unnaturally high. Far below, a large and benevolent audience was smiling up, ready to be pleased. Again Alec tried to find Mimi, but there wasn't time to examine all the rows. The leader had his arms out and was framing his lips in inaudible but energetic last warnings. Everybody took a deep breath.

They began well enough, but just before they got to "strong men of yore," Alec discovered Mimi in the thirteenth row beside Wally Blake. His jaw dropped and he forgot to sing. Wally was leaning back in patronizing comfort, with a grin on his face and his right arm over the back of Mimi's chair. She wore a look of friendly concern, as though she hoped against hope that the marching song would come to a good end. Alec forgot where he was. His thought was riveted on a neat plan to separate her from that saxophone player as soon as the concert was over.

Alec Invited to Return.

The leader, missing one of his too few tenors, made desperate signals to Alec to come on in again. When the signals registered at last, Alec, abruptly roused, thought they summoned him to the A flat on the fourth page. "Strong——" he shouted, then collapsed, finding his contribution inappropriate.

Though the club hung onto their gravity, the audience gave way, and he could see Mimi laughing almost as loud as Wally. For a moment she covered her eyes with her hand, but her shoulders shook, and when she took her hand down she caught his gaze and laughed right out.

He could not have imagined, that night or the days after, a more tragic collapse of his world. His sophomore year, nearly half gone, had produced only a laborious football season, without glory, and a ridiculous debut in the fine arts. He had given Mimi nothing to be proud of, but too specifically something to laugh at. These months had been wasted. Of course, he had studied hard, the marks were pretty good, and Barth's course kept you thinking, but how could a small profit like that offset the losses?

When he went home for the Christmas holidays Mimi packed up for St. Louis. For her sake he was glad she could see her folks, but he was a little surprised. Last year she had stayed in New York.

"I suppose they have a substitute at the drug store." He was seeing her off on the train.

"She's a better cashier than I'll ever make."

"But you're coming back, of course!"

"I certainly am!"

"They keep the job for you?"

"If they don't I'll get another."

He wondered at her confidence, but at the time thought no more about it.

Gelatin Turns to Another Duty—Filling Pies and Sandwiches.

By Susan Mills.

In this age of quick preparation of delicious desserts and salads, the housewife turns to the box of gelatin for inspiration and assured results. She knows its usefulness in the making of salads, meat or fish loaves and desserts.

But does she know gelatin can aid her in the making of pies and sandwiches. If she does not, it is time for an introduction.

Flavored gelatin combined with fruits can offset a large share of the expense of pie fillings because as a base it requires less additional fruit and because the gelatin prevents the fruit juices from soaking into the crust.

Dissolve one package of quick-setting gelatin (raspberry flavor) in one cup of boiling water; add one-half cup prune juice, one-half cup canned pineapple juice, one cup stewed prunes, chopped; two slices canned pineapple cut into small pieces. Chill until it begins to thicken, then pour into pastry shell. Chill until firm. Before serving cover with whipped cream and chopped brown almonds or macaroon crumbs.

Sandwich fillings are new, interesting and economical when made up with flavored gelatin. Molded in a loaf pan, the mixture is easily sliced and conforms to the size of the slice of bread without wasteful trimming or time taken for spreading.

BEFORE!
Fat as a Freak in a Sideshow

AFTER!
Graceful as an Artist's Model

I couldn't help but overhear what they said about me . . . cruel, sarcastic, biting things about my fat. It was awful. I was a social outcast in spite of diet, exercise and drastic purgatives. For nothing did me any good. Everything I ate turned to fat.

Then, a real friend told me of a simple corrective for abnormal obesity, prescribed by doctors the world over, and put up in convenient tablets containing the right quantity. I took 4 a day. Results were amazing. I ate what I liked, took no purgatives or exercise, yet all that excess fat disappeared. Today I'm as slender and graceful as an artist's model.

That is what thousands who have reduced the Marmola way might well tell you if they had the chance. Would you like to learn their secret? Then buy a package of Marmola, read the simple directions, and start at once to get rid of burdensome fat!

Marmola is put up by one of the best known medical laboratories in America. Since 1907 men and women have purchased more than 20 million packages. Could any better recommendation be had?

Start today! You will soon experience Marmola's benefits. When you have gone far enough, stop taking Marmola. And you will bless the day when you first discovered this marvelous reducing agent!

New "Average Congressman's Wife" Doesn't Merely Reflect Husband's Personality

To Win Her Own Laurels Is Her Ambition These Days

By Hope Ridings Miller.

TIME WAS when the average Congressman's wife deposited all offspring, who were not already married, in college and came to Washington with the sole aim of being an attractive background for her distinguished husband.

With graying or white hair, she was chiefly interested in knitting, writing letters to her grandchildren, or studying styles to determine what the woman-past-middle-age wears.

New Deal Changed That.

But that woman was drowned under the New Deal wave that carried on its crest a new type of Congressional wife. An individual who stands on her own feet and is not satisfied with being a reflector for her husband's personality. A woman who wins laurels on her own hook and spends her time, left from minding her babies, in promoting her career, riding her hobby, or filling social engagements—the fruit of her own personality and her individual endeavor, rather than her husband's position.

These new Congressional wives have an organization of their own, the 73 Club, which yesterday gave a luncheon at the Brook Farm Tea House at which Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was guest of honor. A brief study of some of the members who attended the luncheon will serve to produce a composite picture of this modern Congressional wife.

Mrs. Otha D. Wearin, of Iowa, president, is a worthy example of this new type. She is vitally interested in politics, and takes an active part in her husband's campaigns, official business, and farming activities. In Washington, in addition to her club work, Mrs. Wearin finds time to work in her husband's office, although she is not on the pay roll.

Her interests, however, are not bounded by her husband's career. She is a leader in the Federated Women's Club of her district in Iowa and takes an active part in many civic organizations. She prides herself most, however, on being a plain farm woman from the southwest section of her State where she and her husband live on a farm and where her parents and grandparents are still tilling the soil every day.

Everyone from the north western section of Missouri knows of the activities of Mrs. Richard Duncan, second vice president. As Presbyterial president of upper Missouri, as a member of the Y. W. C. A. board of St. Joseph, and as an active worker in the Parent-Teacher Association, her contacts and efficient leadership have attracted much favorable attention.

One of the outstanding musicians of the club is its secretary, Mrs. Edward Burke, of Nebraska. She taught piano and violin for a number of years before her marriage. Since then, she has devoted much time to her music and has often appeared on programs both in Omaha, on the West Coast and in Washington.

Interest in Economics.

Mrs. Denver Church, of California, treasurer of the 73 Club, spends much time studying National questions, as she is particularly interested in economics and politics. At her home in Fresno, she is also president of a literary organization and takes an active part in many clubs.

Mrs. Will Rogers, of Oklahoma, was interested in governmental affairs long before she came to Washington, having taught political economy and history before her marriage. Since her husband is Representative at Large from Oklahoma, much of her time in Washington is given to entertaining constituents, but she finds enough spare moments to discharge her duties as club historian efficiently.

Writers constitute a large group within the organization. Mrs. Ralph N. Eltse, of California, is widely known to readers of the Saturday Evening Post as the author of many short stories, published under the name of Oma Almona Davis.

Poet and Writer.

Mrs. Edward C. Moran, of Maine, as a poet, short-story writer and author of historical articles. Her literary activities here include the chairmanship of the poetry group of the District of Columbia branch of the League of American Pen Women, and her poems have been read here before a number of organizations and over the radio. She is the only Phi Beta Kappa in the Congressional Club.

Mrs. Moran's interests are not limited to literary endeavors. She has taken an active part in her husband's campaigns and is one of Maine's leaders in club and welfare work.

Mrs. Randolph Carpenter, of Kansas, has the distinction of being one of the most widely traveled members of the 73 Club. Beginning with her honeymoon trip abroad, Mrs. Carpenter has traveled extensively both in this country and in Europe. Her interests are now centered in her home, books and politics.

Helped Husband.

Mrs. Lawrence E. Imhoff, of Ohio, is another of the Congressional wives who have taken an active part in their husband's campaigns, having made many speeches in his behalf all over Ohio's Eighteenth District.

Although Mrs. Terry Carpenter, of Nebraska, one of the younger members of the club, now gives most of her attention to her small child and her social duties. She is also a singer and pianist. After she was graduated from the University of Colorado, she studied at the Lamont School of Music and later appeared on many musical programs in Colorado and Nebraska.

Another of the youngest members, Mrs. John Young Brown, of Kentucky, even though she has two small children, finds time to take an active part in club work both here and in her home state.

Although these are by no means all the wives who are helping their husbands by taking an active part in campaigns, by being club leaders, and by promoting their husband's careers at the same time they are developing their own, they are at least typical of these new women who, taken as a whole, present the composite picture of the New Congressional Wife.

Twentieth Century Club Sections to Hold Combined Meet.

DR. JOHN RATHBONE OLIVER, of Johns Hopkins University, widely known physician and author of "Fear," will speak on "Fears of Childhood, Adolescence, and Youth" this morning at the annual convention of the District of Columbia Congress of Parents and Teachers at the Wardman Park Hotel Theater.

• • • •

Miss Esther Requarth, of the Playhouse of Evanston, Ill., and the Gateway School, of New York, will speak this afternoon on "The Child a Promise, Not a Problem."

Hold Joint Meeting.

A COMBINED meeting of the members of the education and music sections of the Twentieth Century Club will be held at 11 a. m. today in Gordon Junior High School.

The program will include a brief discussion of objectives and procedure in class work, songs by each grade and numbers by the glee clubs and orchestra of the school. Mrs. Lawrence Martin, Mrs. Walter Hilton, Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith and Mrs. V. B. Jackson have been active in arranging for the meeting.

The Art and Archaeology League will make a special visit at 2 o'clock this afternoon to the Freer Gallery of Art, Twelfth and B streets southwest.

The Woman's Club of Chevy Chase will hold a meeting at 12:15 o'clock today in the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church.

The League of Republican Women will entertain at a tea at 4:30 this afternoon at the clubhouse, Sixteenth street and Scott Circle northwest.

Dr. Victor Alfaro and Dr. F. D. Costenbader will be the principal speakers tonight at the meeting of the John Quincy Adams Parent-Teacher Association. The subjects of discussion will be "The Effect of Upper Respiratory Disease on the Progress of the Child," by Dr. Alfaro and "The Proper Care of Vision Among School Children," by Dr. Costenbader.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies Aid Board of Lady Visitors, Garfield Memorial Hospital, will be at 10:30 tomorrow morning in the Kellogg Building, Garfield Hospital.

Princess Receives Testimonial For Patriotic Services to State

A TESTIMONIAL to the Princess Cantacuzene for her civic and patriotic services to Florida was presented to her by the Florida Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution at a luncheon yesterday at the Hamilton Hotel.

Other women's organizations of the State joined the D. A. R. in the tribute to Princess Cantacuzene, which was a volume bound in Florentine leather with the following inscription on fine parchment paper: "As an expression of appreciation to Florida's most distinguished daughter in recognition of your fine citizenship, your fearlessness and your personal integrity."

Among the organizations that helped in preparing the tribute were Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation, Auxiliary of the United Spanish War Veterans, Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Florida State League of Women Voters, Sarasota Business and Professional Women's Clubs and the Daughters of the Confederacy. Besides the signature of the governor and his cabinet, 280 of Florida's most prominent women signed the testimonial.

The presentation was made by Mrs. John Leonardi, of the Florida Chapter of the D. A. R.

Princess Cantacuzene has a home at Sarasota, Fla., and divides her time between there and Washington. She is active in National defense and educational work in the State.

Mark System Nonsense, Says Educator Here

William Curry Advocates Abolishing Marks and Exams, Too.

DO AWAY with competitive school marks and examinations. Eliminate the needless discipline that surrounds children. Encourage the spread of coeducation.

These are some of the theories of William Burnlee Curry, of Trinity College, Cambridge, educator known internationally for his liberal opinions, who is spending two weeks in the United States.

"Competitive marks are nonsense," declared Dr. Curry yesterday afternoon as he sat, pipe in hand, before the living-room fireplace in the Richard W. Hogue home, 125 Third street northeast. He spoke last night before the Progressive Education Association.

"There isn't a teacher alive who would give the same mark to the same paper two weeks later unless he happened to remember the original grading," continued the educator, whose terse English speech revealed no trace of several years' residence in this country. Dr. Curry was headmaster of Oak Lane Country Day School, Philadelphia, for a few terms.

Thinks System Bad.

"Even if an accurate estimate of a pupil's ability could be made through competitive marks, I think the system is bad. It does exactly the opposite of what it is supposed to do. Instead of encouraging students at the bottom of the class, it discourages them. Can you imagine a pupil in sixteenth place becoming wildly elated at the prospect of climbing into fifteenth? Of course not. So you see competitive marks encourage only those at the head of the class. And they don't need encouragement."

Teachers who lay great importance on grades are evading their responsibility, in the opinion of Dr. Curry. The teacher's main job, believes the Englishman, is to imbue the students with a desire to learn and to study.

"We all forget most of the factual knowledge we learn in school," said Dr. Curry. "That is why the most important thing we can gain in the schoolroom is an interest in certain subjects; an interest so intense that we will want to study those subjects deeply."

Thwarting Rules.

Parents are as bad as teachers when it comes to believing children will get into mischief if given much freedom, Dr. Curry has found. As a result, boys and girls from infancy are hedged in with rules and regulations that thwart their natural impulses.

"Some of the discipline is inspired by what the neighbors will think," declared the educator. "And some of it is the outcome of the power that adults delight in exercising over children. No matter what cause lies back of unnecessary discipline, the effect is disastrous to the child. If his natural impulses are seriously thwarted and he is unable to express resentment, that resentment will become a cancerous growth that will eventually break out in malignant behavoir.

Approves Coeducation.

Dr. Curry thinks coeducation has every advantage over segregation of the sexes. A community made up almost exclusively of boys or girls is unnatural and is bound to lead to unnatural consequences, he believes.

"But coeducation shouldn't be carried on in a half-hearted manner," he cautioned. "Many boarding schools admit both boys and girls and then proceed to do everything they can to keep them apart. They are permitted to talk together only at certain times. They are separated in almost all outside activities. This is likely to arouse an unhealthy interest in the opposite sex. At Dartington Hall there are no regulations that have to do with boys and with girls. All regulations are made for the entire student body. That is the way it should be," declared Dr. Curry.

Colorful Pomp of D. A. R. Congress Is a Gay Eyeful to All Beholders

Forty-Second Convention Marked by Brilliant Setting.

By Willy Snow Ethridge.

THE pageantry and pomp that surrounds a Continental congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution is a dazzling eye full. Even on a chilly, rainy day like yesterday, when you would think the daughters would feel a let down, there were gardenias cascading from shoulders, red roses drooping over arms, white-robed pages getting under foot, flags waving over head, blue ribbons floating from necks and microphones roaring and lights glaring.

Even at the gray hour of 9:30 in the morning, it was so. I know—for I sprinted into the doors of the vast Continental Hall, where the sessions are being held, just a few seconds before that time and there was an air of excitement and bustle and expectancy all about.

In the lobby, a line of fashionably dressed women was stretching taut a heavy blue velvet rope. It was to mark off, I suspected, a passageway for the president general and her party, but I didn't stop to find out. I knew if I did I would be locked out of the auditorium like the virgins with the oilless lamps. Even as it was, an important-looking person, holding her shoulders very erect, was saying to other important looking persons, "It is time to close the doors," and the doors were slowly being swung to.

On the fern-decked, flower-laden stage, second leader of the United State Marine Band Arthur S. Whitcomb, resplendent in red and blue, was trumpeting the assembly call on his golden bugle. He blew it clearly and sweetly, as heaven knows he should, he having opened Continental congresses for more than 20 years. He started doing it long before he was so important a figure and now he does it just for the love of it.

A moment later, the organ rolled into a stirring entrance march. Down the center aisle came the chairman of the pages—sturdy, fresh-looking Miss Dorothy De G. Jenkins, of Washington, carrying before her the United States flag, and the assistant chairman of the pages, boyish-bobbed, blonde Mrs. Ray Englar, carrying the shining blue silk banner of the D. A. R.

At Attention.

The members of the audience rose to their feet, placed their right hands on their hearts and faced the flags as they moved slowly down the aisle. As the pages neared the stage, one went to the left, one to the right. On the stage, they crossed behind the National officers and dignitaries and stood at attention, holding their banners, one on each side of the platform.

Then there was a flurry in the auditorium. Heads craned. Applause burst forth.

The president general, Mrs. Russell William Magna, escorted by her pages, was sweeping down the center aisle. Like a bride at a wedding, she and her attendants held every eye. First came three young officers—one representing the Navy, one the Army and one the Marines. Next, the four personal pages of the president general, in simple white dresses and white hats and white shoes. One carried a huge bouquet of red roses, evidently a gift to the president general.

And then Mrs. Magna herself! Dressed in a soft shade of blue—the color of delphiniums—she carried an enormous sheath of iris and other blue flowers. Her dress was of crepe de chine with bands of blue fox around the sleeves; the skirt was straight and touched the floor. Her hat was a large, transparent straw of the same shade of blue and her shoes were pale blue, too. It was a perfect shade for her fair skin and corn-tassel colored hair.

As she mounted the steps to the stage, she bowed to enthusiastic friends in the boxes. The applause redoubled. The officers on the stage clapped their hands smartly. It was truly a triumphant march.

Before the microphone she called the congress to order in a far-carrying, full voice. There was scripture and prayer; there was the pledge of allegiance to the flag with every Daughter holding out her hand in salute; there was the singing of the National anthem.

The congress was in full swing.

• • • •

"Sandwich Man."

A very interested spectator at these proceedings was the father of the president general, Col. Walter Scott. He sat in the first box to the right of the stage and watched every move of his prominent daughter.

But his interest isn't solely in his daughter. He covered many a congress before Mrs. Magna became president general. And one year, when the business of the congress was delayed by the tabulating of votes, he set all the delegates up to sandwiches and pop and pie. Since then he has been called by grateful friends "the old sandwich man."

The president general has not only her father to back her morally while she presides; she has her niece for one of her personal pages. She is Edith Magna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Magna, of Massachusetts. Mrs. Joseph Magna and Mrs. William A. Beckler, of New Jersey, chairman of the National defense for the D. A. R., and the president general were all classmates not so many years ago at Smith College.

And, speaking of pages, there are just 275 of them at this Forty-sixth congress. Miss Jenkins, the "mamma" of them all, is as busy as the old woman in the shoe. There are "press pages" and "stage pages" and "chief pages" and "flower pages" and what-kind-of-pages-have-you? There are 20 flower pages just to "cart" the flowers around. That is Miss Jenkins' word for it—not mine. I would never think of mentioning carting an orchid around, for instance. And it seems to me they distribute more orchids than anything else. Right in the middle of the meeting yesterday morning I saw a page "cart" one to Mrs. Raymond G. Kimbell, the chaplain general.

Mrs. Kimbell was in a brown and beige print with a large brown straw hat, trimmed in tiny cream-colored flowers. She smile broadly as she pinned the orchid on her shoulder.

But to return to the flower pages. Not satisfied with delivering dozens and dozens of corsages sent by friends to friends, they sent a corsage themselves yesterday to their chief, Miss Jenkins.

• • • •

Taking an active part in the proceedings yesterday morning was a woman mayor. As you, perhaps, have guessed, she was Mrs. Robert J. Johnstow, a mayor, of Humboldt, Iowa. She was one-time treasurer general of the National Society and now is chairman of the resolutions committee. She read out her resolutions yesterday in an authoritative voice and they were adopted with such dispatch that even the president general smiled.

• • • •

Attentive Ex-President.

Sitting on the very edge of the platform during yesterday's session was a dear, white-haired old lady, whose picture could have served well on the Mother's Day stamp. She was Mrs. George Maynard Minor, one of the three honorary president generals present at the congress. Her white hair peeped out from beneath a black hat; but her dress was sea green, as lively as her attentive eyes.

The other two honorary president generals in attendance are Mrs. George Thacher Guernsey, of Kansas, and Mrs. Grace Lincoln Brosseau, of Connecticut. These former chief executives have all the privileges of delegates and when they speak to a motion, the daughters listen with the greatest respect.

• • • •

One of the most cheering sights I have seen in these lean years was the one staged when Mrs. Magna asked in a rousing speech for money to pay off the indebtedness on the D. A. R. property.

As soon as she had said, "Ohio leads off with a fragrant corsage of $100," Mrs. McCurry, State regent of Georgia, jumped up and pledged $250.

Then daughters flocked down the main aisle one right after another to present their corsages. Corsages of $200, of $300, of $500, of $1,000. All of them left me gasping, but the president general kept her poise beautifully until Mrs. Frederick Palmer Lattimer, State vice regent of Connecticut, announced "A pledge of $1,634."

Mothers Take Classes Now, Report Shows

Parent Education Becoming Popular, Revealed at P.-T. A. Meet.

Getting the children off to school in the morning and seeing they do their homework at night is only half the educational responsibility of the modern mother. She must get out her own books and attend classes in parent education.

The popular idea that mothers of today neglect their children for bridge and cocktail parties was contradicted yesterday in reports at the annual convention of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers. These reports showed a rapidly increasing interest in parent education. Mrs. Benjamin Russell Wood, chairman of the parent education committee, told of the work being done in that field.

"Classes in parent education have been conducted in the District for more than two years," she said. "The emotional development of the child has been the central theme of study this year. However, an important feature of the work has been the discussion of problems arising in the individual study groups."

Parent education, Mrs. Wood pointed out, is not confined to the work done in the study groups nor to the work done in the Parent Teacher organization. The parents' study groups make it a point to attend the conferences on education and family relationships held in the District; to read the latest books on sociology and psychology, and to take the magazines dealing with the child and home from the parents' point of view.

"The public library works with the parent study groups in making the best information on parent problems available at all times," said Mrs. Wood. "Recently the libraries have published a pamphlet showing the best ways for parents to use their leisure time to help their children."

The theme of the Parent-Teacher convention this year is "Our Future Citizens." Mrs. J. N. Saunders, president of the District Congress, presided at the morning session, which was given over to reports of the association's officers.

C.A.R. Children Hold Successful Opening Meet

Mrs. Roosevelt's Manners Acclaimed by One Young Delegate.

Shining-eyed and eager, proudly wearing on their chests the ribbons that proclaimed them delegates, the Children of the American Revolution met for their thirty-ninth annual conference in the Red Cross Building yesterday.

Even the heavy rain failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the young patriots; hundreds of them attended both the morning and afternoon sessions and joined wholeheartedly in the program.

After the opening ceremony, which included a concert by the United States Marine Band, and patriotic songs, Mrs. C. A. Swann Sinclair, National president, greeted the delegates. She told them their society was pervaded with the spirit of George Washington, and pointed out they constituted the hope of America.

The afternoon session was given over to the reports of National officers. One of the most atractive features of the program was the presentation of flowers to members of the Continental Congress by little girls in colonial costume. Especially charming was 3-year-old Ann Carter, who later presented flowers to Mrs. Roosevelt.

As the Children of the Revolution waited in the rain for taxis which were to take them to the White House, one little girl was heard to whisper to another.

"I am glad I'll get to see Mrs. Roosevelt, they say she has such nice manners."

The convention will continue through Friday. Tomorrow's sessions will be given over to the reports of the various projects undertaken by the society in recent years. Among the most interesting are the care and preservation of the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier of the American Revolution, and the restoration of the Mary Ball Washington room at Wakefield.

"I want to buy some Four Roses."

"What size, ma'am?" said the clerk.

"One ounce, I think."

Kids' Party.

A day about a youngsters' party was telling a story the other day about a youngsters' party he attended at the home of the distinguished Mrs. George Beale in Georgetown, when Pansy Bloomer, her granddaughter—now the gracious Mrs. Alfred Pembroke Thom—was about 10.

"A huge bag was suspended from the partition between the two huge parlors," he said, "and after we kids had pinned tails all over the usual donkey—and everything else, too—we were each given a little cane and encouraged to take a whack at this bag. It wasn't long before one of the boys gave the paper bag a particularly vicious whack and it burst."

• • • •

"The whole bunch of boys and girls was gathered close under the bag and when the bag burst we were deluged with 5 pounds of hard candies that rolled in every direction to the farthest corners of both rooms. What a scramble!

"I'll never forget that party!"

What Today Means to You

"Aries."

If April 18 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:30 to 10:30 a. m., from 3:30 to 5:30 p. m. and from 9:30 to 11:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:30 to 8:30 a. m., from 11:30 a. m. to 1:30 p. m. and from 6:30 to 8:30 p. m.

It is possible that on this day you may meet, socially, a person whom, if there is anything to the theory of transmigration of the soul, must have been a magpie in the life before this, judging by his proclivity to chatter, and his lack of conscience regarding the appropriation of other people's original ideas or plans. Be very careful what you discuss in front of such an individual, and under no circumstances confide anything of a private nature.

If April 18 is your birthday, and you are of the fair sex, your charming personality assures you of unlimited opportunity to play havoc with the heart strings of the susceptible male. If you are married, however, your virtues and charms will be fully appreciated by your husband and family. On account of your personality you will find it advisable to always exercise the greatest discretion so as to never place yourself in the position of being charged with being frivolous.

The child born on April 18, when it reaches its teens, will go through a "spouting" stage, as it will be thoroughly convinced it has all the qualifications needed to become either a great stage favorite, elocutionist, or if musically inclined its aspiration will be to honor the operatic stage. Fortitude is all that will be needed to bear up under this period of vocal activity, for time will probably cause a change in its ambitions.

The woman who celebrates April 18 as her natal day must not allow her dramatic instincts to lead her to indulge in emotionalism in her everyday life. Bear in mind that there is nothing more annoying to the male of the species than a woman who becomes theatrical when playing in the domestic drama of everyday life. If you are wise, control your natural impulse to display tempermentality.

The man born on April 18 is mentally lert and, as a rule, has a fluency of speech which, if put to pratical use, can be used advantageously on the lecture platform as well as in the pulpit. Domestic life will be his best medium for happiness and contentment.

People born on April 18 generally are blessed with not only a sense of appreciation for the artistic, but many have both a vivid as well as poetic imagination which, if used, would in all likelihood gain them recognition in the literary world.

Successful people born on April 18:

Richard Harding Davis, author.
John Henry Dolph, artist.
Ralph Hoyt, clergyman and poet.
Sanford E. Church, jurist and politican.
Henry P. Tappan, educator.
John Young Mason, statesman.

Action Urged Now on Old Age Pensions

Seven Groups Demand Enactment of Law by Congress.

Plan Is Proved Cheapest by 28 States, Senate Body Informed.

Demand for enactment of an old age pension law for the District was voiced at a public hearing yesterday in the Senate District Committee room in the Capitol, by a sub-committee headed by Senator Robert Reynolds (Democrat), of North Carolina.

The seven witnesses represented special committees, labor organizations and the Federation of Citizens Associations. All urged enactment of a law at this session, although there were differences of opinion on various features of the bills introduced by Senators Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), of New York, and Arthur Capper (Republican), of Kansas, ranking minority member of the committee.

The hearing will be resumed at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow afternoon in the committee room. Senator Reynolds said he had received requests from several other persons to be heard.

Epstein Urges Bill.

"The District of Columbia is far behind the rest of the United States and the world," Abraham Epstein, of New York, representing the American Association for Social Security, said. Mr. Epstein asserted the number of aged persons is constantly increasing while opportunity for them to get employment is steadily decreasing.

Describing almshouses as "our National disgrace," Mr. Epstein said 28 States had enacted old age pension laws and had found that it cost less to maintain indigent persons through pensions than in institutions. The average for 1933, he said, was $19 per pensioner as against $44 per inmate of institutions.

"Wherever the people have had a chance to express themselves on this question they have voted from four to one to seven to one in favor of old age pensions," he said. "If the citizens of the District had the right they would have voted overwhelmingly for it."

Urges 65 as Limit.

Of the States having pension laws he said 14 had fixed the age limit at 65 years; 13, at 70; 1, at 68; Alaska, at 60, and Wisconsin voters had recommended 60 years. He suggested 65 for the District and urged flexible payments to meet needs of individual cases.

Indorsement of the Capper bill by the American Federation of Labor was voiced by W. G. Hushing, legislative representative of the federation. Administration of the law should be vested in the District Commissioners and not in the Board of Public Welfare, Mr. Hushing said.

The age limit should be reduced to 60 years; there should be a maximum property holding fixed, and there should be standard payments, he said.

1,000 Eligible Now.

A survey made by the graduate students of the National Catholic School of Social Welfare, Mr. Magnusson said, had indicated 1,000 would be eligible and apply for pensions now. It costs $269 each to maintain the 702 old persons at Blue Plains, to which should be added charges for capital investment, interest, depreciation, which would bring the cost per inmate around $300 a year, he said.

The amount paid pensioners should be based on their need, Miss Louise McGuire, of the National Catholic Social Welfare School said, opposing the fixed limit in the Copeland bill.

Kanawha Studied By U. S. River Body

Charlestoh, W. Va., April 17 (Spl.).—Inspecting available sites for proposed flood-control projects along the Ohio River watershed, members of the construction committee of the Mississippi River Commission moved up the Kanawha River today.

United States engineers have designated sites for 17 flood reservoirs on the Ohio River watershed, including 3 on the Kanawha and others on the Monongahela, Muskingum and Licking River basins.

One such project is now under construction in the Tygarts Valley at Grafton. Another is now being surveyed by engineers from the Charleston engineering offices in the Blue Stone River near Hinton.

Noble Connor Named Sales Tax Collector

Charleston, W. Va., April 17 (Spl.).—Appointment of Noble Conner, a Charleston real state man, as an assistant in the revenue bureau of the State Tax Department, is announced by Fred L. Fox, State tax commissioner. He will have charge of the collection of the new 2 per cent State consumers' sales tax.

Fox announced a ruling by the department which exempts 5-cent sales from the consumers' sales tax, but it may not be applied to the 5 cents exceeding a dollar.

Westminster, Md., April 17 (Spl.). The spring meeting of the Carroll County Women's Democratic Club was held here yesterday with Mrs. James Gustavus Whitley, Baltimore, as principal speaker.

Other speakers included Mrs. Mary H. Duvall, Baltimore, president of the State Women's Democratic Club of Maryland, and John Wood, attorney. Steps were taken to affiliate the local organization with the State-wide group.

An invitation was also accepted by the Carroll County Club to attend a luncheon given by the State organization at Hagerstown, May 17. Gov. A. Ritchie has been invited to attend, it was announced.

Cafe Man Indicted In Sherley Slaying

Claude H. Krout to Go On Trial Next Week.

Hagerstown, Md., April 1 (Spl.). The grand jury, recalled yesterday by Judge Frank G. Wagaman, today returned an indictment for murder against Claude H. Krout, 47, restaurant proprietor, in the death of Owen R. Sherley, 61, hotel proprietor.

Sherley was shot down in the lobby of his hotel here April 7, following an argument over rent paid by Krout to Sherley, in whose building his restaurant was located. Krout will go on trial next week.

Twenty others were indicted by the grand jury and also will be tried next week.

Husband Tried to Run Over Her, Wife Says

Frederick, Md., April 17 (Spl.).—Married 41 years and the mother of 15 children, Mrs. Fannie E. James entered suit in the Circuit Court today for divorce from her husband Charles W. James, Brunswick, alleging among other things that he attempted to run her down with his automobile. She further alleges nonsupport and cruelty.

An order was signed by Judge Arthur D. Willard requriing the defendant to pay his wife $30 per month for support of herself and children and $35 counsel fees pending the suit.

350 Employes Strike At Charleston Ax Plant

Charleston, W. Va., April 17 (Spl.).—Employes of the Kelly Ax & Tool Co.'s plant here, said to be the largest ax factory in the world, went on strike today. City police reported 350 men walked out.

A conference of company officials and union leaders was started immediately. Neither side would discuss the cause nor the number of workers affected.

2 Held for Grand Jury In Theft of Automobile

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 17 (Spl.).—Charged with theft of an automobile here Sunday, Louis Butts, 21, and John Kane, 20, of Berkeley County, were arrested by a Virginia State policeman yesterday as they drove through Brucetown, Va.

They were returned here and ordered held for the May grand jury action after a hearing in magistrate's court.

Parish Dance Scheduled.

A dance will be given by the St. Michael's Parish Association Wednesday night in the Ardmore (Md.) parish hall.

House Told District Needs Imperative

Rep. Cochran Asks More Note Be Taken of Legislation.

Sewage Disposal Is Urgently Needed, He Tells Members.

An appeal to a lethargic House to take more interest in District affairs was made yesterday by Representative Cochran (Democrat), Missouri, while speaking in behalf of his bill to authorize the District Commissioners to construct an $8,000,000 sewage disposal plant at Blue Plains, D. C.

Cochran was the only member to speak on District matters during the course of more than five hours of general debate on the District supply bill.

General debate will continue today, and consideration of the bill is expected to start tomorrow under the five-minute rule. Cochran's appeal for elimination of pollution in the Potomac River through erection of the sewage disposal plant did arouse some questions from interested members and appeared to incur no opposition.

The bill would pave the way for the Public Works Administration to allocate the $8,000,000 to the District with the provision that Congress thereafter would appropriate $40,000 annually thereafter from District funds to operate the plant.

Good Place to Start.

Recalling that the House recently passed a resolution to create a special committee to recommend legislation that will stop the pollution of streams over the country, Cochran said:

"Here at our very door we find one of the greatest streams in the country, from a recreation standpoint, polluted by the sewage of the Nation's Capital to such an extent that it is practically devoid of fish life, only the more hardy fish finding it possible to survive.

"Can we ask the States to stop the pollution of streams when we permit such a condition to exist?

"Stop this pollution and summer resorts will spring up over night on the shores of the Potomac. The land abutting the river will increase in price far above the cost of the project. The people of Washington will spend their money at home rather than travel miles to find a suitable place for bathing."

Cochran said that he understood that members of the House had little time to consider the problems of the District, but he added that the "responsibility to legislate for the District of Columbia rests with Congress."

While the responsibility is not welcomed, Congress cannot shirk it, he said.

Though the House District Committee is "a hard-working" body, he added, some of its members are on as many as four committees.

"Who can expect under such conditions that members of the committee can give the time to District affairs they would like?" he asked.

Cochran Praises Gotwals.

Cochran paid tribute to the District Commissioners and especially to Maj. John C. Gotwals, engineer commissioner, whom he termed the most competent engineer commissioner and the most popular one the District has ever had.

Findings in a survey of pollution in the Potomac River by the Public Health Service and the subsequent results and recommendations following a special survey financed by a $40,000 grant by the PWA were referred to by Cochran.

Construction of the sewage disposal plant would provide employment to 640 men working three years, or the equivalent of 4,000,000 man-hours, he said.

He also pointed out that the PWA had granted money to Arlington County for sewage disposal work, but that this is being held up until the District acts.

Chairman Norton, of the House District Committee, today will make her appeal for an increased appropriation for tuberculosis eradication in the District and will ask that the bill include $2,000,000 for construction of a new tuberculosis hospital.

Representative Ditt (Republican), Pennsylvania, a member of the subcommittee, will open his fight to restore the cut from the Public Utilities Commission estimates.

Businessmen Protest Latest Parking Ban

W. T. Waymack Rites Will Be Held Today

Petersburg, Va., April 17 (Spl.). The funeral of William Thomas Waymack, who died suddenly Sunday night at his home here, will be held tomorrow at 4 p. m., at Blandford Cemetery.

Surviving Mr. Waymack are his wife, Mrs. Nannie Waymack, and the following sons and daughters: William J. Waymack, of Richmond; Mrs. N. B. Farris, of Chester, Pa.; David Waymack, Mrs. W. B. Traylor, C. M. Waymack, Mrs. O. L. Vaughan, Miss B. E. Waymack, and Bernard Thomas Waymack, all of Petersburg. Two sisters also survive, Mrs. Robert F. Reames, of Petersburg, and Mrs. G. F. Cramer, of Norfolk.

Virginia Red Cross Calls Relief Meeting

Newport News, Va., April 17 (AP). Disaster relief will be the subject of a conference here May 10 at 10 a. m., to be attended by representatives of 63 Red Cross chapters in the eastern area of Virginia, it was announced today by officers of the Newport News-Warwick County Chapter.

Woodstock to Have Highway Markers

Woodstock, Va., April 17 (Spl.). Highway markers giving a brief historical description of the town will be placed at the northern and southern limits of Wodstock on U. S. Route 11 by the Woodstock Rotary Club, Joseph B. Clower, chairman announced.

Half of the expense will be borne by the town.

Mrs. Julia Bright Buried.

Keyser, W. Va., April 17 (Spl.).—Mrs. Julia Bright, 72, mother of Frank Bright, of Washington, D. C., was buried today in Queens Point Cemetery, following services in the First Methodist Episcopal Church.

Alleghany's CWA Spent $129,508

Covington, Va., April 17 (Spl.).—CWA funds totaling $129,508.93 were spent by Alleghany County on material and labor for 11 projects, according to William A. Smith, State CWA and VERA administrator.

These projects provided a total of 181,914 man hours of work. While all have not been completed, it is thought that they will be finished under the new work division of the VERA, successor to the CWA.

For the week ended April 7 Covington had 2,543 persons registered as unemployed according to Frank A. Cavedo, of Richmond, acting State director of the National reemployment service. Fifty-seven placements were made during the week, 23 by private employers and 34 on PWA projects.

Road Machinery To Cost Million

West Virginia to Award Contracts Shortly.

Charleston, W. Va., April 17 (Spl.). Nearly a million dollars worth of motor trucks, rollers and other road machinery is being purchased by West Virginia. Bids have been opened and awards will be made shortly.

Since establishment of the State highway system, work of maintaining the county-district roads has been under the jurisdiction of the various county courts. Recent legislation transferred these roads into a secondary State system and placed them under the State road commission.

Ernest L. Bailey, State road commissioner, says the bulk purchase of this equipment will save the State approximately $2,000,000, as estimates under the individual county systems in the past totaled approximately $3,000,000.

Steam Shovel Wrecks Street Car, Injures 3

Motorman Ignored Signal, Ran Into Swinging Scoop, Charged.

A steam shovel bucket, swinging low over Benning Bridge yesterday afternoon, ripped the sides and roof from a street car, injured three persons and disrupted traffic for nearly half an hour.

Thomas B. Borland, street car motorman, did not heed warning signals, workmen charged, and his car crashed into the huge "claws" as it swung into place. The steam shovel is being used in excavation work at a new bridge operations on Benning road.

At various times the shovel bucket swings over street car tracks to dislodge earth and rocks. Eno Sutton, a signalman, is stationed on the bridge to warn approaching traffic.

Sutton told police he was forced to leap several feet down an embankment to escape injury when the street car failed to stop.

Perry Jacobs, 53, 2800 block of Georgia avenue northwest; Alex Jenkins, 82, colored, first block of Blaine street northeast, and Phillip Johnson, colored, Capitol Heights, Md., passengers on the car, were cut and bruised about the face and body.

A Casualty Hospital physician gave first aid at the scene and the injured were taken to their homes. Borland barely escaped being hurt when the bucket struck the car above his head.

G. W. U. Engineers Hold Annual Dinner Tonight

The sixth annual engineers' banquet will be held by the George Washington University School of Engineering at the Mayflower Hotel tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

Brig. Gen. George B. Pillsbury, assistant to the chief of Army engineers, will be the principal speaker. He will discuss "The Engineering Features of the St. Lawrence Waterway." Norman Bruce Ames, professor of electrical engineering at the university, will act as toastmaster.

Optimists to Hear Allen.

Commissioner George E. Allen will address the Optimists Club at its weekly meeting today at the Hamilton Hotel at 12:30 p. m. The Optimists will discuss the local Boys Clubs.

Nats Defeat Red Sox, 6-5, in 11th as Error Produces Winning Run

30,000 See Cronin Score When Walters Fumbles on Grounder

By Shirley L. Povich
(Sports Editor of The Post).

FENWAY PARK, Boston, April 17.—Assisted whole-heartedly by the Nats, who were pleased to oblige, the Noveau Riche Red afternoon. After teetering precariously on the brink of triumph for Sox succeeded in dedicating their new stadium with a defeat this most of the eleven innings it required the Boston team to avert victory for itself.

The upshot of the matter was a 6-5 11-inning triumph for the incumbent American League champions, who like the Red Sox, were making their maiden effort in the 1934 pennant race before a post-depression gathering of 30,366 paying customers who saw a ball game that had more ups and downs than a runaway elevator.

Stone Outstanding.

Manager Joe Cronin's formal unveiling of his 1934 arrangement of the Washington Club had its sour notes, including the dissipation of a 4-0 lead, three errors and only nine hits to 10 for Boston, but matters were ultimately set aright by the errant Red Sox and the powerful sedative administered to the Boston attack by Johnny Stone out in right field, where he dragged down three game-winning wallops in the last three innings.

An opulent sun gave the perfect recipe for an ideal baseball day, a thing unheard of in Boston in April, which alone was sufficient to upset the equilibrium of the two clubs inured to batting in Boston's cold, snow and sleet at this time of the season, but the Red Sox were the club off balance at the finish.

The winning run oozed across the plate in the eleventh when Buck Walters, the Boston thirdbaseman, who had been jarring the 30,000 noncombatants out o ftheir seats all afternoon with his demon defensive play, failed to come up with Dave Harris' harmless grounder with the bases full.

Manager ronin, himself, had flashed the signal for the decisive assault on Henry Johnson, the third Boston pitcher, in the eleventh when he smashed a two-base hit high up on the new leftfield wall with out out.

Schulte Coaxes Pass.

With a three-and-one count on Fred Schulte, Johnson flung an inside pitch into the batter's shirt sleeve, and two were on, with the grandstandees as jittery as Gilda Gray with the jitters. But the situation was all alleviated somewhat when Joe Kuhel lifted an easy pop to Farrell for the second out.

Gus Dugas was ordered to the plate in place of Bluege and made his bow with the Nats by drawing a walk to fill the bases, and pinch-bitter Dave Harris discarded four of the five bats he had been swinging and strode in to hit.

Harris bounced the first pitch toward Walters, who scampered toward shortstop but could only deflect the ball into Werber's glove. ronin was across the plate when Werber elected to make the play at second in an attempt to force Dugas, but that young man slid into the bag a split second before Bishop had Werber's throw, and the winning run was across.

The Nats had fully as strenuous a time winning the game as the Red Sox had losing it. Earl Whitehill, who had seen his teammates and Julius Solters, the new Boston rightfielder, present him with a four-run lead in the first inning contributed a home run on his own account in the fifth, but he never saw the end of the sixth inning.

Whitehill Chased in Sixth.

Whitehill had permitted the Red Sox only one hit in the first five innings, but left the premises under a shower of blows in the sixth that saw him give the Sox two runs and leave two men on the bases, who scored against his successor, Jack Russell.

Russell was summarily yanked by Cronin in the midst of an uprising in the eighth that saw the Red Sox tie the score at 5 to 5, and Al Crowder finally retired the side.

By the grace of Johnny Stone in right field, Crowder lasted to the finish and received credit for the victory, but the Red Sox almost tore the gloves off the Washington defense, so solidly did they sock the General's offerings.

The 30,000 went wildly delerious when Bill Werber led off the ninth with a rifle single into center field to put the winning run on base. Joe Judge, celebrating his twentieth year in the majors, sacrificed him to second, and the dangerous Roy Johnson was deliberately passed. Along came Carl Reynolds, a refugee from the 1932 Nats ,to smack a line drive out into right field that had all the earmarks of the game-winning hit, but the Boston people were reckoning without Johnny Stone, who galloped six leagues to snatch the ball out of the air at his shoe tops.

There was still big Solters to contend with for the third out and the Baltimore rookie socked Crowder's first pitch on a line toward left field, only to learn with dismay that Cronin had brought down the ball with a one-hand leap that rescued Crowder for the second time during the inning.

Those line drives that Crowder had been pitching to the Sox continued in the tenth when Rick Ferrell smashed a ball on a low trajectory into deep left field where Heinie Manush happened to be playing and trouble was averted for the nonce.

But after the Nats had pushed across their winning margin in the eleventh, the Red Sox came back scrapping. Bishop pulverized a Crowder pitch and pounded it up against the right field fence where Johnny Stone was hanging around and the catch was made. It was nothing to campare, though, with what happened to the line drive that Werber immediately smacked out into Stone's territory. The streamlined right fielder dashed far out toward the new concrete stands, stuck up his talented left hand and transformed an extra-base wallop into a sensational out.

But the Sox were not yet through. Joe Judge, who had been plaguing the Nats' pitching all day, hoisted a two-base hit down the right-field line that even fleet Stone coudn't reach, and the tying run was on second again. With the menacing Roy Johnson at bat, Crowder came through with flying colors, slipping two strikes past the swinging Johnson and getting him out on a harmless bounce into the box.

Gordon Rhodes dug his own pitfall in the first inning when he issued two walks, and his right fielder, big Solters, pushed him over the brink with two large and luscious errors.

Rhodes walked Myer, who went to second on Stone's out, and then Heinie Manush scored him with a line single into right which trickled through Salter's legs, putting Heinie on third. Cronin drew a walk and Shulte beat out a hit to Werber that scored Manush. Kuhel singled on a bad bounce over Judge's shoulder into right field and when Solters threw the ball back wide of third base, Schulte followed Cronin acros sthe plate for the fourth run.

Despite a pair of errors by Kuhel, Whitehill shut the Sox out with one hit, a single by Johnson, for five innings, only to collapse completely in the sixth after his homer into the right field stands had given the Nats a 5-0 lead in the fifth.

Judge Starts Trouble.

Joe Judge started all the trouble in the sixth with a sharp single into center and then followed a single to left by Roy Johnson, a single through Bluege's legs by Carl Reynolds and a single through shortstop by Solters. Two runs were across and two on base when Jack Russell relieved Whitehall and permitted a pair of runs to score on Ferrell's single into right center and Walter's long fly, which Schulte reached with a superhuman effort. It was then 5-4.

Solters started the Six toward tying the score against Russell in the eighth when, with one out, he topped a single toward Bleuge, whose wild throw to first put the big rookie on second. Ferrell scored him with a single into center, and when Walters singled to center the Sox had two on base, the score tied, and one out.

Russell disposed of Pinch-hitter Seeds on a pop to Myer but with Bishop up, Cronin called Crowder in and that worthy retired Bishop on a roller to Myer. He lasted the rest of the game by the grace of Walters' eleventh inning error and Johnny Stone's outfielding.

Braves' Rally Is Futile As Dodgers Win, 8-7

Brooklyn, April 17 (AP).—The Boston Braves threw a minor scare into some 30,000 Brooklyn fans today by staging a ninth-inning rally that netted three runs, but the Dodgers pulled through on the strength of their earlier hitting to inaugurate Casey Stengel's reign with an 8-to-7 victory.

Van Lingle Mungo pitched the entire game and just managed to hold the large early lead his mates obtained off Ed Brandt. Home runs played a large part in the Dodgers' scoring. Day Taylor hit for the circuit with one on in the second inning and Hack Wilson smacked a four-bagger with two aboard in the third. Before the finish both home-run hitters were forced out of action by minor injuries. Wilson turned his left ankle rounding first base and Taylor hurt his leg in a collision with Ralph Boyle in the outfield.

In the last inning a walk and four singles gave Boston three runs and put the tying run on third before Pinkey Whitney drove a liner to Third Baseman Joe Strip for the third out.

N. Y. Race Bill Sent to Governor

Albany, N. Y., April 18 (U.P.).—The Senate of the New York State Legislature passed and sent to Gov. Herbert H. Lehman for signature tonight a bill permitting open betting at the State's six race tracks.

Passage of the measure climaxed a bitter legislative drive for permission of all wagering.

A resolution, which if passed by the next Legislature and approved at a referendum, would permit usage of pari-mutuel machines in 1936, and another bill creating a new State racing commission of three members having greater control over the sport, still are pending.

The Governor has indicated he would approve racing legislation which would provide the State with a new source of sound revenue.

Averill Batting Star as Indians Protect Early Lead to Win, 5 to 2.

CLEVELAND, April 17 (AP).—With Earl Averill setting the pace with a home run and a double, the Indians opened the 1934 baseball season by defeating the St. Louis Browns before 21,000 fans here today, 5 to 2.

The Tribe scored four of its runs at the expense of George Blaeholder in the first three innings and managed to stay in front, although Southpaw Lloyd Brown had to come to Oral Hildebrand's rescue when the tall Hoosier tired in the seventh.

CINCINNATI, April 17 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs came near making history here today as they shut out Cincinnati, 6 to 0, behind the one-hit pitching of Lon Warneke in the opening game of the season.

A scratch hit by Comorosky with one out in the ninth inning kept the Chicago hurler from the Hall of Fame for no-hit, no-run pitchers. It would have been the first no-hit game here on opening day in the record books.

Macks Rally, Beat Yanks 6 to 5

Miller's Pinch Single in Final Round Sends Home Winning Run.

A's Knock Gomez Out of Box in Sixth; 10,000 Crowd at Game.

PHILADELPHIA, April 17 (AP).—The Athletics, listed as a "weakling" team of the American League, lashed out with a fine show of strength and staying power today and defeated the New York Yankees 6 to 5 in the opening game of the 1934 season.

Only about 10,000 fans turned out to see Bing Miller smash a pinch hit with two out in the ninth inning to drive in the score that climaxed a two-run rally and won the game.

The game started out as a mound duel between Lefty Gomez and Merrit (Sugar) Cain, but it soon developed into a free-for-all display of hitting and weak hurling as the Yanks used four pitchers and the A's two. This mound corps was charged with 18 hits, including a home run by Eric McNair, and as many free trips to first base.

Gomez Knocked Out.

Gomez was driven to cover in the sixth inning, when the A's came from behind the first time to take the lead. Johnny Murphy, Harry Smithe and George Uhle followed him. Cain lasted until the eight, when he was lifted for a pinch hitter and Joe Cascarella, rookie right hander, got credit for the victory by pitching the last frame.

Going into the ninth, the Yankees held a 5-4 lead after a nip-and-tuck battle. Then McNair nipped Smythe for a single and Bob Johnson crashed a double to send home the tying run. Following a pass to Higgins, Uhle took the hill and made Hayes hit into a force play at second. Miller was called in to bat for Cascarella and spanked a single that won the game.

Equipoise Speedy In Public Workout

Havre de Grace, Md., April 17 (Spl.).—Overweight, but seemingly in perfect health, C. V. Whitney's Equipoise was given a public workout just after the first race here today.

With Sonny Workman up, the chestnut which will attempt a comeback in the Philadelphia Handicap here Saturday, broke in front of the stand. The first furlong was covered in 0:13 3-5 and the quarter in 0:25. The time at the three furlongs was 0:37 2-5, the half mile, with the horse going easily was clocked in 0:51 and the 5 furlongs in 1:03 2-5.

At the 5 furlong post, the big horse stepped on the gas and flashed by the 6 furlong marker in 1:16 2-5, the 7 furlong post in 1:31 and finished the mile in 1:44. It was a good workout and many horsemen were satisfied that the horse will be fit and ready for the initial start.

Blue Ridge Leaguers Open Season on May 5

Hagerstown, Md., April 17 (Spl.).—The Blue Ridge League season will open May 5, with five clubs participating, it was decided.

Frank Colley, former Washingtonian and professional ball player, who has been sports editor of a local newspaper since his retirement from active playing, was elected president of the new amateur circuit.

J. Vincent Jamison, former president of the Blue Ridge League of Professional Ball, who was proffered the post in the new circuit, declined to accept because of private business which keeps him away from the city a great part of the season. He was elected vice president however, and will act in an advisory capacity.

The five clubs comprising the league include Chambersburg, Pa., Martinsburg, W. Va., Winchester, Va., and Hagerstown and Frederick, Md.

Hubbell Star; Giants Rout Phils, 6-1

Southpaw Gives 4 Hits as Champions Field Sensationally.

Rival Teams and 37,000 Crowd Pay Tribute to John McGraw.

By Alan Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, April 17 (AP).—Employing the Phillies as victims in their first laboratory test of the new baseball season, the world's champion New York Giants today performed a highly successful operation with the aid of the talented Prof. Carl Owen Hubbell, and for the benefit of a noisy crowd of 37,000 spectators at the Polo Grounds.

The entire affair was one-sided and the final score, 6 to 1, as the Giants gave a characteristic exhibition of defensive skill, while also taking quick advantage of their scoring opportunities. Hubbell, despite a shaky start, limited the Phillies to four hits, but his bid for a shut-out was spoiled when Jimmy Wilson, the new manager-catcher of the Phillies, walloped the livelier National League ball into the upper left field stands in the seventh inning for a home run.

Wild at the Start.

The king of the southpaws was wild at the outset, but sensational infield work pulled him out of difficulties. Travis Jackson, captain and shortstop, celebrated his return to the regular line-up with a marvelous leaping catch of Irvine Jeffries' line drive in the second inning. Third Baseman Johnny Vergez also cut off two potential hits with acrobatic catches. After the began to function and except for third inning Hubbell's screw ball Wilson's homer not a Phillie hit safely or otherwise reached first base.

"Blondy" Ryan, appearing in a new role as substitute for Hughey Critz at second base, not only distinguished himself on the defense, but costarred with Joe Moore, the lead-off man, in an attack that routed Jumbo Jim Elliott, veteran southpaw, in two innings.

Moore tallied the first run of the game without the aid of a hit, Ryan drove in two more by singling with the bases full in the second inning and Moore capped the climax in the sixth by belting one of Snipe Hansen's curves for a home run, with Paal Richards on base.

The opening day ceremonies were featured by a tribute to the late John Joseph McGraw, manager of the Giants for 30 years, who died last February. Players of both teams were lined up across the field while a bugler bl

Hokuao Beats Larranaga For Place

Acautaw Triumphs in Debut; Silk Flag Annexes Fourth.

HAVRE DE GRACE RACE TRACK, Md., April 17.—Perhaps you were one of those lucky boys and girls who were allowed to go barefooted on a rainy day. Do you remember walking around in the mud and letting it ooze up between your toes? Felt good, didn't it? Now the racehorse, Chatmoss, has what are referred to as tender feet in the parlor, or "bad dogs" in the street. Of course, he has four of them. When the race tracks are hard and fast, Chatmoss has to set down those ailing hoofs gently and setting hoofs down gently takes time, which isn't conducive to winning races. However, when the oval is sticky and gooey it acts as a cushion for those "bad dogs." From a tenderfoot, Chatmoss is transformed into a sure-legged, speedy racer.

Such was the case today. Trainer Lee Evans sent Chatmoss out on some of the muddiest mud in Maryland racing history and the son of the mud-running Chetterton romped to victory over a field of five in The Harewood Purse ,the day's feature at this picturesque track.

Wins by Two Lengths.

Chatmoss, which has not won a race in the memory of most turf fans, was guided home two lengths in front of Hokuao and four more lengths in advance of Larranaga and was clocked in 1:46 2-5 for mile and 70 yards.

Jockey Al Tipton shares in the glory of the horse owned by J. R. Buchanan. If ever a horse and rider looked the part of a beaten combination it was this pair at the start of the race. When the break came, Chatmoss stumbled and barely missed falling to his knees. Tipton righted him and started after the others. Hokuao, the Hawaiian, and Larranaga, the Cuban Handicap winner, were leading the pack at the clubhouse turn while Chatmoss was making efforts to get back into the race.

Along the back stretch, Chatmoss had only one horse, Unencumbered, beaten. Hokuao and the other leaders were holding their places. At the far turn, Tipton took to the outside and began a move. Chatmoss gradually picked up horses and at the stretch turn, he came around the splashing front runners. In the stretch, he caught the tiring Hokuao and from the furlong pole to the finish the winner was never in doubt.

Chatmoss was a luke-warm second choice and provided a pay-off of $6.70 proportions.

Kings Pleasure Scores.

The Labrot entry of Kings Pleasure and Little Dinah drew the bulk of the play in the first event and the former proved an easy victor, scoring by 2 lengths to pay $4.70. Mario was a fast-going second, 4 lengths in advance of Beau Govans. The Labrot pair broke fast from the inside. Little Dinah left the issue to her stablemate after a brief duel and Kings Pleasure drew into a safe advantage to win as Jimmy Hunter pleased.

Whoa Back, strongly ridden by Allen Tipton, stood a hard drive gamely to win the second purse by a half length. He paid $9.30. Hannah Anne made up ground fast in the stretch and headed Migrate, the favorite, for the place. Tipton broke his mount on top from the inside and carrying the leaders out turning for home, held his mount together in the final drive.

Elmer Trueman had his sprinter, Acautaw, in prime condition for the gelding's 1934 debut in the third. The son of Trojan drove home a length clear of Mountain Elk, with quickly another length behind in third place. Acautaw, a $3.80 choice, disposed of Wilrob at the top of the stretch and although driving, he was not menaced by Mountain Elk.

Hopkins Saddles Winner.

Freddie Hopkins, former trainer for the C. V. Whitney establishment and the man who developed Equipoise, made an auspicious start as trainer for the Anall Stable in the fourth event. Hopkins and the stable were represented for the first time this year by a horse in silks, Silk Flag racing to a smart victory under Sonny Workman. Haggerson trailed the winner by nearly two lengths, while Ladino, slow to begin, was a good third. Silk Flag raced the speedy Iren's Bob into submission before turning into the stretch and continued gamely to hold Haggerson safe. The winner was a split favorite with Irene's Bob, returning $7.20.

Bright Beauty, $11.90, won the closing event by a lengt hand a half from Parity. Politen was third.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

The "Trail of the Lonesome Pine" is still marked by the old tree which was made famous by the well-known story of the same name by John Fox jr. The tree, which is believed to be hundreds of years old, stands within a few hundred yards of the head spring of the Cumberland River, high on the ridge that runs along the Kentucky-Virginia boundary in the mountains.

It is located on the border between the two States, hence stands half in Kentucky and half in Virginia. It is 100 feet high and measures 10 feet around at the base. The lonesome pine may not many years longer mark the trail in the western tip of Virginia and over the border into Kentucky—for it is slowly dying.

Motorists passing by the home of H. A. Harman in Catawissa, Pa., find the day, month and year outlined on his lawn in huge letters. Every day Mr. Harman changes his outdoor perpetual calendar—but, strange as it seems, it is not as much of a chore as one might think. The "1934" shown above need not be changed until next year. Each time he letters the name of a month on the lawn it is good for a month without further attention; the day is the only figure that requires daily attention.

Mr. Harman has been keeping this outdoor calendar up to date for almost six years now, and it is always right.

Dear Al: Havre de Grace, April 17.

Small fields are still the rule in Maryland. In other seasons there have been more horses seeking entry than room on the lists. At Bowie, the severe winter resulted in many horses being shelved for lack of condition. Here, the muddy and treacherous track makes the owners and trainers afraid to risk competition for their charges. This is particularly true of the derby and Preakness candidates. Track officials had expected to have whole fields of these hopefuls in action each day, but until the track improves the majority will be kept in the barns. The Greentree Stable shipped 16 horses to New York today and Jockey Silvio Coucci is going up to ride them Coucci has been unusually successful this season in Maryland and many betters will miss him.

BILL.

First race—Vanda Cerula will be making her first start and she will She's a daughter of Blue Larkspur have a tough job on her hands. and has been burning the track in trials. I believe we can make this one win. Wise Sister and Shady Past for the other awards.

Second race—Don Carlos ran a fine race last out and it was his 1934 debut. I'm going to try to make him improve enough to take care of this field. Vishnu has been raced regularly and can make trouble. Meloy for the show end.

Third race—Dornoch will like the muddy track and has shown plenty of speed since coming North. Likely to hop to the front and lead all the way. St. Nick is a fleet one and his last indicates fitness. Sun Shadow to take care of the others.

Fourth race—Erebus ran a good race over at Bowie to be second. Shapes up well in this field and will have the hustling Porter for saddle work. Chrysmute will appreciate the going and is the one to beat. Sainted for the third money.

Fifth race — National Anthem comes from a barn of fit horses and Clocker Mike reports some good trials. White Bird has been getting education and will be ready if the top one makes mistakes. Snappy Story for the show.

Sixth race—Zulu Lad's last at Bowie was a beaut. Seems capable of carrying top weight in this field. Stout knows how to ride this one and I'm looking no farther for the winner. Piety and Kepi to complete the money picture. Scotch Pepper is a rank outsider with a fighting chance.

Seventh race—If Zembla is ever going to win another race this appears to be the spot. She loves the mud and the fast pace should suit her. Spanish and Pencader for the place and show.

KINGS PLEASURE, racing as if suited to the footing, raced LITTLE DINAH into defeat in the opening furlong, drew clear when straightened into the home stretch and held MARIO safe. Latter, away forwardly, but lacking early speed, came through on the inside during the fina ldrive and coised with good speed. BEAU GOVANS worked his way up on the outside and outstayed LITTLE DINAH in the final issue. LITTLE DINAH began quickly and had speed i nthe early stages. She slipped repeatedly in the going and then weakened under urging. AIR LINE met with interference when attempting to come through between BEAU GOVANS and LITTLE DINAH during the closing furlong. TRULY YOURS was outrun.

SECOND RACE—Four and one-half furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:00. Off at 3:06. Winner, William Ziegler, jr.'s ch. c. (2), by Supremus—La Gusset. Trained by C. Phillips. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49 3-5, 0:56 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WHOA BACK, $9.30, $5.10, $3.10; HANNAH ANNE, $9.60, $4.00; MIGRATE, $2.60.

WHOA BACK, hard urged to shake off WAX in the openins furlong, responded willingly to strong pressure when reaching the home stretch and, under stout pressure, just lasted to outstay HANNAH ANNE. Latter drew on almost equal terms with the winner in the closing furlong and then continued with good courage. MIGRATE, shuffled back midway of the turn, swung to the outside and finished fastest of all. WAX was vigorously handled al lthe way and had no excuses. COLORBEARER saved a lot of ground in the final five-sixteenths, but was not good enough. MAPLE PRINCE was unable to threaten at any stage.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Pruse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:35. Off at 3:39½. Winner, Mrs. E. Trusman's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ACAUTAW, $3.80, $3.20, $2.50; MOUNTAIN ELK, $4.20, $2.70; QUICKLY, $2.60.

ACATAW, at home in the going and kept in near pursuit of WILROB, wore the latter down under strong urging when straightened into the home stretch and, kept under pressure, outstayed MOUNTAIN ELK. Latter worked his way to the leaders on the inside and when finished with good energy. QUICKLY broke into the race when the start same. She raced forwardly placed, but was poorly handled in the late stages. WILROB had nice speed in the first five furlongs, then tired. LOUGH PORT was always outrun. RANGE FINDER was never a factor.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:11. Off at 4:14. Winner, Anall Stable's br. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SILK FLAG, $7.20, $5.00, $4.30; HAGERSTOWN, $8.70, $6.50; LADINO, $3.70.

SILK FLAG, quickest to get going and steadied along in the early stages, responded strongly to move clear midway of the turn, shook off IRENE'S BOB and had enough left with HAGGERSON. Latter worked his way up while saving ground, then finished with a rush on the inside of the winner. LADINO broke well, but dropped back immediately. He was placed to punishment in the last half mile and colsed with a rush. IRENE'S BOB forced a steady pace for the first five furlongs, then weakened badly. SYENITE displayed nice speed untill he tired. CORRYMEELA weakened. CRAZY JANE was outrun.

FIFTH RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,000; allowances, or 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:46. Off at 4:47. Winner, J. R. Buchanan's b. h. (5), by Chatterton—Blue Moss. Trained by T. L. Evans. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48 3-5, 1:14, 1:41 2-5, 1:46 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHATMOSS, $6.70, $3.00, $2.30; HOKUAO, $4.00, $2.20; LARRANAGA, $2.40.

CHATMOSS went to his knees when the break came, was sent up close to the pacemakers when reaching the back stretch, shook the leaders off with a rush when straightened into the ome stretc and ad speed in reserve at te end. HOKUAO, hustled to the front, then steadied along early, responded gamely when placed to punishment, but could not resist the winner. LARRANAGA, a keen factor to the first seven furlongs, weakened in the last quarter mile. FLAMING MAMIE saved a lot of ground the entire trip and showed a good effort. UNENCUMBERED trailed far back and appeared to dislike the going.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and seventy yards. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:16. O flat 5:17. Winner, Mrs. W. R. Flemming's b. f. (3), by Pot Au Feu—Gentle Play. Trained by W. R. Flemming. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:50, 1:15 3-5, 1:43, 1:48 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LOFTY LADY, $6.30, $3.50, $3.00; CHAT EAGLE, $3.90, $3.70; IMPEACH, $5.00.

LOFTY LADY, favored by the going and under good handling, went into command when reaching the first turn, was steadied in front until reaching the home stretch and held on stoutly when shaken up to rthe final drive. CHAT EAGLE, crowded back going to the first turn, recovered gamely and finished with excellent courage. IMPEACH avoided interference going to the first turn, followed in nearest pursuit of the winner, but weakened in the final furlong. GUARDIAN, in trouble at the first turn, had speed to hold a forward position, but was unable to better his position. LONE HAND raced well under his weight. The others were never factors.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Pruse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:44. Off at 5:44½. Winner, G. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BRIGHT BEAUTY, $11.90, $5.30, $3.70; PARITY, $2.90, $2.50; POLITEN, $7.90.

BRIGHT BEAUTY, going in improved fashion, moved up o nthe outside with a rush midway of the back stretch, circled her field to wear PARITY down and was moving clear slowly. PARITY outlasted into an easy lead when straightened into the back stretch, waved ground throughout, but weakened in the closing furlong. POLITEN, squeezed back when attempting to move through on the inside leaving the back stretch, came to outside theerafter and finished gamely. AXENTEA raced strongly in the early stages. He faltered when the final drive came. BELLE PILLE dropped back steadily after five furlongs. UKRAINE stopped in the last five sixteenths.

Stocks Renew Climb as Sales Volume Drops

New York, April 17 (AP).—Continued weakness in the grain markets failed to disturb securities today. Stocks were quietly steady until the last hour, when a sedate rally developed, lifting the average closing composite nearly a point.

In shares, absence of offerings at the opening, such as might have been expected in view of yesterday's shakeout among a few volatile issues, no doubt was viewed as encouraging, and some selective buying appeared.

Merchandising stocks and a limited number of other favorites profited most, gains elsewhere being generally in fractions. Transfers totaled 956,602 shares.

On List of Gains.

Liggett & Myers B, Snider Packing, U. S. Smelting, Santa Fe, Chrysler and Sears, Roebuck were up around a point or two at the finish.

U. S. Rubber was active and firm, First National Stores gained nearly 2, May Department Stores, National Department Stores and Grand Union preferred 1 to 2, and American Beet Sugar preferred about 3. American Telephone rose 2, perhaps because some attention was being paid to the improvement in earnings. Steels were firm but dull and most of the rails accomplished little. Auburn steadied.

Stockholders of several large companies held their annual meetings and from several quarters came reports of better business and larger and brighter prospects.

General Electric Net.

General Electric's owners learned that their corporation's first quarter had netted 14 cents a share for the common, or virtually equal the new dividend rate, as against only 8 cents a year ago.

President Davis of U. S. Rubber said that company was "showing nice increases" over 1933 in all its branches.

President Cates of Phelps Dodge anticipated a better demand for copper after approval of the code, although he did not think the metal would go above 9 or 10 cents a pound; with those prices many producers could make some money. American Locomotive's present unfilled orders, President Dickerman stated, are in excess of $7,000,000 and more inquiries are afloat, though he would make no predictions about dividends. The preferred stock, on which there are accruals, sagged a couple of points.

Robey's Review

Finance Economics Business

At Least 22 Major Economic Proposals Either Already Are Before Congress or Are Assured White House Support.

By Ralph West Robey.

It may be assumed that with the approaching end of the present session of Congress we soon will begin to get some genuine clarification of the new regulations and panaceas to which the business structure will be subjected. To a limited extent, in fact, the reports of the President's conferences with Senate and House leaders over the week-end have provided such clarification. Anyone, however, who has attempted to gather from these dispatches just what is ahead of us must have given up the effort in short order as futile. A few points were definite, but by and large the public knows little more now about our legislative program than it did a week ago.

To realize the breadth of reform, regulation, and stimulation to which the business structure may be subjected it is only necessary to recall the major bills now pending in Congress. As a matter of fact I feel sure that I can list all of them. The following, nevertheless, will be sufficient for the purpose at hand.

Three on Labor and Four for Relief.

In connection with labor: (1) The Wagner industrial disputes bill, devised to bar company unions but which, as a result of the automobile labor controversy, has been modified; (2) the Wagner-Lewis unemployment insurance bill, proposing a tax on all wages of 5 per cent; and (3) the Connery bill, designed to establish a 30-hour week.

On the side of relief, using this term in a broad sense: (1) The McLeod proposal for paying depositors in failed banks one hundred cents on the dollar; (2) the Frazier-Lemke bill for coming to the aid of farm mortgages by, in effect, issuing "green-backs" against them; (3) the La Follette public works bill providing for $10,000,000,000 of expenditures in this field; and (4) the Presidential proposal for an increase of $1,500,000,000 to $2,000,000,000 for the purpose of providing "work relief" and coming to the direct aid of the needy.

Of a purely monetary character: (1) The Dies measure, providing for the swapping of our agricultural surplus for silver with the latter valued at 25 per cent above the world price; (2) the Dies bill as amended by the Senate, providing for a complete nationalization of all silver and the purchase by the Treasury of 50,000,000 ounces a month until such time as either the price of the metal reaches $1.29 an ounce or general commodity prices are restored to the 1926 level; and (3) the Goldsborough bill providing, in effect, for a nationalization of our banking system.

Regulation of Business Involves 10 Measures.

In connection with the regulation of business: (1) The stock exchange control bill; (2) changes in the securities act of 1933 with the view of enabling some financing of heavy industries; (3) a bill to control commodity exchanges, presumably somewhat in line with the supervision to be exercised over the security exchanges; (4) an extension of the licensing provision under NRA; (5) revisions in the Glass-Steagall banking bill with the view of modifying the deposit-insurance provision; (6) some kind of an air mail measure designed to get out of the impasse resulting from the cancellation of private contracts; (7) the municipal bankruptcy bill providing for an adjustment of city debts; (8) the intermediate credit proposals of which three have been presented—each with a good word from the White House; (9) the Bankhead bill limiting the amount of cotton which farmers may sell; (10) the tariff proposal giving the President power to make reciprocal trade agreemnts. (This latter measure must be classed as a regulatory bill because it would give to the President the power of life and death over that portion of our economic system the existence of which is dependent upon tariff protection.)

In addition to the above there is the tax bill and any legislation that may be involved in the home renovation campaign sponsored by the Administration. This makes a total of 22 major proposals either now pending or in the immediate offing—every one of which, if passed, would have a marked effect upon the business outlook.

London—Dealings on the stock exchange were restricted today, owing to the imminence of the budget report, details of which were unknown until the closing of the market. Gilt-edged securities hardened, and some industrials were supported. Oil shares, Kaffirs and transatlantic issues eased. The market closed irregular.

Paris—With the exception of rentes, which improved, the heaviness of international issues weighed prices down on the bourse. Electric shares and German bonds were especially weak. The closing was barely steady.

Berlin—Quietness prevailed on the boerse, and prices declined further because of the lack of buying orders. The closing was weak.

Cotton Regains Losses Under Trade Buying

May Closes at 11.62 as Market Is Steady, 2 Points Up to 2 Down.

New York, April 17 (AP).—A further decline of about 18 points in cotton was followed by rallies today on trade buying and covering. July contracts, after selling off to 11.57 under the early pressure, advanced to 11.77, or 2 points net higher, and closed at 11.73. The general market closed steady net 2 points higher to 2 points lower.

The opening was easy at a decline of 8 to 14 points under heavy overnight selling orders, and active months sold about 16 to 18 points net lower shortly after the call, with May declining to 11.47 and October to 11.69.

These prices were down more than a cent a pound from the high prices of last February, which seemed sufficient to bring in a good deal of trade buying and after early offerings had been absorbed the volume of selling tapered off materially.

Considerable Covering.

In addition to the trade buying there was considerable covering, and scattered buying for a rally on the improved technical position was encouraged by the appearance of an improved tone in the grain markets following early weakness.

May sold up to 11.67 and October to 11.90, making recoveries of 18 to 21 points on the support from these suorces, but some of the early buyers seemed to be taking profits during the last hour and closing prices were a few points off from the best.

Liverpool cables attributed the relative easy showing of that market to liquidation promoted by yesterday's reports of diminishing prospects for silver legislation and said that trade calling had been about the only off take in that market. Reports that the Bankhead bill was under consideration in the House came in for comparatively little comment during the day.

The report that the House had accepted the conference report on the bill was not received until after the close of the market.

Exports today, 15,968, making 6,359,658 so far this season. Port receipts, 19,957. U. S. port stocks, 3,071,863.

Sopt steady; middling 11.80.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was easier today under scattered liquidation, promoted by the weakness in grains at times and the disappointing action of the lard market. Final prices were 2 to 5 points net lower. Sales, 29 contracts. Bleachable spot nominal; May closed 5.20, July 5.38, September 5.60, October 5.66.

Japan May Try Inflation to Cover Loans

New York, April 17.—The recent change in the Japanese treasury quotations for gold is believed to forecast probable inflationary measures to cover heavy internal borrowings that must be made this year, says the Standard Statistics Co. of New York, in a survey which continues in part:

"The treasury gold prices applies solely to newly mined domestic metal, as was the case in the United States prior to the latest regulations. Hence, it bears no relation to the actual exchange value of the yen, which is now 63.9 per cent below its gold parity, comparing with a 37.1 per cent depreciation in sterling and 40.9 per cent for the dollar.

"The depression was particularly severe in Japan because of the wide decline in silk prices (from over $5 per pound to around $1.25). The depreciation policy was adopted when the collapse of prices for this major money crop threatened a complete social and political upheaval in 1931. By reducing the foreign exchange value of the yen and placing a strict control over gold and exchange operations, the downward trend of trade and production was immediately reversed, and foreign trade boomed.

"Wholesale prices in Japan have risen 32 per cent since November, 1931, while retail prices are up 13 per cent; thus, although the turn in the price trend gave impetus to industry, it did not produce a commensurate rise in the cost of living. Industrial production, meanwhile, has advanced 35 per cent, railway tonnage 13 per cent and bank clearings 18 per cent.

"The budgetary position of the Japanese government, however, is serious. While the inflationary measures directed at the foreign exchange value of the yen have not produced an iimportant increase in the note issue, there has been an enormous drain on government finances by reason of military expenditures. Including Manchurian operations, military outlays for the 1934-1935 fiscal year are budgeted at 75 per cent of total revenues. This heavy drain, aggregating over 3,000,000,000 yen for 1933-1935 has caused a total budgetary deficit for the same period of 2,417,000,000 yen, covered by internal loans.

"Were it not for the danger of war, the economic rehabilitation of Japan could be considered assured since the inflationary policies have clearly been beneficial to date in halting depression and bringing about a rapid and persistent recovery in trade volumes."

Chain Store Sales Rise.

Chicago, April 17 (AP).—A compilation of March sales of chain stores for 28 companies, including two mail order firms, showed an increase of 26.8 per cent over a year ago. This year's March sales stood at $264,008,875 for the companies.

Dollar Volume Of Store Sales Pushed Higher

Merchandise Handled Rises 11½ Per Cent Above 1933 Period.

The dollar volume of grocery sales in March, through a selected sample of chain units, was 11½ per cent higher than a year ago, according to preliminary estimates announced today by Willard L. Thorp, director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

The index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics shows retail food prices have increased about 20 per cent in the same period. These measures, while not precisely comparable, are sufficiently accurate to indicate a slight reduction in the physical volume of chain grocery sales over the 12-month period.

Total dollar sales for the first three months of 1934 were 9 per cent higher than for the corresponding period of 1933.

Sale Rise 2 Per Cent.

Sales for March show an increase of 2 per cent over February, which was slightly larger than the average increase for this month during the four preceding years.

The percentage changes given above are based on average daily sales so computed as to eliminate the effect of differences in the number of worknig days of the several months and to allow for the varying importance of different days in the grocery week.

These estimates are based upon figures furnished by a cooperating group of chain organizations and represent stores continuously in operation since 1929. Consequently they show changes in the value of consumer purchases rather than expansion or decline in the scope of the chains included.

The reporting firms operate over 70 per cent of the chain grocery units in the United States and the sample is so constructed as to give all regions of the country their proper relative importance as shown by the Census of Distribution. Arrangements are being made to supplement these reports, at an early date, by reports from a large sample of independent grocers.

Comparison of Sales.

Comparison of sales for March, 1934, with those of the same month in previous years and the percentage change between February and March in each of those years, are shown below:

Comparison of March, 1934, With Same Month of Previous Years.

March, 1934 ..... 11½ per cent higher than March, 1933
March, 1933 ..... 3 per cent lower than March, 1932
March, 1932 ..... 19 per cent lower than March, 1931
March, 1931 ..... 25½ per cent lower than March, 1930
March, 1930 ..... 25½ per cent lower than March, 1929

February-March Change, 1934, and Previous Years.

	Per cent change from February
March, 1934	+2.3
March, 1933	+0.2
March, 1932	+0.5
March, 1931	+1.0
March, 1930	—0.3

This is one of five indexes already set up to aid in tracing the movement of goods into consumer's hands. Statements have already been made public this month on variety store sales and rural sales.

Automobile figures will follow later in the month.

Baltimore Grain Prices.

Baltimore, April 17.—WHEAT—Shipments from elevators, 6,304 bushels. Stock in elevators, 926,754 bushels.

CORN—Receipts, 5,901 bushels by car. Shipments from elevators, 1,268 bushels. Stock in elevators, 19,006 bushels.

Receipts of corn from the nearby sections have recently been running light. For yellow and high-colored mixed there is a fair domestic demand.

CORN—Quoted at 3.00 per barrel for carloads prime nearby yellow on spot. Offerings ample for present needs. Demand limited.

No. 2 yellow corn (old) arriving here by car quoted at 62@63 per bushel, with transit billing.

OATS—Receipts, 4,000 bushels by car. Shipments from elevators, 187 bushels. Stock in elevators, 72,175 bushels.

Receipts of oats show some increase here. Demand fair in a jobbing way. Choice, heavyweight oats command a good premium over the average run and lighter weights.

No. 2 white oats, 41@45 per bushel, as to weight and location.

Note—On all sales of oats to the local trade, excepting those put on track here in bulk, a additional charge of 1½c per bushel for storage and elevation, which is paid by the buyer.

RYE—Receipts, 9,733 bushels by car. Shipments from elevators, 170 bushels. Stock in elevators, 252,297 bushels.

HAY—General hay market is quiet. Supply ample. On good timothy and clover mixed prices ranges from 12.00@14.00 per ton. The poorer grades of hay are hard to sell at any price. Market irregular on everything below 3 timothy.

Radio Waves and Ripples

YOUNG cherry saplings, delicate and helpless in soil of adoption, planted nearly a quarter of a century ago, today droop gracefully over the waters of the Potomac with their purple tinted bark glistening in the sun.

Hirosi Saito, Ambassador from Japan, recalls that he was just beginning his diplomatic career in Washington when 3,000 young cherry trees arrived from Japan in 1912. Here are some of his thoughts on cherry blossoms in whose honor a colorful three-day festival begins tomorrow:

"It is Japan's own flower, and reigned in favor long before the new Buddhism came over from India with its lotus symbol, and Chinese culture with its peony. History shows that as early as the fifth century, the emperor and his court annually convened at the Palace of the Young Cherry Trees to view the blossoms and make excursions about the cherry-bordered lake.

"Amidst music and shower of pink petals, princes and knights, nobles and priests spent their souls in poems and lyric epigrams, and tied poems to the branches.

"In April sunshine . . . better still by moonlight . . . and best of all by pale dawn . . . the blooming cherry tree is most ideally beautiful. There is a soft, pink electric glow as we stand under branches laden with masses of flowers.

"With its flowering, its mission is accomplished, for the Japanese cherry tree does not need to work for a living. Having spent its whole strength in flowering, nothing more is expected. It may now rest in peace until the earth turns again.

"When we compare the Japanese cherry with the rose, its Western sister, one can further visualize our adoration of it. There is earnestness in the rose, but animation in the cherry. The rose holds to life till the very last, while the cherry makes light of death and dances down in the breeze. The rose with its thorn stands for rights, while the cherry for duty with its unobtrusive color. The rose is individualistic and self-assertive; each flower demands an appreciation of its own. The cherry, however, is to be enjoyed in clusters, each flower losing its individuality in the making of the whole. But the cherry and the rose have one thing in common: Beauty, which is a joy forever."

THUS does Ambassador Saito tell the meaning of the blossoms which came to Washington as the gift of the City of Tokyo when Taft was President of the United States.

You've read all the details of the festival. For the benefit of stay-at-homes, both Columbia and National Broadcasting Systems have made plentiful preparation to bring an account of the ceremonies to your fireside.

Tomorrow, from 6 to 7 a. m., WJSV will cover the sunrise ceremony, relaying the music and describing the dancers. Coronation of Miss Eleanor Roosevelt, debutante daughter of Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt, as queen of the festival will be on the air at 2 p. m.

Friday's events, the parade of floats with cherry blossoms as the theme, will be reported by Arthur Godfrey from the main reviewing stand on Constitution avenue, while Bob Trout will take his "baby transmitter" and interview the crowds at large. This starts at 2:15 p. m. Later . . . at 9 p. m. the same day, accounts of the fireworks display will go on the air.

At 2 p. m. Saturday Estelle Wentworth's opera group will present Gilbert and Sullivan's "Mikado" at the Sylvan outdoor theater. And the Mayflower Hotel will be the scene of a monster ball and reception for all guests and persons interested in cherry blossoms. Both Columbia and National will cover this event at 10:30 p. m.

Ripples.

Dr. W. A. R. Goodwin, rector of Bruton Parish, Williamsburg, Va., speaking tomorrow at 11 a. m. over National network in connection with forty-third Continental Congress of the D. A. R. His subject "Restoration of Colonial Williamsburg" . . . Nelson B. Bell, dramatic editor of The Washington Post, dips back into the past this morning at 10 o'clock on WJSV to relate what he knows about famous stage folk . . . Sisley Huddleson, European editorial correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor, discussing "No American Money for European War" over N. B. C. chain at 5 p. m. Huddleson was Paris correspondent for the New York Times for several years and is an authority on foreign affairs . . . Mrs. Garner, wife of the Vice President, forced to cancel her broadcast with Margaret Santry, of The Post staff, on Monday, due to death in the Garner family, will, nevertheless, go on the air this coming Monday . . . Representative Mary T. Norton will be interviewed by Miss Santry on Friday at 3 p. m. on WMAL . . . Jack Pearl will recount his range riding experiences today at 8 p. m. on WRC . . . Mrs. Ellis Yost, director of the women's division of the Republican National committee, discussing "National Equality for Women" today at 3:45 p. m. on WJSV . . . Erika Morini, concert artist, will be heard as soloist with symphony orchestra in an international broadcast today from Vienna at 2:45 p. m. on WMAL.

IT takes 4 minutes and 10 seconds to transmit a code message around the earth. An attempt to break this record will be heard today at 4:15 p. m. over WJSV on the "Spanning the World" program. Combined facilities of five cable companies will be employed.

Both sender and receiver will be in New York. The path of the message will be from east to west. Starting from New York, it will be relayed via San Francisco, Honolulu, through the Siberian desert and continental Europe to London, and back to New York under the North Atlantic.

Features of the broadcast will include practical demonstrations of speed with messages sent to all parts of the globe. Listeners will hear how communications are handled between such centers as London, Paris and New York, and how radiograms are sent and received to and from ships at sea. Experts will explain operation of intricate cable and radio devices.

There's liable to be some commotion tomorrow morning in the Shoreham lobby with the arrival of "Johnnie" Morse, popular page boy of the air. Often the center of attraction at one of New York's most frequented hotels, "Johnnie" has gathered quite a following on an N. B. C. spot Tuesdays when he pages "Philip Morris."

Al Schacht, coach of the Nats ball club, who, with Nick Altrock, has amused fans with considerable clowning during games, is due on the air as sports commentator whenever home games are being played.

Tuesday, with Boston scheduled to tussle with the Nats here, Al will do a resume of the game with players as his guests to tell how Manush made that homer. Listen for them at 6:15 p. m., on WMAL.

Whitecaps.

BENNY The First Nibble By J. Carver Pusey

HOH, HEH, THIS IS GOING TO BE TOO EASY — AFTER HE MAKES THE DOWN PAYMENT, HE WON'T MAKE ANY MORE. - ESPECIALLY AFTER HE SEES WHAT HE'S BOUGHT — THEN WE'LL HAVE IT BACK, AGAIN TO SELL TO SOME OTHER POOR SAP!
HELLO, MY FRIEND! - GOOD NEWS — I'VE GOT EVERYTHING ALL FIXED -
WE WON'T NEED TO GO OUT TO LOOK AT THE PROPERTY, I CAN SHOW IT TO YOU RIGHT HERE ON THE MAP — DID YOU BRING THE MONEY?
REAL ESTATE
SO! HE'S TRYIN' TO PAWN OFF THAT SWAMP ON SOME OTHER POOR FELLOW, EH? WELL EVER SINCE HE CHEATED ME ON IT, I'M GOING TO SEE THAT HE DOESN'T GET ANYBODY ELSE TO BITE ON IT.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY On Their Way By Harry J. Tuthill

GOOD MORNING, GEORGE. I'M A BIT LATE BUT... OH OH! WHAT'S THIS... ON THE DOOR?
OUR NAME.
VENDETTA LABORATORY OF CRIME
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF. 4-18
LABORATORY? AHEM! DON'T YOU THINK THAT SOUNDS TOO CHEMICAL? AS THOUGH THIS WAS MERELY THE BACK END OF A DRUG STORE.
WE'LL USE CHEMICALS IN CRIME DETECTION, WON'T WE HERMAN?
ANALYZING CLUES. SPOTS ON CLOTHING. RED MARKS OF A HAND LEFT ON THE DOOR, AND SO FORTH. FINGER-PRINTS.
THERE'S ANOTHER HEADACHE FOR ME. THE REASON I'M LATE IS BECAUSE I WAS AT HOME TRYING TO FIND MY FINGER-PRINT OUTFIT.
McNaught Syndicate, Inc., N. Y.
I'M SORRY YOU DON'T LIKE THAT LABORATORY IDEA. MOST OF THE DETECTIVES YOU READ ABOUT ARE UP TO THEIR NECKS IN MICROSCOPES AND SO FORTH.
I'M POSITIVE MY WIFE THREW THAT FINGER-PRINT OUTFIT IN THE ASH CAN LAST WEEK DURING A HOUSE CLEANING SPREE. POSITIVE.

HI, MAC! HOWS THINGS?
LISTEN, YOU! THIS HAS GOTTA BE A FIGHT! AN' IF ANYBODY STARTS MAKIN' A RACE OUTA IT—
-I'LL AWARD THE FIGHT, THEN AND THERE, TO THE OTHER GUY! GOT IT?
SURE—BUT I'M HOPIN' IT DONT HAVE TO END DAT WAY—
I'M HOPIN' HE'LL HAVE THE NOIVE TA MAKE A FIGHT OF IT!

DIXIE DUGAN Please Go On! By J. P. McEvoy and J. H. Striebel

YOU'VE AROUSED MY CURIOSITY — PLEASE DO GO ON!
WELL - IF YOU INSIST — "TODAY I WENT INTO A BARBER SUPPLY STORE TO GET A NEW CUTICLE CLIPPER, AND, DEAR, DEAR DIARY I GOT TH' THRILL OF MY LIFE! I SAW A MAN TALKIN' TO TH' GIRL BEHIND TH' COUNTER - TH' FINEST, HANDSOMEST LOOKIN' MAN — A QUIVER RAN THROUGH ME — I SAID 'AIN'T I MET YOU SOMEWHERE?' - BUT HE SAID "NO, — HE COULDN'T RECALL" — AN' THEN, ALL AT ONCE, IT COME TO ME THAT —
NO, NO — I CAN'T READ TH' REST TO YOU —
PLEASE DO, FLOSSIE — I'M A WRITER — I'LL UNDERSTAND
ALL RIGHT, THEN — "ALL AT ONCE IT COME T' ME THAT TH' REASON I THOUGHT I KNEW HIM WAS THAT HE WAS TH' KIND OF A MAN I'D DREAMED ABOUT ALL MY LIFE"
OH — YOU SHOULDN'T A' MADE ME READ THAT — BECAUSE YOU KNOW IT'S ABOUT YOU

THE GUMPS A Lesson Learned—Too Late

HM-M - YOU SAY YOU WROTE THEM A LETTER - CAN YOU REMEMBER WHAT WAS IN IT? COULD YOU GIVE ME THE GIST OF IT?
YES - I REMEMBER THE LETTER PERFECTLY - I WAS VERY HAPPY AT THE TIME - I HAD JUST BEEN RE-UNITED WITH LITTLE NELL, A CHILD I LOVED DEARLY -
AS I RECALL, THIS WAS MY LETTER, ALMOST WORD FOR WORD - "DEAR MRS DE STROSS - I'M AFRAID MY MARRIAGE IS OUT OF THE QUESTION - FOR THE FIRST TIME IN MY LIFE I HAVE DISCOVERED WHAT REAL LOVE IS - GREAT THOUGH MY GRIEF WAS - IN LOSING YOUR DAUGHTER - I HAVE FOUND ANOTHER LITTLE GIRL EVEN SWEETER - WHO HAS BROUGHT ME TRUE HAPPINESS AT LAST -"
THAT'S BAD - VERY BAD -
THAT'S WHERE YOU PUT YOUR FOOT IN IT, RIGHT THERE - I SEE WHERE THEY HAVE A VERY STRONG CASE AGAINST YOU - THEY MAY GET EVERY CENT THEY'RE SUING FOR AND MORE - IT'S TOO LATE TO TELL YOU NOW, BUT IF YOU'D COME TO ME FOR ADVICE - IF YOU'D ONLY GONE TO SEE THEM - PHONED 'EM ANYTHING, EXCEPT TO HAVE PUT THOSE WORDS IN WRITING - LET THIS BE A LESSON!

DICK TRACY From Behind the Curtain

THE SEARCH OF JEAN PENFIELD'S APARTMENT!
YEAH? WELL, LOOK AT THIS.
DO YOU SEE THIS, PAT? IT'S A RECEIPT FOR TWENTY THOUSAND DOLLARS SIGNED BY SPALDONI! IT PROVES A THING I HAVE ALWAYS SUSPECTED: THAT JEAN PENFIELD WAS THE ONE WHO FURNISHED CASH THAT TIME JIMMY WHITE WAS BAILED OUT. WELL - LET'S GO.
WHAT? YOU'RE GOING BACK TO HEADQUARTERS WHEN ALL YOU'VE GOT IS THAT LITTLE PIECE OF PAPER?
GIVE ME THAT PIECE OF PAPER!

Walt Mason, Himself

Shining Examples.

I've been taken to the cleaners, I have lost my final buck, and I'm eating musty wiener where I once had mallard duck. I no longer clothe my body in the silks I used to wear, but my duds are cheap and shoddy, and my shoes would make you stare. I've been taken to the cleaner, to the cleaner's famous booth, but I think that my demeanor doesn't advertise the truth. And I try to keep on grinning in this wilderness of woe, though for years I have been winning only goose-eggs in a row. When inclined to deal in ravings, I recall some dauntless gents who had lost their lifetime savings, and refused to make laments. Walter Scott was growing leaner, with the cares that racked his soul; he'd been taken to the cleaner and had lost his gorgeous roll. He had earned all kinds of money, life was just a grand sweet song, and the prospects seemed quite sunny, when disaster came along. After casting patient glances at his bank account, all wet, he sat down and wrote romances and he paid off every debt. And Mark Twain found trouble keener than it ever was before; he'd been taken to the cleaner and had lost his hard-earned store. But he lost no time in wailing, and he shed no bitter brine, but he said, "I'll soon be nailing all those creditors of mine."
